Temperance's Suggestions.

A letter from "Temperance," which appears in another column, was accompanied by a note asking if we could give it publication.

The Telegram is ready to publish the views of either side in a controversy of a public nature, provided the opinions expressed are logical, consistent and free from abuse. It is not our inclination or intention to refuse to one the privilege that we allow to another, and in the same manner the attitude which we take on a question is decided to the best of our ability on its merits from a public standpoint.

The view which "Temperance" expresses of the Manifesto, so far as it refers to the Prohibition Act, is not in accordance with facts, and to claim that the intention of the Party was not clearly stated in the document, which was given the fullest publicity, can only mean that "Temperance" closed his eyes at the time to the meaning of the paragraph.

The communication cannot be said to be a defence of the principle of prohibition, but its tone suggests an inclination to defer definite action, and to permit the distribution of liquors, but in such a manner as would only affect the quantity.

These are the faults which in our opinion must be found with those who have expressed their opposition to the proposed measure, and it can only be concluded that the experiences of the country during the last seven years have convinced them that Prohibition as a principle, sound as it may appear in theory, fails signally when attempts are made to put it into practice. It has provided rich soil for a harvest of evils far more noxious than those which it was supposed to cure, and when a country like the United States has been unable to suppress them with all the elaborate machinery which she possesses for that purpose, it is surely futile to contend that Newfoundland has failed through indifference or apathy on the part of the authorities.

Communications Must Be Signed

The communication, signed Outport Man, which was withheld on Saturday, appears in this issue accompanied by another message with which the author has forwarded his name. For the information of correspondents dealing with this question, we wish to state that in future the writer must be ready to have his comments appear over his own signature.

City Business Men Visit Silver Cliff Mines

The party of business men from the city went out by special train on Friday on a visit to Silver Cliff mines returned to the city at 10 p.m. Saturday delighted with the trip and the evidence of the prosperity which has come to Argentina since the company organized in 1922 by Mr. W. A. MacKay started operations at Silver Cliff. The party arrived at Argentina at 2.30 a.m. on Saturday, and a few hours later proceeded by motor bus to the workings accompanied by Mr. MacKay and A. B. Climas, the mining engineer whose efforts since taking charge in November last year have resulted in a great speeding up of operations.

At the present time Mr. Climas is engaged in the sinking of a shaft measuring 10.7 x 4.3, so as to open up the continuation of the ore in depth. Mr. Climas found the continuation of the first ore shoot to be approximately 200 feet in length, and then after passing through about 25 feet of barren lode material he picked up a second ore shoot and it is on this ore shoot that the drive is being continued. Up to the present the drive has been run approximately 50 feet with every indication of lateral continuation of the ore body.

He is also engaged in the sinking of a shaft so as to find out the position of this ore shoot in the Camp Adit which is another drift 40 feet below the MacKay level, and which has to be driven approximately a further 100 feet to reach the position of the new winze on the MacKay level. Mr. Climas has demonstrated that it is possible to treat 50 tons of ore per day, and working on a 10 p.c. ore the amount of concentration produced per day will be 10 tons.

During 1923 the question of power for the mine presented a serious problem to the Directors, and after considering several possible schemes the installation of a 75 H.P. oil burning engine was decided upon, and it has been upon this source of power that the whole operations of the Silver Cliff Mine has been dependent. Now, however, another advance is to take place, and within the next eight weeks the United Towns Electric Co., Ltd. will have their transmission lines on the spot, and all operations will be carried on by electricity, and working costs as compared with the oil engine will be materially reduced. Practically all the work to date has been confined to a very small section of the property, but during the past two or three months additional veins have been discovered on other parts of the property and those are being prospected as rapidly as funds will permit.

Some of these veins show promise of producing lead ore of equal value to that now being found in the MacKay lode. Even with the very limited amount of development work that has been accomplished it is estimated that there is approximately 4000 tons of milling ore ready to be taken to the concentrators, and as the sinking and driving proceeds this quantity will rapidly increase. About 1000 tons of ore have already been milled, this having been almost entirely taken out merely in the process of development. When sufficient ore is developed to warrant it the management aims at gradually increasing the capacity of the present mill, and eventually expects to be processing about 200 tons of ore per day.

