The Closure Might Be Used At Washington to Great Advantage.

Washington, Nov. 11. - President Roosevelt, in his efforts to secure legislation which he thinks is necessary to the welfare of the country, has introduced at Washington a new custom which is very offensive to the senate and to many members of the house, by taking personal charge of legislative measures and exercising his powerful influence to secure their consideration and adoption. It is an exceedingly perilous habit for a president to get into. A Life-Giving Material Restores Mr. Cleveland tried it, and not only failed, but broke up the Democratic party by assuming to be wiser than the accepted leaders of that organization who did not agree with him.
