A Dipatheria Scare. There is no doubt but that diphtheria in worst form is very prevalent in many citing small towns. At the same time, that for and small towns. At the same time, that fact is no reason for frightening people out of their wits, with every new case of sore throat. Even ulcerated sore throat is bad enough, and the person would have that for fun. Ye hundreds of persons are said to have had diphtheria who only had a severe sore throat The form of sore throat which often passes for diphtherite is what old need and control of the persons are throat which of the passes for the passes The form of sore throat which often passes for diphtheretic is what old people call quinsy. "Putrid sore throat," known long before diphtheria, was probably a form of diphtheria, and very dangerous. An old hospital utree in Boston, says: "Itain't the clear cold of winter that lays people up with colds, catarrh, and sore throats, and lays the children low with diphtheria; it's the soft, pleasant, alternating with the wet, slushy days." This is very true, and a plalms why those troubles are so preyalent this unusually soft rainy, winter; the air, in fact, is laden with poisonous vapors. The first symptoms of true diphtheria are much like those of a heavy cold on the lungs. There is fever, some stupor, and difficulty in breathing. Very sharp pains are often felt in the neck glands, just below the ear. The tongae is coated, the throat and toneils inflamed, little white spots, which increase and turn to a dirty yellow or brown color next-appear, and a peculiar odor totally unlike ulcerated sore throat is noticeable. If the disease is of the black or malignant type nothing but a miracle can restore the patients in their former good health. MOCH UPS AND DOWNS OF A

GIRL IN THE CITY OF

I want to tell you something I heard as I came from 'Partners' the other night. About 40 years ago a Mrs. Monroe, a childless widow with a large fortune, took a house in Curzon street for the season, and wanting a companion, be-thought her of her niece Jessie, the eldest daughter of a clergyman in Scotland, a young lady only just out. The girl was written for, came and proved a great success, for she was an excellent dancer, exceedingly pretty and blessed with a good digestion and consequently with a good temper. It was after the May drawing room at which she had May drawing room, at which she had been presented at the ball at S. House, that Captain-shall we call him Nemo ?meeting her for the first time, fell des-perately in love before the end of the So St. James, Piccadilly, was filled with the elite to view the ceremony one early autumn morning, and Miss Jessie in lent exercise. There is a great dane wedding breakfast, afterwards, in a ated. It is not so great with farm-flounced gown and round-curtained are bornes whose work is more are flounced gown and round-curtained bonnet, going with her bridegroom for their honeymoon to the Italian lakes. Captain Nemo was a sailor, and soon had to start with his ship for a cruise of fifteen months. I think there was a talk of his wife joining him, but the station selected was an unhealthy one, so after all she re-mained in England with her aunt to look after her. Letters were to be very regular, and the time would soon pass.

When the letters were all written and in mind the fact that the stomach of a lemon, cut off one end, put the finereceived, and the very last of the 15 a horse will contain only from twelve ger in and the longer it is kept there months had dragged itself away, the day arrived on which Jessie was the neether husband at the railway station. No one was on the platform but Mrs. Morroe help herself as is the Girton-trained girl of the day, with her practical common sense, and it became more difficult for her to keep her head above water. Within the last ten years she has found occupation, however; and if you like to come with me some afternoon I can show you where a small spare woman in neat bonnet and shawl, with fine China-blue eyes and lint-white hair, diligently sweeps a crossing in the very heart of her old neighborhood; which small woman is Mrs. Monroe's niece, the girl who was presented to the Queen, who danced at S. House, who was married at St. James, Piccadilly, and had an Italian honeymoon. She refuses all help now from any one.—London Correspondence Toronto Week.

But the place above all be shut out from love." others wherea man or woman should know how to conduct themselves with pro-priety is at home. The greater portion of every person's social life is spent at home, and, therefore, it is a logical deduction of learning very early in life to gain the great secret of home happiness is the absolute repression of temper. There are much more eloquent and effective ways of expressing disapproval, than by an outburst of angry words. If your brother leaves the door open, never tell him of it. Go and close it without a word. If you tell him of it, it sends a nervous quiver through his frame that will culminate in a burst of temper expression. Walker had the way of the putting of the property will culminate in a burst of temper ex-

A housewife's food is usually good, and if the "gude man" dislikes it he may be practically sure his dislike arises from his own pampered taste. But if there is any particular dish against which his stomach rebels, he will show true domestic philesophy and shrewdness by not mentioning it. The hint will be sufficiently broad if he simply refrains from it. No dish will be cooked many times in succession that is not eaten.

If I were a boy again I wou'd demand of mysel' more courtesy toward my companions and friend. Indeed, I would rigorously exact it of mysel toward strangers as well. The smallest courtesies interspersed along the rough road of life, are like the little English sparrows now single to us all. Winter long, and

"IF I WERE A BOY."

If I were a boy again I would look on the bright side of everything for almost everything has a cheerful side. Life is very much like a mitror; if you smile upon it, it smiles back again on you, and if you frown and look doubtful upon it, you will be sure to get a similar look in return. The Favorite Medicine for Throat and Lung Diffi-culties has long been, and still is, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, and Asthma; soothes irritation of the Larynx and Fauces; strengthens the Vocal Organs; allays soreness of the Lungs; prevents Consumption, and, even in advanced stages of that disease, relieves Coughing and induces Sleep. There is no other preparation for diseases of the throat and lungs to be compared with this remedy. "My wife had a distressing cough, ith pains in the side and breast. We with pains in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has cured her.
