A very little boy had one day done wrong, and he was sent, after parental correction, to ask in secret the forgiveness of his Heavenly Father. His offence was passion. Anxious to hear what he would say, his mother followed him to the door of his room. In lisping accents she heard him ask to be made better—never to be angry again; and then with childlike simplicity he added, 'Lord, make ma's temper better too.'

An old man was on his knees at the road side breaking stones. The minister, who was considered not over-devout, addressed him: 'Ah John, I wish I could break the stony hearts of my hearers as easy as you break those stones!' 'Ye should try my plan, sir,' said John; 'gang to your knees.'

'When he was set, His disciples came unto him, and he opened his mouth and taught them.—While the pillar guide kept moving, the people followed at a distance in long procession; when the pillar rested, the people gathered and camped around it. There are special places, times, and ordinances for meeting with Christ. But now that he is set at the right hand of the Majesty on high, the believer should not only always come unto Him, but always abide with Him.

The Rev. Mr. Young was one stormy day visiting one of his people, an old man, who lived in great poverty in a lonely cottage a few miles from Jedburgh. He found him sitting with the Bible open on his knees, but in outward circumstance of great discomfort, the snow drifting through the roof and under the door, and scarce any fire on the hearth. 'What are you about to-day, John?' asked Mr. Young on entering. 'Ah, sir,' said John, 'I am sitting under his shadow with great delight.'
