

BOVRIL

Is the Essence and Strength of Beef

In making BOVRIL the elements of beef are scientifically dealt with. Those without food value are thrown out and the really nutritious part of the beef is specially treated. The result is a highly nourishing concentrated preparation which is easily and quickly transformed into rich red blood.

DIGBY-JARDINE. The marriage of Miss May Edna Jardine to Mr. Robert Digby of Longford, Ont., took place very quietly on Wednesday at the home of the bride's mother in Sunnyside-street.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. Ernest Baker, pastor of the Simpson-avenue Methodist Church, in the presence of the immediate families and relatives. The bride was wearing a gown of white silk and lace and she carried white roses and sweet peas.

Miss Jardine, in grey silk, with pink bump on her left cheek, was the maid, and Mr. Edward Jardine was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Digby left later to spend their honeymoon in Hotel de Ville, leaving for their home in Longford, Ont.

BARBER-GALBRAITH. A quiet wedding took place at the residence of the Hon. Thomas and Mrs. Crawford, 464 Palmerston-boulevard, at 3:30 p. m., on Monday, March 13, when, in the presence of immediate relatives only, Miss Clara Lillian Galbraith, daughter of the late William Galbraith, Ph. D., was united in marriage to Mr. George H. Barber, eldest son of Mr. Timothy Barber. The Rev. Mr. Sing performed the ceremony, and Mr. Barber left by the 11 o'clock train for Chicago, the bride wearing a tan tailormade, with ermine furs and King blue toque.

SMITH-RICHARDSON. A wedding was solemnized on Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Richardson, Barrie-street, when their only daughter, Ida May, was united in marriage to Mr. Frank Burgess Smith. The house was decorated with palms, ferns and spring flowers. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. Hampton Teney, of St. Philip's Church, took place in the drawing-room under a canopy of southern smilax and was witnessed by a large number of guests.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked very pretty in her wedding robe of ivory duchesse satin veiled with net, yoke and sleeves of bebe Irish lace and embroidered in seed pearls. Her veil was crowned with a wreath of roses and she carried a shower bouquet of roses and lily-of-the-valley and wore a hoop of pearls, the gift of the groom. Miss Elsie Mayo, in pale blue satin, wore a wreath of roses in her hair and carrying a bouquet of Killarney roses with pink sweet peas, was bridesmaid, and Mr. J. H. Smith, in white, was best man.

The groom's favor to the bridesmaid was a pearl earring. After the ceremony Mrs. Richardson, who was wearing a becoming gown of old rose satin palliate with corsage bouquet of lily-of-the-valley, held a reception. After cutting the cake the bride changed her wedding gown for a smartly-tailored suit of King's blue serge, with toque to match, and left by the 10:45 train for Montreal, where the honeymoon will be spent.

It's Coming, No Doubt, Like It or Lump It

In a Few Days Pretty Parisians Will Be Parading the Pasha Skirt on Fashionable Boulevards.

PARIS, March 18.—So it's coming, and whether we like it or not, we've got to put up with it. I refer, of course, to the "berouel," the Pasha skirt, "la jupe-culotte," or whatever you wish to call it. Rumors about the advent of the new skirt have been flying about for a long time. But we lived in hopes that it was only another wild dream of the dressmakers. Now, however, there is no getting away from it. In a few days' time our pretty Parisiennes will be promading the "creation" in all the fashionable quarters, on the race-tracks, and along the boulevards, giving us the impression that the Sultan has given a holiday to a few of his lady friends. The first glimpse of the "jupe-culotte" met with rather a hostile reception when two smart ladies were spotted wearing it on the boulevard. But whether it will have an untimely death or live long and prosper is a matter for opinion and speculation. After all, the gay Boulevardier must have some thing to amuse him, and if the ladies aren't going to supply the merriment, who is?

I will not attempt to give you a technical description of the jupe-culotte, and besides, you've all seen pictures of it, if you haven't seen the actual thing. In any case it's easy to imagine. All you've got to do is to get a lady cyclist in bloomers in your mind's eye, bring the bloomers just down above the ankles, cover it with a filmy skirt divided down the middle, and there you have it. At least that is how it was described to me by someone who is supposed to be an expert in feminine attire and things feminine in general.

Needless to say this latest output from Midwestern tail is monopolizing indoor and outdoor conversation. "A part from the fashionable point of view," said a lady friend of mine, "it has other advantages. We will be able to run when we want to and also kick when things don't please us. En somme, mon cher," she added with a mischievous little twinkle in her eye, "nous allons porter la culotte."

This is a long stride towards the "conquest of man." And no doubt many more strides will be made before the "costume de la Turque" joins other fashions in the long, lost past, for the Pasha skirt is decidedly more convenient for long strides than was its ill-fated predecessor, the hobble skirt.
