
THE RIDIN' KID FROM POWDER RIVER

By H. H. Knibbs

Author of "Overland Red," "Sundown Slim," etc.

"From the moment when the frank, honest and adventuresome 'Kid' slides like a strange pleiad on to the vast, star-lit Blue Mezza of the final page of his adventures, our sympathies are with him. He is a real, genuine cowboy! Delicious, vivid strokes sweep broad and accurate pictures over the pages of man, animals, and silent but sentinel nature. So well done are the minor characters in the novel [that not a single old rooster flies over the fence of a homesteader without our recognizing the creature for a natural specimen; and not a coyote or a pony appears and disappears to the accompaniment of an eye-flicker of indifference.]"
