

Finally—Let them exhibit, amongst it believers (un-assess'd by any supposed professional partiality) the minutely-investigating spirit of a Boyle, the profound understanding of a Locke, the dispassionate reason of an Addison, the discriminating judgment of a Hale, the sublimity of intellect of a Milton, and the only-not-divine sagacity of Newton :

OR LET THEM SUBMIT TO THE IRRESISTABLE CERTAINTY OF THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION.
