

THE Writer of this Tract, holding an official situation, feels bound to state, that he has committed his sentiments to the press, as other public officers have done, who differed from him; that he has not had any communication with Government on the subject; and that, therefore, his opinions are entirely personal and unofficial.

So situated, he has felt that he ought to notice such facts only as have come under public discussion in the course of his experience.