

Centre offers career search aids

In our last article, we talked about skill-development seminars at the Canada Employment Centre, where you can learn the skills necessary to prepare a resume and market your services to prospective employers. Today we'd like to mention a few free publications that are available to further assist you in your research for a job after graduation.

Careers for Graduates 1982 is published by Development Publications Ltd. and lists a number of companies and organizations that require graduates, along with a business reply card you can use to obtain further information from each organization.

Careers and the Job Market, published by The Financial Post, contains articles on such subjects as the Allmand Report on employment opportunities in the '80s, computer sales jobs, the hospitality industry and job search techniques. Like all the magazines listed in this article, there are also several advertisements placed by companies looking for inquiries from graduating students.

Canadian Campus Careers, is published by Whitshed Publishing Ltd. In addition to several ads, there are articles on careers in marketing, merchandising and selling, accountancy, communications and manufacturing plus profiles of Canada's leading companies with career opportunities for graduates. Career Planning Annual 1981-1982, is published by the University and College Placement Association which is an organization comprised of university placement officers and employers of graduates. This year's edition contains articles entitled "Planning for your Future", "Assessing your Skills", "Developing your Career Objective", "Expanding your Contacts" and many others, plus the usual recruitment ads.

All of these publications are available free of charge at the Canada Employment Centre on Campus, N108 Ross. While in our office you can also sign up for our free skill-development seminars on resumes, job search and interviews. For further information call 667-3761 and ask for John Wilton or Rick Kully.