After partaking of luncheon the party again boarded the motor bus and proceeded to Argentina to join the train for home. A feature of Silver Cliff which greatly impressed the visitors is the sanitary arrangements. Refuse or dirt of any description is not allowed to accumulate near the camp.

Commissioner Walker Declines to Conduct Enquiry.

The Prime Minister has received a communication from Mr. T. Hollis Walker, K.C., in reply to a request that he should preside over the proposed investigations. While it will generally be regretted that Mr. Walker is unable to accept the invitation, there will be full concurrence with the reasons which he gives for declining and which are explained so clearly and unambiguously. The letter reads as follows:

The Barr,
 Burke's Road,
 Beausfield,
 Sunday, 27th July, 1924.

Dear Mr. Monroe,
 I have already expressed the view, which I still entertain, that I am not a suitable person to conduct the contemplated enquiry. If it had been possible to have extended the original commission so that I could have dealt with the other matters before publishing any report, the position would have been different; but I have sent out findings, which involve definite and serious condemnation of individuals whose conduct and credit may at any moment come under review again. I do not doubt my capacity to be impartial notwithstanding the past, but the appearance of possible bias may be nearly as harmful as the reality, and if I should find it necessary again to decide against those or any of those whom I have discredited, it would be said that I came to the investigation charged with preconceived notions and prejudiced by opinions so firmly held and already so strongly expressed.

It is essential that the hearing should be fair and seem fair to all who may be implicated; we should never try a man before the same jury who had convicted him on a previous occasion; there would always be the suspicion, or the fear, and afterwards the excuse, that he had been handicapped and that consciously or unconsciously an element of bias might have crept into the tribunal. It is well known (I have seen it in Newfoundland newspapers) that before the report was actually published I had told Mr. Warren that I could not come again; it was a great satisfaction to me that he should suggest it, and I am very proud to have been asked again by yourself; but I am convinced that I ought not to accept.
 In this, I think that I should take any part in the selection of my successor. For many reasons—one is that any nominee of mine might be accused of being tainted with my prejudices. I was told some time ago that the Colonial Office already had the matter under consideration, indeed I understood that they were submitting names for Newfoundland to choose from. If there is anything in this, it would certainly not be proper for me to be in. I know that people here were applying to the Colonial Office, one or two sought my help but I would give no pledges. If practicable would make part of the Act no tea, coffee, and bonus for the local manufacture of drinks less than three per cent. Think side of bottle strong drink supplied customers daily or less often should be one-quarter the usual, and supplied Board by wholesalers.

Yours sincerely,
 T. HOLLIS WALKER.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES.

August 9th.—Abroad betimes, and the heat great beyond all bearing almost, so that I do feel like a piece of ice melting in the sun, and an mighty certain I have lost many pounds in weight. Nor does Squibbs cheer me up when he tells me how the Committee sitting on the Prohibition Bill do report back that they see no reason why it should not pass the House without delay. Indeed, I did tell Squibbs that this was no time to tell me such things when all I wanted at that very moment was some iced beer, and could not have it. I learn how drivers of the clergy did protest against the passing of this Bill without mature consideration, but their pleas of no avail. In the evening to go to the seaside, there to bathe in the ocean, and did enjoy it beyond all else almost, even though I did swallow half of the bay in my efforts to keep cool, and salt water the most evil tasting stuff to ever pass my mouth.

August 10th. (Lord's Day)—God forgive me, I did this day play at tennis and my conscience to trouble me but little at the time, since I did take much pleasure from the game and is the first exercise I have had this three or four days past. But Lord, the heat so great that after every set needs must I go for a bath, and with tennis and bathing, did pass the day, to my very great content.

Obituary.

REV. SISTER MARY ALOYSIUS DOYLE.

This morning the mortal remains of a beloved Religious, Sister M. Aloysius Doyle, of the Presentation Convent, were laid to rest in the Convent Cemetery, Belvedere. The deceased lady was a daughter of Mr. John H. Doyle, of the Customs Department, and sister of Mr. John J. Doyle, Deputy Registrar of Vital Statistics. Previous to entering the Religious life she had been a member of the teaching profession, having taught at the R.C. School, Holyrood, for some years, later being principal of the R.C. School, Mundy's Pond, in both places endeavoring herself to pupils and people. From early childhood she aspired to the Religious life. Some fifteen years ago she resigned her school and entered the Convent of the Presentation Order, St. Mary's, where up to a year ago she labored for the welfare of the children in the schools and of the poor and afflicted. In addition to the Reverend Sisters at St. Mary's and St. John's, the deceased leaves to mourn their great loss, one sister, Rev. Mother Agnes, Superior of Convent of Mercy, Bay St. George; Mrs. P. J. Casey, and Misses Mary and Monica at home.—Requiescat in Pace.

CHARLES KNIGHT.

St. John's lost another of its most respected citizens yesterday, when Mr. Charles Knight, of 27 William Street, entered into rest. Deceased had been in failing health for the past 2 years, and his condition becoming serious about a week ago, it could be seen that the end was not far off, but he lingered until 4.30 yesterday afternoon, when the final summons came. The late Mr. Knight in his early days was a shipwright by trade, and for number of years was foreman in that capacity at the Dry Dock. Later he joined the Postal Service, and during a period of 15 years was employed in the various branches, until two years ago, when he was compelled to give up, owing to failing health. His attentiveness to business in his years of service at the General Post Office won for him the esteem of employers and the public so that a responsible position was his. Of a quiet disposition, Mr. Knight had the power of making friends and he retained them through life. Deceased was a prominent member of the Orange Society, and an active member of the Cochrane Street Church. The deceased leaves a wife, two sons, Frank and Stephen; also 5 daughters, Mrs. Rev. S. J. Pike, La-Loche, Que.; Mrs. Wm. Corbett, Mrs. Arthur Oak, residing in Boston; Mrs. Herbert Walton, of this city, and Mrs. Hodder, at home. Left to mourn also are one brother, Harold, residing abroad, and two sisters, Mrs. Arnburn, Kenville, N.S., Mrs. Stewart, in Boston. To the bereaved the Telegram extends sympathy. The funeral takes place at 2.30 p.m. Tuesday, from 21 William Street.

Drowned Whilst Bathing

A message received by the Minister of Justice, from Mr. J. E. Long, J.P., Marytown, states that Robert Hodder, aged 17 years, of Cronson, was drowned there this morning whilst bathing. The body has been recovered.

"Outport Man's" Appeal

Special Evening Telegram.
 HR. GRACE, Aug. 9.
 Through your paper would voice outport appeal to Legislature and public agitation suggested over hasty legislative action on question temperance legislation affecting financially, fiscally, socially, morally, our people, especially wage earners. As very old Local Option worker and benefactor, one of many feeling profoundly over proposed radical change, and concerned over effect for good or bad, would strongly advise deferring decisive action till next session or till special session, and meantime existing Act be judiciously and sensibly enforced. If I would pronounce at all, find impossible to weigh what effect one clause has on another, what is suitable for conditions in city and what for outports. If express an opinion on any part in the selection of my successor, I would certainly not be proper for me to be in. I know that people here were applying to the Colonial Office, one or two sought my help but I would give no pledges. If practicable would make part of the Act no tea, coffee, and bonus for the local manufacture of drinks less than three per cent. Think side of bottle strong drink supplied customers daily or less often should be one-quarter the usual, and supplied Board by wholesalers.

OUTPORT MAN.

HR. GRACE, Aug. 11.
 Editor Evening Telegram.
 Please insert this and also Saturday's message in your paper. My message name not withheld cowardly or intentionally but inadvertently omitted. The message was meant as appeal for more time country and legislature to only consider whether if prohibition act be amended or reversed what form such should take to ensure best results for the welfare and happiness of the people, what form suitable for city conditions what for outports. I feel certain that there would have an efficiency of main features of new act in Legislature. It is of greatest moment to our country's future and present and one in which of course whole world outside is really and vitally interested. Undue haste is surely unstatesmanlike and unchristianlike. Consider it is only fair justice that women and men should have equal voice in this matter especially as regards local option preservation to outports. Consider grave precautions necessary to prevent wide powers board re particularly regarding strong liquors. Not stultify regulations outports and likewise city. This question vitally affecting rich and poor calls for reasonable self denial for common good, broad mindedness, and earnest sympathy. Consideration of ordinary citizen both our will and wish, but the most just, reasonable and beneficial. That cannot be hastily determined I fear very much not at present hasty session.

