Girl Princess Has 3 Weddings MARRIED A BOY MULLIONAIRE.

The marriage of the 18-year-old American millionaire Mr. William Leeds, a son of Princess Christopher of Greece, and the 17-year-old Russian Princess Xenia, took place in Paris today, says the Daily Mail's Press Correspondent on Oct. 9. The civil ceremony was performed by the Mayor of the First Arrondissement of Paris yesterday, and in handing the bride a copy of the register he informed her that she would now become plain Mrs. The first of the two religious geremonies took place at the American Church of the Holy Trinity. Princess Xenia drove to the church with her mother, the Grand Duchess Marie. widow of the Grand Duke George Michailovitch of Russia who was killed two years ago at Petrograd. The ceremony was strictly private.

There was no procession and only the two blonde children of Princess George of Greece followed the bride to the alter bearing her brocaded velvet train. Her dress was of soft white ninon, very simply made; her veil of white tulle edged with fine Alencon lace and fastened with a wreath of orange flowers. She carried a sheaf of white lillies and wore a chain of diamond links, the present of her mother.

The New Terror.

O. Henry's publishers, Doubleday, Page, and Co., recently received a letter addressed in their care to Mr. Henry.

The letter, from the President of a Western bank, read as follows:-"Dear Mr. O. Henry,-Will you do a courtesy and kindness for a sweet winsome baby, with blue eyes and chubby fists? She is my daughter, born Angust twenty-sixth, nineteen-twenty. I am collecting a book of autographs of the prominent public men of the day, which she may have and treasure when she grows to maturity. Will you be so gracious as to sign your name and title or occupation, with date, on enclosed card, and mail in enclosed envelope? "My object is unselfish and not mercenary, and the above letter-head exhibits my standing and responsibility. "Thanking you, with grateful heart." Enclosed was a neat little card efficiently designed with a line for the autographer's name, address, business or occupation. The publishers regret that they are unable to forward the letter, but since his death some ten year ago they have had no communica-

The Naming

of Paria, on the coast of Venezuela, during his third voyage, caught a glimpse for the first time of the mainland of the Western Hemisphere. He was ill with gout and as his eyes troubled him he did not go ashore: but as he lay in his cahin his mind was full of great imaginings. He was convinced that he had discovered the Garden of Eden. At the first opportunity says Sir Prederick Treves in the Cradle of the Deep, he dispatched a messenger to Spain, announcing the great news. One effect of the despatch was to cause an old comrade, Alonso de Ojeda, to set out at once for the new land. He did not go with a hallowed wish to gaze upon the tree of life, but to make money; for Columbus had said that pearls were to be found in the region, and perhaps seeds of the apple that Eve had eaten. With Ojeda sailed Amerigo Vespucci. Skirting the coast of the mainland upon their arrival in the gulf, they reached a placid bay where the natives had built their huts on piling in the water. The little villiage reminded Vespucci of Venice; so they called the place Venezuela, or Little Venice, and the name gradually came to be applied not merely to the village but to the whole region and became the name of the

Suicide for an Old Mare

An extraordinary case of suicide is reported from Ronceveaux, France. Madame Brochard, aged over fifty, a farmer in the district, possessed an old mare to which she was greatly attached. The mare met with a serious accident, and there was no alternative to killing her. Madame Brochard could not reconcile herself to the idea of the loss of her favorite. She led her to the bank of the River Essonne, tied herself to the mare with a rope, to the end of which she attached a heavy stone. Dragging the animal with her she jumped into the water, Both were drowned.
