Rowing Machine For Y. M. C. A. Gym.

J. Fred Belyea Will Tour Province in Interests of the Revival of Rowing.

In line with the growing interest in rowing, it is reported that the Y. M. C. A. is negotiating for a rowing machine. It is understood that Hilton Belyea, amateur champion single sculler of the Maritime Provinces, will soon become a member of the Y. M. C. A. and will be prominent in the promotion of rowing in that institution.

It was said yesterday that Water street, West Side, will have two rowing machines next spring, and that winter they will have two four-oared shells built. It was also reported that Harry Belyea, who rebuilt the single shell used by Robert Belyea in the Sheldrake races, will build at least one new boat, probably a four-oared shell, this winter.

J. Fred Belyea stated yesterday that he would tour the province soon in an effort to increase interest in rowing throughout New Brunswick, and that should be able to create sufficient interest in aquatics and get some orders for racing shells, he will establish a factory in the west End.

NO REGATTA.
Owing to the lateness of the season, it has been decided not to hold a regatta here on Thanksgiving Day.

TOO BUSY TO FEAR ASSASSINS. ROOSEVELT EPIGRAMS REVEAL

Epigrams and gems of thought by the late Theodore Roosevelt that have never before become public have been unearthed by Joseph Bucklin Bishop, the great American biographer, in his perusal of the 150,000 letters which Mr. Roosevelt wrote during his public career. Intimate correspondence between the one-time president and Sir George Otto Trevelyan, Bart., O. M., English statesman and author, the friendship covering a period of twenty years, is contained in an article by Mr. Bishop in the October number of Scribner's Magazine.

Mr. Roosevelt's opinion that the average American multi-millionaire is "not a very high type" is but one of the witty comments contained in the passages quoted. In another part Mr. Roosevelt explains that absorption in his work mitigated fear of assassination.

Mr. Bishop's paper, the second of the series, entitled "Roosevelt and Trevelyan," reveals the many-sided Roosevelt as "an insatiable reader of books," his warm sympathy for authors and his broad and profound knowledge of ancient and modern literature. Even amid the cares of the presidency, Mr. Roosevelt, it is shown, maintained a regular correspondence with leaders of literary and intellectual life both in this country and Europe. In Sir George Trevelyan, a nephew of the historian Macaulay, he found a man singularly responsive to his own intellectual tastes and knowledge. This correspondence began when he was Governor of New York and continued until a few months before Mr. Roosevelt's death.

"I certainly would not be willing to hold the presidency at the cost of failing to do the things which make the real reason why I care to hold it at all," he wrote to Sir George on May 28, 1904. "I had much rather be a real president for three years and a half than a figurehead for seven years and a half. I think I can truthfully say that I now have to my credit a sum of substantial achievement—and the rest must take care of itself."

Statements and aphorisms characteristically Rooseveltian abound in this collection of letters. Scintillating gems are here reproduced for the first time in any newspaper:

"A great free people owes to itself and to mankind not to stick into helplessness before the powers of evil."

"Unfortunately for us, small men do most of the historic teaching in the signing of the armistice. He is a member of the New York Cotton Exchange and of the firm of King, Collier and Co., of New York, cotton brokers."

China to Get Shantung.

Prince Fumimaro Kono, a tall, distinguished looking gentleman, is on his way home to Japan. He stated, without equivocation, that Shantung was to be returned to China, but that some sort of guarantees would have to be forthcoming to prevent Germany ever again securing control of the peace conference and the subsequent discussions incidental to the straightening out of the treaty questions.

One of these was a prince, said to be related to the Japanese Emperor, but this phase of his identity could not be confirmed. Another was a baron, at the head of Japan's merchant shipping, with an illuminative story of Japan's future plans for commercial aggression. The voyage was made especially interesting by the fact that the Caronia brought overseas to Halifax more than three thousand Chinese coolies who had performed brilliant tasks behind the lines in France as "labor regiments."

Lieutenant Duncan Collis and his wife, who was Miss Grenier, a society beauty of Baltimore before she married the young British army officer, returned after a few months' sojourn in England, where the lieutenant received his discharge from military service. Their son, Sandy, was with his parents. The Collises are well known socially in Baltimore, Washington and Tuxedo, and will take up their residence at the latter place. The lieutenant was on General White's staff during the British recruiting work in the United States and Canada before the war.

THERE IS DANGER IN TENDER GUMS.

To preserve healthy teeth the ordinary tooth-paste is futile. You must first care for the gums, on which tooth health depends.

How many people think of this? Yet four out of five people over forty suffer from gum-decay, or Pyorrhea (Riggs' Disease).

At first the gums become tender, though actual gum-shrinkage is imperceptible. So, automatically, gums will surely loosen your teeth, and then only a dentist can save them. The tender, bleeding gums of Pyorrhea also act as so many doorways for disease germs to enter the system—infecting joints or tonsils—or causing other ailments.

Forhan's (For the Gums) prevents Pyorrhea, if used in time and used consistently. This means that it prevents gum-shrinkage, gum-tenderness, gum-bleeding. So, automatically, tooth loosening.

Brush your teeth with it. It scientifically cleans the teeth—keeps them white and clean.

If gum shrinkage has already set in, start using Forhan's and consult a dentist immediately for treatment. See and the tubes. All Druggists.

the colleges. The great historian must have the scientific spirit, able to marshal and weigh the facts.

"The presidential office tends to put a premium upon a man's keeping out of trouble rather than upon his accomplishing results. The electorate is very apt to vote with its back to the future."

