A Positive Cure For Rheumatism

For many years, both during Father Morrissy's lifetime and since he passed away, his No. 7 Tablets have been curing many of the worst cases of rheumatism in Eastern Canada.

During his lifetime it became the custom, when people could not get relief from other sources, to consult Father Morrissy, and few indeed did so in vain. His standard prescription came to be called and it can now be procured from any druggist or dealer in medicine.

Father Morrissy's No. 7 Tablets

No. 7 Tablets act directly on the kidneys, stimulating them so that they can remove from the blood all the Uric Acid, which alone causes the rheumatism. Two or three weeks' treatment cures ordinary cases, while with the worst chronic cases it seldom takes more than three or four boxes of No. 7 Tablets to thoroughly eradicate the rheumatism from the system.

In every case, right from the start, the sufferer gets relief from the torturing pains and aches.

We would be glad to refer you to one-time rheumatism, now well through taking Father Morrissy's No. 7 Tablets. 108

My Preference.

It's so much easier to be kind than rich, and so much better, too. That I would rather put my mind to making friends the whole year through.

Then making money as I go. And hoarding yellow gold away; For him who seeks the yellow stuff, Life's sweetness is the poison, too. And though he wins his fortune great, He sees the good he'd like to do.

It's so much easier to be kind than rich, that I am sure that we should rather give than hoard. My grateful hearts and anxious souls are ever yours.

Yours, etc.,
John Gaythorne.

The Wooing of Nesta.

"I struck on a ripping girl last night," said Bird, leaning over to Dalrymple, who was taking out his balance.

"Where, Dicky?" asked Dalrymple. "At a dancing class my sister attends. It was an open affair at the end of the course—Parents and friends invited."

"Did you get an introduction?" "No; worse luck. She was so keen on dancing that I only got the name, Nesta Gaythorne. Her dad is a big job in shipping. What would you do? The jolly class is over for the season now."

Dalrymple thought awhile. "I don't think you dare do it, Dicky; but I should hold introductions and write her—then see how she took it."

"Oh, Dimple, she would think me horribly ill-bred." "Rata! She may pretend to be shocked, but girls like unconventionality in their love affairs. Besides, he knows your sister."

Bird shook his head doubtfully and returned to his daybook, but in the afternoon he handed Dalrymple a paper and said: "Will that do?"

"Dear Miss Gaythorne,"—he ran— "I have excuse my writing to you, but seeing you at the Misses Prim's dancing exhibition last night, I tried hard to get an introduction, but in vain. Still, you know my sister, if you are not offended with me for writing, please say where and when I could see you."

Yours very sincerely,
Richard Bird.

"Beautiful!" said Dalrymple, returning the paper. "It is to the point while it doesn't give the show away. Bird blushed with pleasure. "I'll write it out nicely and post it tonight," he said.

For once Dalrymple spent the greater part of the evening in his room. The task on which he was engaged seemed to afford him great pleasure for each time he lit his pipe he chuckled gleefully. Next day he asked the girl in the tobacconist's shop to copy out a letter for him.

The following morning Bird, wearing with excitement, took Dalrymple into the strong room and closed the door. "Read that," he said producing a letter.

"Dear Mr Bird," Dalrymple read. "I was surprised to receive your letter, and I think it very daring of you to write me without being introduced. As you say, however, I do know your dear sister, so why should we remain strangers? I saw you on Monday evening and thought—what, I shall not say. I can believe that you really noticed me among so many girls, and I dare not arrange a meeting until I am sure you really care for me."

Yours very truly,
Nesta Gaythorne.

"By Jove, Dicky, you've landed her!" said Dalrymple. "On Monday Bird entered looking black as thunder."

"What's up, Dicky?" asked Dalrymple. "Don't speak to me, lest I may some thing I'll be sorry for later. I've had my eyes opened, that's all, and I'm tempted to write the first letter, and showed him the forged replies he had received. "Your daughter will doubtless, have shown you the letter I sent in response to this last one."

"Then came your letter, sir, like a thunderbolt. You can imagine my feelings. I felt I must come here to explain, but it cost me a good deal to do so."

Knighthood.

The press, without respect to political party preferences, has wondered about some of the royal honours bestowed at the coronation. The note of interrogation has been plain in nearly every reference to at least one of the Canadian Knighthoods. Nobody seems to know why it is. And probably the wherefore and the wisdom of others of the honours have been questioned. Distinguished public service is supposed to be the reason for their bestowment, and when nobody is able to recall the service the public is naturally a little puzzled.

The majority of the Canadians who since Confederation have received some form of royal recognition are some worthy public service to their credit—though not all. There is, however, a question about the wisdom of conferring any of the titles—especially those fairly won and worthily worn by Canadians. For ourselves, we have always felt that old-world titles do not well fit new world men and conditions. Canada is a democratic country—democratic to the hilt,—to use an oft quoted phrase,—and should remain so. The creation of an aristocracy here cannot be any advantage to the country. Sir this and Lord that may behave very well, and be very much in sympathy with the people notwithstanding their high sounding titles, but it is likely that a lot of people may foolishly fancy themselves superior beings because descended from or in some way related to titled men. We could wish that every Canadian offered an old world title would do as did Alexander MacKenzie and others—decline it. Let the Sires and Lords, with all their distinctions, etc., which attach to the possession of such titles, be confined to the land in which they originated. The 'Beyond the Seas,' dominions of the Empire would be better off without such things.—Maritime Baptist.

