

|  | PAGE |
|--|------|
| Firmness of Sir Edwin Sandys . . . . .   | 113  |
| England takes a strong interest in Virginia. George Sandys. Herbert . . . . .        | 114  |
| The earl of Southampton the foremost defender of the liberties of Virginia . . . . . | 114  |
| Great Emigration . . . . .   | 115  |
| Tax in England on tobacco . . . . .  | 116  |
| Ordinance for the security of Virginia liberties . . . . .                           | 117  |
| Sir Francis Wyatt brings over a free constitution . . . . .                          | 118  |

CHAPTER VIII.

SLAVERY. DISSOLUTION OF THE LONDON COMPANY.

|  |     |
|--|-----|
| Early history of slavery and the slave-trade . . . . .               | 119 |
| Slavery and the slave-trade in the middle ages . . . . .             | 120 |
| Slavery checked by Venice and by the church . . . . .                | 121 |
| Influence of the jurists of France . . . . .                         | 122 |
| Negro slavery had its origin in Africa . . . . .                     | 122 |
| Negroes in Portugal and Spain. Red men enslaved . . . . .            | 123 |
| Negro slavery in the West Indies . . . . .                           | 124 |
| Opinions on its immorality and danger . . . . .                      | 125 |
| England engages in the slave-trade. New England . . . . .            | 125 |
| Servants and slaves in Virginia . . . . .                            | 125 |
| Wyatt's administration. Planting cotton . . . . .                    | 126 |
| The red men. Death of Powhatan . . . . .                             | 127 |
| A massacre and a war . . . . .                                       | 128 |
| King James contends with the London company . . . . .                | 130 |
| Firmness of the company. Royal commissioners in Virginia . . . . .   | 131 |
| Spirit of the Virginians . . . . .                                   | 132 |
| The charter is cancelled, the colony retains its liberties . . . . . | 133 |

CHAPTER IX.

RESTRICTIONS ON COLONIAL COMMERCE.

|   |     |
|---|-----|
| Charles I. Yeardley in Virginia . . . . .                             | 135 |
| Death of Yeardley . . . . .   | 136 |
| Harvey's administration . . . . .                                     | 137 |
| Sir Francis Wyatt's administration . . . . .                          | 139 |
| Sir William Berkeley's administration . . . . .                       | 140 |
| A second massacre by the red men . . . . .                            | 142 |
| The Long Parliament asserts its supremacy . . . . .                   | 143 |
| Origin of the navigation act . . . . .                                | 144 |
| Commercial policy of Cromwell. His war with the Netherlands . . . . . | 145 |
| Further restrictions on colonial commerce . . . . .                   | 146 |
| Virginia capitulates and receives English liberties . . . . .         | 147 |
| Virginia during the protectorate of Cromwell . . . . .                | 148 |
| The Virginia assembly asserts its rights . . . . .                    | 149 |
| Virginia and its inhabitants . . . . .                                | 150 |
| Religious liberty for all but Quakers . . . . .                       | 151 |
| Life in Virginia . . . . .  | 152 |