ower to acquire the Consumers' Gas Company, it becomes important to investigate the conditions under which the company was incorporated, as well as the rights reserved by the legislature for the benefit of gas consumers and the general public. The Consumers' Gas Company was incorporated in 1848.

The preamble of the Act of incorporation sets out that:

Same to all comers of proper age who do not give evidence of inebritety. They will be obliged to do this, just as other publicans are, by the provisions of their license."

Whereas the great and increasing extent of the City of Toronto, and the great demand for a cheap and effective mode of lighting the streets and places in the said city, as well as houses, shops and other buildings therein, render it desirable that more than one company should be established for the purpose of furnishing a further supply of gas for lighting the said city; and whereas the Mayor, aldermen and citizens of the City of Toronto have signified their assent to the establishment of the said company, and to their having the necessary powers connected with the establishment and construction of the necessary works; * * * and whereas the said several persons hereinbefore named, and others, have by their petition prayed that they cessary works; * * * and whereas the said several persons hereinbefore named, and others, have by their petition prayed that they may be incorporated under the style and title of The Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto * * * that they may be invested with all the necessary powers and privileges usually granted to similar corporations, for the purpose of supplying the City of Toronto with gas in greater quantity, of better quality and at a cheaper rate than the same hath been heretofore supplied; and whereas it is expedient to grant the prayer of the said petition;

First of all, the company was formed vert it into a respectable place of refor the production of cheap gas. The idea of incorporation was, primarily, to benefit the consumers by supplying cheaper gas than they were to non-intoxicants as to intoxicants.

It might be argued that man, individually and collectively, was an incal-culable factor, a new element opposing then able to obtain. was provided for by limiting the dividends of shareholders to 10 per cent. The Consumers' Gas Company was organized as a competitor to an existing company, and further competition is provided for by section 20 of the Act of incorporation. The Consumers' Gas Company was given no monopoly. In will be noticed that the 'Mayor, aldermen and citizens of the City of Toronto' were a consenting party to the incorporation of the company in the Act of incorporation, should go back to the legislature this year and demand the fulfilment of the Act of 1848 and amending Acts, for securing chaper gas to the citizens of Toronto. ple from abitrary or unfair treatment by the company. Let Mayor Howland and the aldermen of 1902 ponder over these words:

"Nothing in this Act contained shall extend or be construed to extend to prevent * * * the legislature of this province at any time hereafter from altering, modifying or repealing the powers, privileges or authorities hereinbefore granted to the said company, or from incorporating any other company for like purposes."

Mr. James H. Beatty, president of the Federal Life Assurance Company, and a director of the Traders' Bank, died suddenly at his home, 109 Downling-avenue, from paralysis, on Saturday morning. Mr. Beatty was 75 years of age, and came to Toronto a few years ago from Thorold. He had been a prominent resident of that the present system of feeding the sailors of the royal navy. The shareholders of the company got their right to these 10 per cent. dividends with this reservation as to the interference of the legislature at any time. The legislature nominated itself as the tribunal that should determine all future changes in the relationship between gas consumers and the company. It is as plain as daylight that the Mayor, aldermen and citizens of Toronto have a clear moral and legal right to approach the legislature at any time and ask that body to exercise the powers conferred upon it by section in gredress for grievances against the Consumers' Gas Company:

(1) By process of writ in the courts.

(2) By direct appeal to the legislature.

The legislature has the world. But company's powers in such a way as will secure for gas consumers the benefits intended by the Act.

We, therefore, call upon the Mayor, aldermen and citizens of the City of Toronto to go to the legislature with their bill of complaint and demand a modification of the company's powers. The citizens of Toronto have already expressed themselves in the matter. In January, 1901, they declared in favor country. She first settled in Montreal and then came to Toronto, residing

The share holders are in no position to demand an exorbitant price. Full justice would be done the shareholders if the legislature made the transfer on the basis of the market price of the company's shares during the past six months.

But the immediate question concerns the Mayor and aldermen. What attitude do they intend to assume to-day? We hardly think Mayor Howland will have the presumption to run counter to the wishes of the people, and of "The Civilization That Should Be" does, great public interests, in the same category with a strike of ordinary workers, but will class such an action as a strike of public servants, punishable under the penal code.