"I do not think the average American multi-millionaire a very high type and I do not much admire him. On the whole our people are, spiritually as well as materially, on the average better and not worse off than they were one hundred years ago."

"Each man knows where his own shoe pinches. I have had a most vivid realization of what it must have meant to Abraham Lincoln, in the midst of the heart-breaking anxieties of the civil war, to have to take up his time trying to satisfy candidates for postmaster."

"There are numerous and grave evils incident to free government, but after all it is said and done I cannot imagine any real man being willing to live under any other system."

"Benedit Arnold! What a base wretch was shot through the wood of his wild daring! He was at heart a Lucifer, that child of thunder and lover of the battle's hottest heat."

"The more I read Carlyle the more hearty grows my contempt for his profound untruthfulness and for his shrieking declaration of shame!"

"I have never understood public men who get nervous about assassination. (Written shortly after the attack upon his life in Milwaukee in 1912). For the last eleven years I have, of course, understood that I might at any time be shot and probably would be shot some time. I think I have come off uncommonly well. I cannot understand any serious minded public man not being so absorbed in the great and vital questions with which he has to deal as to exclude thoughts of assassination. It is not a question of courage."

Cornel Roosevelt, in what was probably one of his last letters to St. George in 1918, referred to the fact that his four sons and a son-in-law were fighting for the Allies, but that none had ever heard his father's voice. He said he would not for anything "have them anywhere else," he closed:

"I fear we would welcome their return home, each with an arm or a leg off, so that they could feel that they had played their parts manfully—and yet we could have them back!"

TO RETURN SHANTUNG TO CHINA,
SAYS JAPANESE PRINCE ABOARD
THE CARONIA FROM PARIS

New York, Sept. 27.—The 183 sailon passengers on board the Caronia, of the Canadian line, which arrived here yesterday from Liverpool, via Halifax, included the largest number of notables gathered on one ship since bringing comparatively few passengers to New York that has come to this port in some time. Most interesting among the saloon voyagers were a group of Japanese diplomats and commercial experts, who have been in Europe in connection with the peace conference and the subsequent discussions incidental to the straightening out of the treaty questions.

One of these was a prince, said to be related to the Japanese Emperor, but this phase of his identity could not be confirmed. Another was a baron, at the head of Japan's merchant shipping, with an illuminative story of Japan's future plans for commercial aggression. Three thousand coolies, who were disembarked at Halifax were at once entrained at the Nova Scotia port for Vancouver, where they will be placed on board of a vessel bound for China. Under a contract with the Chinese government these hardy workers were sent to France to do manual labor behind the lines, thus relieving thousands of the Allied soldiers for actual fighting. The coolies who were sent back on the Caronia served in this way during the war and were relieved by fresh contingents sent from China since the signing of the armistice.

STRICKEN DUMB,
HE CAN NOW TALK

London, Sept. 28.—There have been many surprises both before and behind the scenes in the London Hippodrome. But nothing more amazing ever happened there than when, a few nights ago, Lewis Havens, a stage hand, uttered the first word he had spoken for three years.

Havens' wife, blessed him with a child about two years ago. The little one had never heard his father's voice. Try to imagine the delight of his wife when Havens embraced the youngster and said, "Kiss your dad."

Havens was in the rifle brigade and suffered a shell shock during a bombardment on the Somme in September, 1916. The shock paralyzed his vocal cords and affected the muscles of his throat. He was stricken dumb. Having been discharged from the army he was restored to his old place on the Hippodrome stage. In stage lingo, he attends to raising and lowering the front curtains and to placing at the sides of the proscenium the cards which bear the names of the next performers. His hearing was not impaired, so it was easy for him to receive orders. He has answered questions by whistling, once for "yes" and twice for "no." He exalted the sympathy of Mrs. Wanda Lyon, one of the principals at the Hippodrome, who sent him to Frank Horner, the chief vaudeur at Sir Frederick Milner's hotel for sufferers from shell shock at Hempstead. Mrs. Lyon told Horner to exercise all his skill on Havens and she would pay the bills. Intense was the astonishment of all on the stage within hearing of Havens when he announced in a clear voice just as he did before he went to the front, "All's ready to begin!" Only Horner was not surprised at this. But, he says, Havens' cure was effected more quickly than he had believed possible. The muscles of Havens' throat were completely paralyzed, and he could not articulate a syllable. "I tried massage and electrical treatment for four days. On the fourth evening I saw him. He surprised me by saying in a low voice, 'I congratulate you.'"

DEMOCRATS ARE NERVOUS OVER TREATY'S CHANCES

Will Advise President to Accept Interpretation Reservations at Least, or Withdraw Treaty from Senate.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 26.—After President Wilson's return to Washington, Sunday, Democratic leaders in the Senate plan to seek an early conference to advise him of the Peace Treaty situation in the Senate, and to discuss a possible compromise over reservation.

Some prominent Democratic senators said, today, they planned to advise the President to carefully consider acceptance of some sort of reservations, interpretative in character at least. It was said to be possible that their advice would extend to recommendations that reservations be accepted, or that the treaty be withdrawn from the Senate, at least temporarily.

These Democratic spokesmen are convinced that the treaty cannot be ratified without reservations of some description. They conceded, however, that there might be a conflict in the Democratic advice given the President in view of the position taken against reservations by Senator Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, the administration leader in the treaty fight.

Mr. Graham took place on Saturday at 57 Lombard street. Mr. Graham has been ill for four months and leaves to mourn beside his wife one son, George and two daughters, Miss Hazel at home, and Mrs. Edward Ring, of this city.