A recent estimate of the amount of energy derived from Niagara Falls places it at 273,140 horse power, divided in its applications as follows: Electro chemical industries, 126,000; railway service, 56,200; lighting, 36,400; various industrial purposes, 54,540. The total energy of the falls is estimated at 5,000,000 horse-power, so that not much more than 5 per cent is at present utilized.

Forest Wealth of Canada.

The central line of the forest belt of the Dominion may be described as starting from the vicinity of the Straits of Belle Isle and following a west-south-westerly course till it passes to the south of James Bay; then turning northwest it follows this course all the way to the border of Alaska.

The average breadth of this belt, on the basis of measurements at ten almost equal intervals is 700 miles, giving the approximate area of the northern forests, in which the black and white spruces are the prevailing trees, of 2,500,000 square miles. Bearing in mind that the great bulk of the paper consumed in the world is made from spruce wood, Canada has in the area mentioned the raw material to enable her to become the centre of the world's supply of paper. This subject will be reverted to later. For the moment some figures relative to the present values of Canada's forest crop are worthy of notice.

July Rod and Gun.

'Following the Fur Trails' is a story of the far North of interest to every Canadian, opens the July number of 'Rod and Gun in Canada,' published by W. J. Taylor Ltd., Woodstock, Ont. In this story Mr. R. J. Fraser, who is engaged on the Hydrographic Survey, relates interesting incidents of the eight months' stay of the party engaged in survey work in the neighbourhood of Hudson Bay and tells of an attack upon the Camp of Polar bears. He gives particulars of the fine trapping in which the party engaged and the excellent results of this portion of the work. The strenuous outward journey from Fort Nelson to Winnipeg supplies excellent reading. There is much variety in the other stories, both fishermen and hunters receiving due attention, and stories and experiences from the far East as well as from the far West are included. They hunt on horse-back in British Columbia showing the difference in the conditions between those prevailing in that province and those existing in Eastern and Central Canada. There is much more of interest to every sportsman in this number. It should be found in every summer camp, no pleasure companion for whiling away a pleasant hour is needed.

Happiest Girl in Lincoln.

THE PATIENT BRAIN

A tireless worker so long as supplied with Rich, red blood. The brain is one of the most patient and industrious organs of the body. It can be induced, by good treatment, to perform prodigies of work. But it is sensitive and will not brook abuse. It responds to the lash at first, but if the lash is laid on too hard it balks. Nervous trouble is generally brain trouble, and so suffering is to be compared to mental suffering, with the accompanying dread, suspicion and melancholy.

One-fifth of the blood in the human body is consumed by the brain so make the blood rich and red by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and you will overcome diseases of the nerves. Headaches will disappear, irritability will go, digestion will improve, and weakness and despondency will give place to new hope and courage, new vigor and energy.

Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Food will enable you to avoid such extreme nervous trouble as prostration and paralysis. 60 cents a box, 6 boxes for $3.50; all mail orders, to Edmonds, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Keep Minard's Liniment in the house.

RAGING HEADACHE STOPPED AT ONCE

When He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

STANLEY, Ont., Sept. 23rd, 1910. "You certainly have the Greatest discovered Headache Cure in the world. Before "Fruit-a-tives" came before the public, I suffered tortures from Headaches caused by Stomach Disorders. "One of your travellers called on me when I had one of my raging headaches and had my head almost raw from external applications. "I hated to see any person coming into the store (much less a commercial traveller) and I told him very curtly that I had no headache cure."

"I did so, with what I would call amazing results. They completely cured me and since then (nearly six years ago) it is only necessary for me to take one occasionally to preserve me in my present good health. I was 55 years old yesterday and have been a general store keeper at the above address for twenty-five years."

Canada's High Commissioner.

The knowledge that the increasing burden of his years rendered inevitable the early retirement of Lord Strathcona from the onerous duties of High Commissioner has not in any degree lessened the general regret at the announcement made last week. Sir Donald brought to this position high qualifications and a wide experience in business and public life. His character has been above reproach. He did not make his wealth in politics, and he has freely spent his money for the public good. There is no doubt that his retirement will be a matter to find a worthy successor to one who has so thoroughly enjoyed the confidence of both the great political parties of Canada. The position of High Commissioner in London should be raised above all partisan feeling and influence, and its occupant should be a man who commands the respect and confidence of men of all parties. He must be a man whose private and public life has been free from scandal and at the mention of whose name no Canadian need have occasion to blush. No government can afford to make use of this high office merely to shelter a politician who is no longer of any use to the party, much less one whose record will not bear the closest investigation. We have no doubt that in the appointment of Lord Strathcona's successor great care will be taken to sustain the honor and the fair name of Canada.—Presbyterian Witness.

Learn to Forget.

To forget—that is what we need, just to forget.—All the petty annoyances, all the vexing irritations, all the mean words, all the unkind acts, the deep wrongs, the bitter disappointments—just let them go, don't hang on to them. Learn to forget. Make a study of it. Practice it. Become an expert at forgetting. Train the faculty of the mind until it is virtile. Then the memory will have fewer things to remember, and it will become quick and alert in remembering. It will not be cumbered with disagreeable things and all its attentions will be given to the beautiful thing, to the worth-while things. No matter what business you are pursuing, no matter what literary subjects you are studying, no matter what scientific problems you are trying to solve, take up the studying of forgetting. The art of forgetting will add lustre to all your literary, business or scientific attainments, and it will add measure to health of mind and body.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.
