The secretary read a communication from the minister of trade and commerce in reply to one sent by the board re Australian trade. Referred to the trades and commerce committee.

The chairman reported that a committee of the board had waited on the mayor and council, and drawn attention to the necessity of rebuilding the Rock Bay bridge. The reply of the corpora-tion was that this would probably be done, and on the same site as before. The manager of the B. C. District Messenger Service having complained of the action of the postmaster-general regarding infringements of postal work, the committee, composed of Messrs. T. M. Henderson and Jas. Forman, apted to make inquiry, reported. A lengthy discussion ensued.

A. J. Morley thought that if a firm could deliver small parcels, etc., cheaper than the department, something might be done toward inducing the post office department to cheapen local deliveries. have every confidence that the Liberals of the constituency will take care that the chair occupied in the past by Mr. McInnes will not be removed across the floor of the House.

"I have not taken, nor do I intend to take, any part in the selection of the Liberal candidate. I regard this as a matter for the Liberals of the riding alone to decide, and have no doubt that the selection will be a wise one."
