A Few Truths

The advantage of living does not consist in length of days, but in the right improvement of them. The tears of sorrow are like spiritual lenses, showing us the world in its true character as a poor, empty, unsatisfying inheritance. Depend upon it that when a man talks of his misfortunes, there is something in them that is depreciable to him; for where there is nothing but pure misery, there never is any recourse to the mention of it.

The more anyone speaks of himself, the less he likes to hear another talk of. It requires a higher kind of wisdom to sympathize and approve than to carp and criticize. There is nothing so popular, believe me; sir, as kindness; of all your many virtues none wins men's admiration and their love like mercy. In nothing do men reach so near the gods as when they can give life and safety to mankind. A very good lesson is often taught by helpless and incurable patients, for their chief charm seems to be in the pleasure they get out of the small things of life. It is often found that a chronic invalid in the house is the favorite of the family, the most lovable one, the one that gets and gives the most sympathy. They are always interested in those around them, and are most alive to the sentiment of life, and are therefore sympathetic listeners to the confidences of the rest of the family.

John William Ling, a butcher's manager, cut his throat at his house in Plumstead Common-road, London recently, and at the inquest a strange reason was suggested. Ling, it was stated, was "a very conscientious man," and the fact that he was going to open a business close to his employer's shop preyed upon his mind. He did not like the idea of opening in opposition to his master, who he has served for nine years, as, he had said, it would take away many of his customers, and that would be a dirty trick. A verdict of suicide whilst temporarily insane was returned.

Michel Feldmann, a Saxon peasant, went out of his mind. His delusion was that he was the chosen of Heaven, and that he would never die, but be translated to Paradise. He induced some credulous fellow-villagers to entrust him with their savings, offering therewith to make smooth their path to salvation. Then he disappeared, leaving a note saying that an eagle had swooped down from the sky and summoned him to Paradise. The paradise proven to be a brandy shop, where the chican was caught drinking away his dupes' hard-earned wages. William Raymond, aged 83 years, saved Victor Henry, aged 10, from drowning, Lindsay, Ont., February 27, 1906. Raymond, although just having recovered from a long siege of pleurisy, went out on weak ice on the Scugog river to Henry's assistance, and after breaking through, swam thirty-five feet to where Henry was in the water. Swimming back to the edge of the ice with him, they were assisted to firm ice by others who extended a hand to them. Bronze medal and $300, to liquidate mortgage on his property.

Business Booming in Black's Harbor

Connors Bros. Canning Plants all in Operation

Sea Food of Every Description Canned and Made Ready for Market

The busiest place in Charlotte County is Black's Harbor where the plant of Connors Bros. Ltd., is located. A visit to this hive of industry will amply repay the citizen and give him valuable information regarding fish. Here are canned Sardines, Kipperd Herring, Lobsters, Scrimps, Finnan Haddies and Sea Food of every kind and description. At present the factories are running at full blast. To their wharfs come boats loaded with fish of all kinds, from Grand Manan, the Islands, the Nova Scotia coast and the head of the bay. Their boatmen outbid the Americans, and carry on an average seven thousand lobsters a day to their factory. Sardines arrive by the hoghead and line fish by the hundreds. The new steamer Granville, a recent purchase of this enterprising company, lands tons of freight at Blacks, including food stuffs of every kind, supplies for the fishermen and every conceivable line of goods found in a first class general store. She takes away the products of the sea and all over Canada the familiar brand of Connors Bros. is seen, in the stores and on the shelves of dealers in the staple articles of life. Included in the half a dozen wharves used by the firm is a large two hundred and fifty foot long wharf constructed this season. An addition of forty feet has been added to the Sardine Factory making room for an increased output, and room for the installation of new and up-to-date machinery. Here one is sure to see with surprise, the work of the automatic can trimmer, which is almost human in operation clipping the rough edges off the new made cans and freeing itself by means of a conveyor. The plant is complete in every respect and no firm in the maritime provinces is better equipped for the business in which Connors Bros. are engaged. Clustered about the foot of the hill on the water front may be seen the store filled with every variety of goods, the sardine factory, the smoke house, the drying flakes the wharves where land steamers, schooners, gasoline boats and every kind of craft that sails the sea. Back from the water front are located the dwellings of the men and women who carry on the work that has made Black's Harbor and Connors Bros. known all over the continent.

Sugar Cure for Drink

A large number of men nowadays eat more than at any other time in the history of the country. And some authorities claim that this has resulted in the decline of the public appetite for alcoholic stimulants. Or rather, that sugar and sweets will deaden the desire for whisky, beer, etc. A little extra sugar in your coffee or a morning, the munching of a bit of chocolate during the day or the eating of a bit of pastry, when the craving of drink comes, is considered a reliable substitute for the cup that cheers--and queers. Instances have been cited by physicians of men who gradually decrease their daily consumption of drinks by increasing their allowance of candy. In almost every city in the country confectionery stores have increased noticeably in number--and it scarcely seems fair to lay all that to the sweet tooth of a woman. Consular reports show that an increased amount of sugar is being used in this country yearly. These and other signs, it is argued, indicate that man is gradually turning from alcohol to sugar and sugar-plums.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Better Than Battleships Corporation With a Soul

Canada can contribute more to the ability of the Empire to defend itself by filling up her vacant places than by building battleships that would be obsolete by the time that the machinery got to work properly. Canada has too long been a yawning gap in the front of the Empire, a point that must be defended from without for the reason of her people were not numerous enough to defend her borders themselves. By turning her wilderness into populous and wealthy provinces, Canada is accomplishing the duty of making herself able to defend herself, and of relieving the mother country of the duty of defending her. Bulletin.

The distribution of flower seeds to station agents on the Canadian Pacific Railway system from ocean to ocean will be a source of continuous pleasure to travellers along the transcontinental highway. This generous encouragement of artistic taste has brought new life and pleasure into many homes where settlement has not yet relieved monotony, and in many towns and villages the railway flower gardens have imparted the decorative and artistic impulse to the leading householders. We naturally look upon the railway as the pioneer of agriculture, industry, and commerce, and in leading the way to a fuller appreciation of beauty in floral decorations it becomes in a still broader sense the pioneer of civilization.
