

trines remain like the stars, far above, fixed and shining forever. Let Christians think less of the little things about which they differ, and far more about the great things in which they are as one. Neither the Church of England nor the Church of Scotland is our Saviour. Christ alone is. They may pass away—He remains. They exist not for themselves, but in order to lead to Jesus. The candlestick is preserved, not for itself, but for its light. Days draw near in which men shall see yet more clearly, that living, heartfelt love, to Christ and to one another for Christ's sake, is Christianity; and that so loving and so acting, we shall have salvation and happiness, whether we worship at Crathie or at Canterbury.

" Look
for

" ALL
To our
transgr
to the
ners.
follows
hall. a
congre
nature
tells us
In this
holines
helples
or pow
are vic
case is in the
I have
unto n
must s
accent
the lon
These
possib
more,
it is o
will,
guage