Ood houses were destroyed. No Europeans were killed.

London, Nov. 3.—The Times' correspondent at Hiogo says of the earthquake: The convulsion was so tremendous that no trustworthy estimate at the havoc done is procurable. The wiblest statements as to the number killed are current, but so far there is no evidence that it exceeds 3,000. The chief fatalities were at Yaki, where at least 1,000 people were killed, chiefly by the falling of buildings, but both at Ogaki and Gifu many perished by fire.

THE PRINCIPAL SHOCK

Asted less than two minutes, but was of extreme violence. There were no subsequent shocks strong enough to do damage in ordinary circumstances, but they sufficed to shake down walls already cracked, and added immensely to the terrors of the night. Even to-day slight shocks continue at irregular intervals. The total destruction of bridges and railroads over a long line of country paralyzed all ordinary occupations and prevents trustworthy news from reaching the capital. Great fissures have appeared in the ground at many points, cendering roads impassable. Traveling in May direction is dangerous. A striking feature has been the

THE MAYBRICK INSURANCE CASE

London, Nov. 3.—In the Court of Appeals to-day argument was resumed in the Maybrick case. Sir Edward Clarke, Q.C., an behalf of the defendants, argued that as the law did not permit a wife or other representative of an insured person who committed suicide to recover the insurance money, the law could not allow a person to profit by his or her own criminal act.

The master of the rells, Lord Esher, in summing up said that he thought that the true construction of the policy was that the money should be paid to the executors in trust. If that was done and a receipt obtained the respondents were bound to see that the trust was fulfilled. After further argument judgment was reserved.

Then the divorced husband falls in love with and marries his late wife's mother and his mother-in-law. The men concerned are Philip and Louis Beers, who came to this country from England several years ago. Business prospered with them. Finally, ten years ago, Philip wooed and won Miss Lizzie Johnson, a young rural beauty of his neighborhood. They were married and lived together nearly eight years, seemingly happy. Something, however, disturbed the harmony of their married life, for last June Philip obtained a divorce. In the meantime the other brother Lewis began to cast about him for a helpmeet, and one day the town was suddenly electrified to hear that Louis and the grasswidow had been made one. Yesterday the town was satonished to hear that Philip Beers and Mrs. Johnson, his exwife's mother and his brother's mother-in-law, had been quietly made one. The neighbors are trying to figure out the relationship of the parties to each other and each other's relatives.

HEALY HORSEWHIPPED!

Parnell's Nephew Castigates the Fiery Opponent of the Dead Leader.

Dublin, Nov. 4.—Mr. McDermott, nephew of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, yesterday publicly horsewhipped Timothy Healy, M.P., the most bitter of the anti-Parnellite leaders. The horsewhipping received by Mr. Healy was the indirect outcome of the language used by Healy at Longford on Sunday last, when the anti-Parnellite leader referred to Miss Parnell and to the widow of the late Charles Stewart Parnell. McDermott caught Healy by the throat the moment he met him at the Four Courts in this city, and in the presence of a number of persons he thrashed Healy about the shoulders and body until the latter was rescued by the police. Herly, when his assainant had been taken into custody, declined to make a charge against him, so McDermott was released and went his way, surrounded by a number of sympathizers.

and went his way, surrounded by a number of sympathizers.

Healy was reading in the library of the Four Courts when McDermott sent a messenger to say that Healy was wanted in the refreshment room. Healy on going into the hall was seized by McDermott, who immediately began to apply the whip, saying at the same time: "That is for your insults at Longford." McDermott afterwards handed a policeman his card and then walked away. Healy at once returned to the library. He says McDermott was drunk.

to the library. He says McDermott was furnk.

Mr. Kenny, speaking at a league meeting, denounced Healy's remarks at Longford as a disgrace to Irishmen. On the announcement that Healy had been horsewhipped the audience rose and tervidly cheered.

Healy at Longford stated that on visiting Paris to inquire about the release of the fund he found a telegram from Messrs. Harrington & Kenny to the bankers claiming a prior lien on the fund. "The bank-ors did not mind that," continued Healy, "they minded more a letter from Kitty, blocking the relief fund." Healy asserts that when he saw the letter signed by "that woman" he could not help believing that an alliance existed between the descendants of the men who betrayed the Irish at Ballinmuck and the present fomenters of disorder. In the "league of landlords and Freemasons" they heard a great deal about "English dictation." Was Mrs. Parnell an Irishwoman? If the movements of Irishmen were to be controlled in English dictation."