OUTPORT MAN.

The Prohibition Issue

A COMPROMISE SUGGESTED.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir.—The new Liquor Bill calls for serious consideration on the part of all classes, and so radically a change from the present Prohibition Act as to demand more consideration than can be given to it at this season. The Prime Minister claims that as his Manifesto contained a "repeal clause" he has therefore a mandate from the people to bring forward this new measure.

I beg to submit that the impression received by the average elector when he read the manifesto was that the alternative act to be introduced would be an improved Prohibition Act. The electors had no reason to believe that the new measure would provide for the free sale of a 24 oz. bottle a day by multiplied Government saloons. As such an intention was not clearly stated to the people, the Government therefore has no mandate to destroy the principle of the Prohibition Act. I am perfectly sure that if such an intention was announced at the last election the Temperance vote would have been galvanized into a powerful force against the Monroe party. The illegal development of the bottle trade in Newfoundland and in defiance of the Prohibition Act has produced a serious situation.

Since the Squires Government deliberately developed the bottle trade for beverage purposes sales are made in 24 oz. bottles. A man must take it to his home, club, office or boarding house and he and his friends drink a much larger quantity than if he purchased a glass. The result is seen in the number of arrests rising from 85 in 1916, the first year the Act was enforced, to about 600 last year under the bottle trade.

This bottle trade has also developed home drinking among women, girls and young men, and when taken along with country drives help to develop moral degeneracy. Now I wish to emphatically state that this bottle trade has not been developed under the authority of the Prohibition Act. It is due to the deliberate action of the Governments past and present in open defiance of the Act.

Mr. Higgins, Minister of Justice, is quoted as saying that the last four Ministers claimed that the Act could not be enforced. Can he show that any Minister tried or is trying to enforce it? Did either of these Ministers use his authority to prevent the illegal sale of liquor without a prescription? or the sale of liquor on so-called prescriptions made out by persons who have no legal standing under the Act, which minister used his influence to organize a staff in the Controller's Department who were known to be favorable to the Act?

Is it not true that since the Act came into force in 1916 the Government in defiance of prohibition sentiment and demands continued to appoint officials who were known to be opposed to the Act? All the conditions were created to discredit and kill the Act and show that it was unworkable. It is not true that it has never had a fair trial. If the booze doctors who specialize in scripts were made to prove many of their suspicious scripts in court, the script evil would soon be eliminated. It is the business of the Justice Department to do this.

Under the present illegal bottle trade a business of over a half a million dollars is conducted absorbing a great deal of the taxpayer's money paid out for so-called relief through the Rock Sheds. Under the new bill with free sale of a bottle a day the business will represent from one and a half to two million dollars. This money will be diverted from regular trade channels and will create bad trade and increase unemployment. The workman with his bottle of spirits a day easily available will be the greatest sufferer and a bad situation will become intolerable. After 3 years of trade stagnation considerable improvement is evident and no one knows better than Prime Minister Monroe that every dollar is required for trade extension so that the people may be profitably employed, but with millions of dollars diverted to the liquor trade which produces no material value in return and gives practically no employment (as compared with other trades) the outlook is indeed gloomy.

The Royal Commission which sat for 13 months took evidence from Magistrates, clergymen and representatives from all over the country, reports that the country's alcoholic needs would be supplied if a 24 oz. bottle were sold direct to the household at limited prices. This would remove the chief objection to the present act.

It was found that the average man would be satisfied if he could procure a bottle occasionally and keep it for emergencies and special events. The average outport man is not a heavy drinker but wants to keep spirits in the home as he is often out of touch with the doctor who has to cover many miles of coast.

I believe that a prohibition bill based on the Royal Commission's report would satisfy the average elector and that a majority of the temperance people of the country would get behind it, as it is adapted to the special conditions which prevail in this country. Thanking you for space, I am,

Yours truly,
 TEMPERANCE.
