has not sown all his wild oats." To which Mr. Pitt replied in a rejoinder:—

"Age has its privileges, and youth may have its faults, but the gentleman affords an ample illustration that I still retain food enough for geese to peck at!"

Bemus asked Jemima if she had seen her "vegetable friend." "My vegetable friend! Who is that?" "Why the young man I met with you yesterday, who has carrotty hair, reddish whiskers, and a turnup nose." "Father," said a sporting youth to his revered parent, "they say trout will bite now." "Well, well," was the consoling reply, "mind your work, and then you'll be sure they won't bite you."

Glorious Revenge.—If you feel inclined to exercise your vengeance against one who has deeply injured you, take the first opportunity of doing him a service; if he have any feeling, you will wound him to the quick.—O. P. Q.

Tarring and Feathering.—This ludicrous but painful punishment would appear to be an European invention, as one of Richard Cœur de Lion's punishments for sailors was, if any man were convicted of theft, or 'pickery,' he should have his head polled, and hot pitch poured upon his pate, and upon that the feathers of some pillow or cushion shaken aloft, that he might thereby be known for a thief.—Holinshed.

Uncommonly Thin.—When the Duke de Choiseul, a remarkable meagre man, came to London to negotiate a peace, Charles Townshend being asked whether the French Government had sent the preliminaries of a treaty, answered "he did not know, but they had sent the outline of an ambassador."

A Hard Cough.—A friend having visited Curran one morning, and perceived that he coughed with difficulty, told him so, on which Curran said, "It is strange that I should, for I have been practising all night."

comber, of Wilton, informs us that for more than ten years past he has used gum camphor, dissolved in New England rum, to destroy lice on cattle. It does the work effectually, as we can testify; it may be applied at all times, even in the coldest weather, without injuring the cattle.—New England Farmer.
