

SIXTH WITNESS
Prosecution

SC 2583 WOII Stanbrook, IP, Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering, having been duly sworn states:-

I am SC 2583 WOII Stanbrook, IP, Sgt Major in charge of the Instructional Department of Trades Training at the Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering. On the 16 Nov 49, at approximately 1650 hrs, Opl Gillies together with Opl Follasier reported in to Trades Training office and informed me that after closing the plumbing shop that night they had found one set of stock and dies outside the building. They had posted a guard over these stock and dies and had then come to the office to report to me. I immediately took them to the Provost office and placed the matter in their hands.

Q.1. Would you know the value of a set of Vosper stock and dies?

A.1. They would be approximately $17.00.

The accused declines to cross-examine the witness.

SEVENTH WITNESS
Prosecution

SP 10726 RSM WOI Mills, NH, Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering, having been duly sworn states:-

I am SP 10726 RSM (WOI) Mills, NH, Regimental Sergeant-Major for the RCMSE. At approximately 1705 hrs 16 Nov 49, I Opl Jolly of C Pro C escorted Spr Doggart and Spr Padden to my office. I Opl Jolly had in his possession at that time a box which was in a sand bag. This box contained a stock and six dies Vosper type. I Opl Jolly reported to me that outside the RCMSE plumbing shop he had apprehended Spr Doggart who was carrying the box towards a civilian vehicle. He also apprehended Spr Padden who was driving the said vehicle. I questioned Spr Doggart as to why he was in possession of this equipment and he stated that when leaving the plumbing shop to go to his quarters, he noticed the said box in a sand bag beside one of the wings of the plumbing shop. After he got to his quarters he said he got to thinking to what it was and why it was there and he got Spr Padden to drive him over to the plumbing shop where he picked up the package with the intention of keeping it in his quarters over-night for safekeeping and returning it to the plumbing shop the following day. I then ordered that both Spr Doggart and Spr Padden to be held in close arrest pending further investigation.

The accused declines to cross-examine the witness.
