

Watch Stolen.

Crooks seemed to have had special designs on schoolbags at Goodridge's yesterday. Mr. Edward Trainor, son of Wm. Trainor of the Chr. Mayflower, laying there, was called to another schooner near for a few minutes about 4 p.m. yesterday and on returning found that his watch and chain, which he had left on the cabin table, had vanished. He does not know who stole the ticker.

Uncle Walt THE POET PHILOSOPHER.

I see the aviators sail o'erhead; like birds they ride the gale. And when they to the earth descend I throw them poses without end, and I embrace them till they're hurt, and whoop and yell and tear my shirt. But when my fervor dies away, I lean against my RIANISM self and say: "The man who mows a weedy place is doing more to help the race; the worker makes the planet smile—I'll go and whoop for him a while." I see the wrestlers, lithe and strong, engage in struggles fierce and long; I marvel at their mighty throws, and shriek with cockadoodledeos when one climbs on another's frame and breaks his neck and wins the game. But when the wrestling match is over, and I go toddling to my door, I mutter to myself at length: "It was a fearful waste of strength! The vim those athletes threw away would bale a hundred tons of hay! To-morrow I shall go and yell for some one who has dug a well! The men who work with picks or saws are most deserving of applause!"

An Officer Assaulted.

Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock two Scotch stokers who were half seas over appeared in Steer's Cove and attempted to take his whip from teamster Furlong, who is quite a young chap. Furlong resisted this, and having one or two drinks taken himself, bowled over one of the canny Scots when he found that Const. Squibb had placed him under arrest. He and the officer had a struggle until the prisoner repeatedly hit the officer and soon his face was deluged in blood. The officer would not have secured the prisoner but for the aid of Mr. Patrick Neville, a truckman and athlete, who soon had him manacled, when Squibb, whose face was badly cut, had him driven to the station. The stokers later cut up lively and were arrested. They resisted violently, and one attempted to hit a policeman with a bottle of rum over the head, but was soon handcuffed. These incidents drew a big crowd.

Mr. English Writes Again.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—Up to the present time I have confined my remarks mainly to geological and mineralogical errors in "Calliban." I intend after just a few more words on these subjects to turn my attention to other chapters of the book, geographical and economical. As for grammatical errors they abound, one may find gems of tautology on many of the pages of "Calliban." Here are a couple of samples: (p. 116) "Arable areas not exceeded by any others in the island; (p. 117) "Nowhere else in the island is there any thing like the quantity of pink timber to be met with here"; on page 108 we are told that all the iron ore needed for the furnaces at Sydney come from Bell Island. This is not correct, for Newfoundland ore contains too high percentage of phosphorus for the making of certain grades of steel, as for instance, Bessemer steel. Sydney imports Spanish and Cuban ores as well as Newfoundland ores. Mr. McGrath says there is undoubtedly vast mineral wealth in this country. I hope he is right, but his method of arriving at that cheerful conclusion is not very logical or convincing. He says that most of Canada's mineral wealth is found in the Laurentian group of rocks, and that there are large areas of the series in this country, therefore the mineral wealth must of course be there also. Let us look over this. We find that the Laurentian group of Canada is at the top or near the top of the Lower Silurian system, and is represented mainly by sedimentary rocks. According to Mr. McGrath those rocks are represented in Newfoundland by serpentine and associated rocks. Mr. McGrath should read modern works. Should he do this he will find that a great deal of Canada's mineral wealth is derived from Huronian rocks, notably the rich silver, nickel and Cobalt mines of Sudbury and Lake Lemiscamingue, and the great copper mines of Lake Superior, not to mention the mineral wealth of the Yukon which is found in tertiary rocks, etc. Mr. McGrath's reasoning is a bit at fault, I think. So much for the minerals.

WILL ACT AS PURSER.—Mr. A. Brenner, of Bowring's Coastal Office, will leave to-day to join the S. S. Portia as purser till she reaches here.

"A penny saved is a penny got," and many are the pennies and pence that can be saved by those who are lucky enough to buy at the Great Two Weeks' Sale of A. & S. Rodgers.—adv.

EMPIRE LODGE.—The officers for the coming year will be elected at a meeting to-night in Oddfellow's Hall, at 9 o'clock. All the members are expected to attend.

ANOTHER WEDDING.—The wedding of Mr. H. Crossman, chief steward of the S. S. Portia, and Miss Edwards, of the South Side, will take place Thursday afternoon.

VER LITTLE SNOW.—The train bands by the express yesterday say that very little snow is reported along the line and that plows are not necessary except in a few places.

