CHICAGO PACKERS are lucky. After a trial lasting three and a half months, the jury, having taken seventeen hours to decide, brought in a verdict of not guilty of the charge of forming an illegal combine. It is now hinted that the jury may be prosected, but no confirmation is as yet to hand. The evidence disclosed the fact that the packers earned a clear fifty per cent. profit on their capital, that they fixed buying and selling prices, but these charges were denied by the lawyers for the defence. It is evident there are juries and juries in Chicago.

Elephant Steak.

An account of a remarkable discovery made some time ago by an explorer in the extreme north of Siberia, is given in a recent issue of the Paris Temps, the scientific editor of that publication telling the story.

It appears that the explorer, M. Valosovitch, was staying among the Samoyeds, when one day during the summer, he was brought an appetizing looking dish, which, when tasted, he easily recognized as elephant trunk steak.

The explorer immediately made inquiry as to how elephant meat had been secured in the arctic region, and found that the fore part of the prehistoric mammoth, which it was estimated, had been buried in a snow drift for at least 100 000 years, had been seen jutting out of a crevice in the ice.

The natives, who were glad to get meat from any quarter, and, it seems, been helping themselves daily to slices of the trunk, which, of course, was fully preserved.

Signs Of A Defective Child.

Any exceptional behaviour, if it assumes the form of a habit, should be regarded in the light of a symptom. A child who has habits of twitching, shrugging, sighing, chirping; one who is notably absent-minded, who never answers without first repeating one's question, should be examined for nervous disorder, which will certainly grow worse unless checked. The child whose egotism is excessive, whose stubbornness or willfulness is of an exaggerated type should be carefully watched for other symptoms of hysteria.

Defective teeth in very young children are invariably a sign of deviation from the normal. They may point to serious hereditary diseases or they may indicate malnutrition. In any case, unless relieved and corrected, they are liable to cause speech defects.

TEACHING HOUSEWORK

Travelling instructors for the Peasant Population of Germany

What is at once a new occupation for women and a new feature of German social policy is being established by the introduction of travelling teachers of household economy for the peasant population. The first school for the training of the teachers has been founded at Miesbach in Bavaria. The course of study occupies a year and a half, and includes instruction in all departments of urban and rural housekeeping. Fruit culture, vegetable growing and kitchen gardening in general, poultry raising and bee-keeping, sewing and fancy needle-work are taught, and the student must become an expert in physical exercises, singing and first-aid to the injured. Theoretical instruction is chiefly with the chemistry of food, hygiene, book-keeping, and the intellectual food proper for the class among whom the teachers will have to work. The latter are to visit all small towns and villages, and the system is expected to do much to raise the standard of comfort, health, and education of the German countryside.

GIFT OF KING GEORGE

The table on which King Edward signed the commission giving the Royal assent to the South African Union Act, together with the pen and inkstand used by his Majesty on the occasion, are on their way to South Africa. They are the gift of King George to the Union Government, and have been despatched to South Africa in order that they may be in the Parliament House at Capetown when the Duke of Connaught opens the first Union Parliament next month.

SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT BABIES

In Ireland a belt made of a woman's hair is placed about a child to keep harm away. Garlic, salt, bread, and steak are put into the cradle of a new-born baby in Holland. Welsh mothers put a pair of tongs or a knife in the cradle to insure the safety of their children.

AFTER A FALSE SET

A dentist named Kretzenmayer was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in Germany for showing too much enterprise. He extracted fourteen teeth by force from the mouth of a patient who wanted a tooth stopped, his object being to obtain an order for a 100 000 000.

NOT WELCOME

When you go back to your old home after an absence of ten or fifteen years, don't expect people to be glad to see you. After people haven't seen a man for ten or fifteen years, they don't care much if they never see him again.

"What are you smiling about?" asked Noah.
"I was just thinking," replied Japhet, "how lucky it was we could go ahead and build this ark without waiting for an appropriation from Congress."
