BASEBALL

American League

Cleveland, Sept. 11.—New York evened up the series yesterday by beating the Indians. Ruth made his 18th home run of the season when he hit the ball over the right field wall in the first inning with a runner on first. Shawkey was effective all the way and made it six out of seven games from Cleveland this year. New York 6, Cleveland 1.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Eddie Murphy batting as a pinch hitter with the bases filled and none out in the eighth inning made it possible for Chicago to defeat Boston yesterday. Murphy grounded to Hoyt, whose throw to Schang forced Collins, but Schang hit Murphy in the back in trying to double him at first and Jackson and Felsch scored. McInnes' throw was bad and Murphy took third. From there he scored on a double steal with Schalk. Boston 5, Chicago 6.

Detroit, Sept. 11.—Detroit won both games of a double-header from Philadelphia here yesterday. The visitors were out in both games. Philadelphia 0, Detroit 4.

Second game: Philadelphia 2, Detroit 5.

Hatheway & Co., 8, H. W. Cole Ltd. 7.

In an interesting game on the Elm street diamond last evening, the baseball team from Hatheway Co. won the rubber game from their competitors, H. W. Cole Ltd. The game went seven innings and the heavy hitting grocers from Ward street demoralized their opponents in the second and fifth innings. The box work of Maxwell for the winners was very effective. This makes the best two out of three games for Hatheway & Co. The teams lined up as follows:

SARDINIANS

WOULD HAVE INDEPENDENCE

Say Big Island More Prosperous If Allowed Its Own Government.

(A. P. Correspondence)

Rome, Aug. 18.—The spirit of unrest has penetrated since the war even to such old world and out of the way spots as the island of Sardinia. Among these picturesque peasants, many of whom cannot read or write, though they are often people of dignified manners and strong character, public opinion is diffused by word of mouth and a strong party has arisen lately whose motto is "Sardinia alone," who think that the island, which is the second largest in the Mediterranean, would be more prosperous if it governed itself and had little or nothing to do with Italy.

In ancient days Sardinia was one of the great granaries of the world, supplying first Carthage and later Rome with immense quantities of grain. Now a large proportion of the island is covered with forest, chiefly consisting of holm-oaks and cork trees. The most valuable exports however, are from the mines of lead, zinc, antimony, copper, silver, lignite and anthracite, which if only thoroughly developed would be a source of great riches.

The Sardinians are a splendid fighting race and not only during the late world conflict but throughout the Napoleonic wars and the Middle Ages provided some of the staunchest soldiers in Europe. The Sardinians have always considered their island the Cinderella of United Italy. They say that they have been alternately neglected and taken advantage of by the central government, education has been disregarded, the malarious state of the country has been ignored, few roads or railways have been provided in order to develop its resources, while government money has never been forthcoming for its needs.

The peasants of Sardinia declare that this is the moment when Sardinia might start on the road to regeneration and reconstruction, moral, commercial and economic if it is, as of old, abandoned to apathy and want of initiative, ruin is certain. A deep spirit of discontent and irritation is prevalent. The Sardinians call themselves "the Irish of the Mediterranean" and a large party is being formed of those who desire to work out their own salvation and at least for a certain time to entirely independent of the mother country, which they accuse of having treated them more like the typical stepmother. They ask to be allowed to take their destiny in their own hands.

THE SAD CASE OF

AMBROSE JOHNS

To the Editor of the Times-Star:—Sir:—Since the very sad case named above was reported in your paper, many people have approached me, urging that something of a public character should be done toward the help of the widow and child of the unfortunate man. Nine individuals have each handed me a dollar, and many others have promised subscriptions, if I would undertake to have the money sent over to the widow and child.

It is useless and out of place to discuss the means which led to the rash act at the present moment; that part of it will be attended to later. Any person disposed to help in this matter may mail their subscriptions to me, or bring them in person to 230 Wentworth street, or to the Seamen's Institute, when same will be duly acknowledged through the press.

Sincerely yours,
Manager Seamen's Institute,
St. John, Sept. 10.

AMERICAN TO

New York, Sept. 10.—Assistant District Attorney Alexander L. Mr. Rorke sailed on the Baltic at the same time as Archbishop Manning, and said he had planned to go to Ireland to meet his wife and mother-in-law prior to a tour of Ireland, Belgium and France with them.

Frederick was sitting on the curb, crying, when Billy came along and asked him what was the matter.

"Oh, I feel so bad 'cause Major's dead—my nice old collie!" sobbed Frederick.

"Shucks!" said Billy. "My grand-mother's been dead a week, and you don't catch me crying."

Frederick gave his eyes and nose a swipe with his hand, and looking up at Billy, sobbed, despairingly:
