A news item from Vancouver, states that the Vancouver, Westminster and Yukon Railway line, by which the Great Northern will gain an entrance to the city, is commencing a daily service of four trains each way between Vancouver and New Westminster. The railway line across the bridge over the Fraser River at New Westminster is not completed, so passengers will have to transfer there to the Great Northern trains.

The car shops of the British Columbia Electric Railway Company in New Westminster have been destroyed by fire, together with several large cars in course of construction. The loss is estimated at over $20,000, which is said to be covered by insurance.