The other day a modest-looking lady was sight-seeing in the Government building. She wandered into the weather office and appeared greatly interested. Everything in the place seemed to catch her eye, and all the appliances for keeping track of affairs in the atmosphere were quietly scanned and their purpose guessed. But when her eye rested on this bar of steel she became uneasy. She approached it nervously, but every time she drew near the case the bar swung toward her with surprising velocity. She would retrace her steps a few feet and again advance, evidently hoping to get near the box without being seen. She kept repeating her maneuvers, but the bar was on the alert, and her advances were received with tapping on the glass.

She was arraid to ask any questions, and Assistant Krichelt was too modest to explain the cause of the needle's agitation. But he told the reporter soon afterwards that he knew the lady carried steel in her corsets, and that the sensitive magnet was thereby visibly effected.

the following results are gleaned:

OHIO.

There seems to be no doubt that McKinley is elected and by such a large majority as to make him a factor to be seriously considered by the Republican Presidential convention next year. The returns indicate the defeat of Gov. Campbell by Major McKinley by majorities ranging from 10,000 to 25,000. The Republicans seem to have captured the Legisbell by Majer McKinley 10,472; Campbell, 8,891. Same in 1890 gave Ryan (Rep.) 9,763, Cromley (Dem.) 8,515. Lincoln Club estimates Archineys plurality in Hamilton county at 6,500 and in the State from 18,000 to 20,000.

NEW YORK.

It is evident that the Democrats have carried New York State by a good majority, ranging probably from 15,000 to 22,000. This appears to have been due to two principal causes—a remarkable falling off in the Republican vote in the interior of the State, and the tremendous efforts put forth by Tammany Hall to preserve its political life and influence. The Mail and Express, the most stalwart of the Republican organs in New York city, at this hour says: "The Mail and Express gives it up. Flower (Dem.) will have 10,-000 to 15,000 majority in this State."

A Herald hulletin says that 50 counties outside of New York and King's county give Fassett 36,000 plurality. The returns indicate that the Republicans gain two in the Senate and four in the Assembly. The Tribune (Republican) estimates Flower's plurality at 15,000. The New York City Associated Press bulletin says: "A careful estimate gives Flower a majority in King's county of 15,000; Boody (Democrat), for mayor, will come close to 10,000.

Later—One thousand and two election districts in New York State out of 3,353 gave Fassett a plurality of 6,068. The same districts gave Warner Miller a plurality of 30,885 over Governor Hill in the last election. The singular feature of the result is the growth of Democratic opinion in the rural districts and the falling off of the Democratic vote in the great cities, except in Brooklyn, where a great fight on local offices served to get out a heavy vote. Mr. Flower's majority, estimated at this writing (12:30 a.m.), is between 30,000 and 40,000, and although W. F. MASSACHUSETTS. MASSACHUSETTS.

Few details have been received from Massachusetts, but they show that the Republican candidate for Governor has probably been elected by a comparatively small majority and the rest of the Republican State ticket by a much larger majority. The contest was mainly on the Governorship. The election of Allen, the Republican candidate, if he be elected, is a Republican gain, as the present Governor, Russell, is a Democrat, who was a candidate for re-election.

Russell, is a Democrat, who was a candidate for re-election.
Governor Wm. E. Russell (Democrat) appears to have been re-elected by a plurality of about 5,000, but the Republicans claim the balance of the ticket. Republicans claim both Houses. MARYLAND.

The Democrats have elected their State ticket, and also a handsome majority of the Legislature, which will re-elect Senator Gorman to the United States Senate.

The Baltimore Sun says the Maryland Legislature continues Democratic by 30 to 40 majority on the joint ballot. Brown (Democrat) for Governor is elected by avery large majority.

members in the House the Democrate succeeded to summary.

Such is the situation as it is now understood. The Republicans have made two distinct gains—the Governoreships of Ohio and Massachusetts—in both of which States there is now a Democrate Governor. They have failed to gain the Governorship in New York, but the Democrats have elected the Governor there with a loss of nearly half the majority by which the present Governor Hill was elected. Pennsylvania and Maryland stand as they have always stood in recent years. At this writing it looks as if the victory had been with the Republicans in the States where national issues have been made the chief issues, viz.: in Ohio and Massachusetts.