Now let us see what this wonderful book has to say about farming, fishing, etc. The first thing which takes our notice on page 116 is the distinction made by Mr. McGrath between potatoes and roots. Apparently Mr. McGrath does not know that a potato is a root. He says "the soil produces roots, potatoes, grass and other crops." I suppose he blames Mr. Downey for this mistake. Such mistakes one could well overlook were they not so numerous, but occurring as they do so numerous they form a nauseating dose. When Mr. McGrath speaks of the fisheries he commits mistakes that it is hard to find excuse for. For instance, a stranger might be led to believe that the "Grand Bank" is the only one frequented by our fishermen, were he guided by this wonderful book. On page 130 we read: "The bank fishery is somewhat like the North Sea fishery of the Mother Country. It is pursued by staunch vessels which cruise on 'the Grand Banks' between May and October." Can Mr. McGrath be ignorant of the existence of other banks, such as St. Pierre Bank, Georges Bank, etc. This is lamentable ignorance on the part of one who claims to know so much. He says the vessels are termed "bankers" and evidently thinks the term an incorrect one, for a little further on he calls them bankmen. Speaking of the mode of fishing on the banks, the author or compiler (I know not what to call him) shows that his source of information is not very reliable. He does not know that the fishermen make "two sets" of their trawls per day. They "haul and set" in the morning, row back to the ship, put their catch on deck, go below for a "ding up" and then are off again to "haul and set." Pity Mr. McGrath did not come to me for help, when making up his astounding book. Fronting page 129 is a picture showing the method of removing the fat from a seal pelt. The method is alright, it is done by means of a knife, but the picture conveys the impression that two men are needed, (I suppose Mr. McGrath would call them "sklmen," for he calls the men who kill the seals, "seal-men"), one to hold the skin whilst the other cuts off the fat. It may be that to skin a very large pelt two men are needed, I have never seen it. Certain it is that most of the "sculps" are skinned by one man, with usually a boy or man to put them on the skinning table for him. It is a one man's job. To-morrow I will take up or er pages to see what gems they contain.

A Tremendous Sea Sweeps

Decks of French Line Steamer, Carrying Four Men Overboard, While Three Others Were Stretched Unconscious.

New York, Nov. 28.—A tremendous sea, which hammered the bow and swept the decks of the Fabre Line steamship Santa Anna, caused the death of four seamen and the serious injury of three others. News of the disaster was brought to port when the liner arrived to-day from Marseilles and Naples.

The ship's passage as a whole was stormy and unpleasant, but it was not until last Thursday that the heaviest sea was encountered, described by Capt. Pavri as the most terrific he ever encountered. A great mass of water rose like a wall before the vessel, then fell with crushing force upon the decks and sweeping over the forward part of the ship carried seamen Burnard, Hartly, Caliste and Quirillo off the decks like cork. Three others were stretched out unconscious on the decks.

The impact of the wall of water had nearly stopped the ship. The engines were reversed quickly, life buoys were thrown out promptly, and, as the vessel neared the spot where the four had been swept into the sea, all hands on board were overjoyed to see them floating on the buoys. The sea was so violent, however, that three of them sank relinquished their hold and sank. Of the injured on board, it was found that Seaman Fozzel's spine was broken, and he died two days later.

Cure for Drunkenness.

A Magic Lantern Showed a Drunkard in the Hands of the Devil.

An interesting story telling of a novel cure for drunkenness comes from a village on the Bober. A newly-married Czech workman gave way to drink, and created unseemly disturbances in the house in which he lived. All efforts to induce him to give up the habit were in vain. Even corporal punishment administered by a person of whom he stood in awe had no effect. A little boy in the house in which he lived had a magic lantern given to him on his birthday, and it occurred to one of the tenants that the present might be utilized in curing the drunkard, who was known to be of a superstitious character.

Among the pictures shown by the lantern was one representing a drunkard in the hands of the devil. The drunkard was supposed to be on his way to the place of torment. The man came home drunk as usual one night, and on reaching his door, was thrown into a state of consternation on seeing this awful picture. He immediately sank on his knees and began to pray to the apparition for forgiveness. He promised there and then that he would give up all connection "with the other devil." He has kept his word.

Fr. Vaughan Praised.

King George and Queen Mary at Boston.

Boston, Nov. 28.—More than 3,000 people thronged the Church of the Immaculate Conception last evening to hear Rev. Fr. Bernard Vaughan, S. J., in the final sermon of his series in Boston.

When the preacher mounted the pulpit he commented on the reports that he had read in some of the papers in this country concerning the King and Queen of England, and declared that he could not allow them to pass without protest.

Fr. Vaughan maintained that he did not think there had sat on the throne of England sovereigns more esteemed and revered than were King George and Queen Mary. They had both won their way by lives consecrated to duty among all sections of the community, and he could not speak too highly of them.
