It only took a few minutes to give the alarm and for the firemen to get there, but during that short time the fire had communicated to the oil and coal shed in the main house. Five or six powerful streams of water soon subdued the flames and saved the main house, though in a much damaged condition. The department handled the fire exceedingly well. W. B. WOODSTOCK, May 19.—The new steamer Aberdeen, of the Star line, arrived here a week ago today with a large cargo from St. John, and was inspected by several hundred people. She has made regular trips since. The steamer presents a good appearance, and is pronounced by experienced men to be one of the fastest and most reliable working steamers ever upon these waters, reflecting much credit to the skill of Mr. Retallack as a master builder. Mr. Baird, the manager of the line, was well welcomed and congratulated by his many friends. When asked how long he intended the steamer to remain on the route he replied, just as long as there is water to float her up and down. It is certain Mr. B. fully carried out his agreement with the old company and the people in building in so short a time this steamer, and so claim the fulfillment of his further promise will develop upon the federal government the duty of deepening the shoals in the river in the present year. The fairness of the claim cannot be disputed when it is considered that there are over 27,000 people along the basin of the river between Woodstock and Fredericton who have no means of transportation except what is afforded by this steamer.

PEANUTS IN GERMANY.

Governmental Experiments as to its Value as an Article of Food.

The increasing use of the peanut as a food staple in other parts of the world is attracting the attention of U. S. department of state, and the bureau of statistics is gathering information from the consular about it. Dr. H. Mason, U. S. consul at Frankfurt, Germany, writes that experiments are now in progress with a view to the use of peanut meal in the commissary of the German army and navy.

Most of the nuts imported into Germany are used only for their oil. In 1893 the imports amounted to 29,973 tons, of this quantity nearly 14,000 tons came from Africa and almost all the rest from British East India. Only twenty-five tons were imported from this country, which produces the sweetest tasting and least oleaginous varieties. Most of the oil is used as a substitute for olive oil for salads and cooking. The best African nut oil ranges in price from 10 cents to 12 cents a gallon. The American nut produces an oil worth only about 50 cents. The second quality and least pressings go to "oleum" oleomargarine and to make soap. The food for cattle and sheep, and the shells are used in the manufacture of cheap paper, or ground up for fodder with the crushed kernels. It was the wonderful nutritive quality of the peanut oil cake fed to domestic animals which set the savants to experimenting with the nut as a cheap food.
