LOCAL HOUSE OFF TO A GOOD START

Debate on Address Was Brief Premier Fleming and Mr. Tilley Full of Optimism

Have One Claim Against the Dominion Government That Should Put $7,000,000 Into the Provincial Treasury—Crown Lands Sinking Fund to Be Started—Hon. George J. Clarke Re-elected Speaker.

Special to The Telegraph. Fredericton, Feb. 13.—There was a brief and desultory debate in the legislature this afternoon that was new and strange. It cannot be denied that much was accomplished in a little over two hours, but there was so much of that interest lacking that has always characterized the first days of former sessions. The absence of an experienced and alert opposition naturally lent a tameness and sameness to the proceedings that wearied even those who to whom legislative openings are always of interest, and led them to leave the assembly rooms before the speakers were through.

SCOTT PARTY LOST LIVES FOR OTHERS

Two Ill and Injured Members Delayed Return of Expedition

Further Extracts from British Explorer's Diary Showed How After Planting the Union Jack at the Pole, Two of Their Companions Fell Sick, One After Another, and They Had to Be Cared For—Amundsen and Englishman Hit the Coveted Goal Half a Mile Apart.

(Copyrighted in the United Kingdom by the Central News Limited, London. Registered in the Department of Agriculture, Quebec and Ontario Morning Paper Section.) (Special Cable to Central News, Ltd.) Lyttelton, New Zealand, Feb. 13.—The following is the official account of the doings of the British Antarctic expedition of 1910, compiled by Commander Evans from Captain Scott's personal diary and the official records of the expedition:

On January 4, 1912, Commander Evans left Captain Scott and his four companions to continue the journey to the pole. Captain Scott's party marched an average of twelve miles a day all the way to the pole and they reached the pole on January 17, about 150 statute miles from the spot where Commander Evans turned back.

The first day at the pole was cloudy with a mock sun. The second day, Jan. 18, was clear, and the sun visible. Sightings were taken for which purpose Scott used a four inch theodolite. Captain Amundsen used a sextant with an artificial horizon. The fixing of the pole by the two explorers differed by only half a mile, practically locating the same spot.

Planted Union Jack at Pole. Scott's observations gave latitude 89 degrees, 59' 13" minutes. The party marched the extra half-mile, taking with them their sledges and there planted the Union Jack in latitude 90. They had previously picked up Norwegian dog tracks and they followed these to the Norwegian camp which was situated about three miles from the pole. The track of the Norwegian dogs was obliterated by drifts and intervals.

The party found all the records and the gear left by Amundsen's party from two directions marked at the pole gave evidence of a slight blizzard since Amundsen reached the tent. The temperature at the pole was about 20 below zero. The surface, unlike that of the barrier, was soft, no crust. It was found from snow collected from any depth that on melting it was also unlike the barrier snow, and gave very little water.
