EMPEROR WILLIAM TO HIS TWO SONS Imperial Father's Sage Advice to Young Princes on Confirmation.

Berlin, Oct. 19.—At the banquet given in the new palace recently in honor of the confirmation of Princes Alexander, William and Oscar, respectively, the fourth and fifth sons of Emperor William, His Majesty addressed the young princes as follows: "My dear sons, this day is in its spiritual relation to be compared to the day an officer on the field of battle is sworn to the duty of loyalty. Today you have, so to speak, come of age in your beliefs. I speak intentionally of your beliefs, because I assume that you also know the beautiful allegory in which the Christian faith is compared to a tree. You will, of course, carry out what you have today so beautifully sworn in your hearts to do. With justice you have emphasized the fact that you intend to be persons, that in my opinion is the point which most concerns the Christian in his daily life, for undoubtedly we say with the apostle, 'The servant that ever walked the earth.' In your lessons you have heard and heard of many great men who have alleviated and inspired you, but there are only human words and phrases which can be considered empty to any single word of our Lord. Never has a human word excited the imagination of the people of all races and all nations equal to the same goal and strive to imitate him; yes, even to die for him. This miracle can only be explained in the assumption that his words are words of everlasting life. From my own experience I can assure you that the angle and turning point of human life, lies alone in the attitude adopted towards our Saviour. There cannot be doubt that our Lord lives today as an entirely personality which cannot be ignored. I am ready to believe that many persons take the view that in modern life it is impossible that anyone should concern himself so intimately with the Saviour, or take Him into consideration as formerly, but the only helper and rescuer remains the Saviour. He advises you from the bottom of my heart to toil and work without ceasing; that is the kernel of a Christian life. He who will be most heavily punished, he who does nothing, who goes with the stream and lets others work. "May each of you strive to do his best in his province, to become a personage and to grow up with his tasks according to the example of his Saviour. Strive so that what you undertake shall be a joy to your fellowmen, or at least be of service to them. Then you will have accomplished what is expected of you. That you may not be wanting in the help of our Saviour, to this let us empty our glasses."

Malaspinas' Famous Gallery Located Definitely on Gabriola Island.

Colonist Correspondent Obtains Photographs of the Rare Scene.

No Question Whatever as to the Authenticity of the Identification.

A comparison of the photographs here with the picture of Malaspinas' gallery which appeared in the Colonist some months ago leaves little doubt that they are all representations of the same place, a natural gallery existing on the north side of Gabriola island in plain view of Nanaimo. The photographs were taken on Thanksgiving Day by Mr. Harry Rogers, of Victoria, with a party of friends crossed from this city in a night launch.

The gallery is exactly eighty yards long and at one end there is an open terrace fifteen yards long where the overhanging cliff has broken away. The gallery is a natural rock formation, and the overhanging cliff has broken away in places, and the rock is naturally cracked in the same way. At first glance, however, it would be supposed that they were traces of red Indian art.

The gallery has apparently been formed by the washing out of a strata of soft sandstone which rests on a bed of hard granite. This latter forms the floor of the gallery, and is very hard waterworn, the erosion of the soft rock being caused by cracks in the rock and the cooling originated by the action of iron have given rise to the idea that it had at one time been colored with pigment by the Indians. Crosses similarly exist on the walls, but these also are naturally caused by cracks in the rock and the cooling originated by the action of iron have given rise to the idea that it had at one time been colored with pigment by the Indians.

height about twelve. Another feature is the Indian head, which is very conspicuous in the photograph, showing the view looking toward the island. This is a stone, naturally shaped, in which markings are made, which are supposed to be the work of the Indians. The Indian head is a natural rock formation, and the overhanging cliff has broken away in places, and the rock is naturally cracked in the same way. At first glance, however, it would be supposed that they were traces of red Indian art.
