A Veteran's Story

Mr. Joseph Hemmerich, an old soldier 529 E. 146th St., N. Y. City, writes us voluntarily. In 1862, at the battle of Fair Oaks, he was stricken with typhoid fever, and after a long struggle in hospitals, lasting sev eral years, was discharged as incurable with Consumption. Doctors said both lungs were affected and he could not live long, but a comrade urged him to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before he had finished one bottle his cough began to get loose, the choking sensation left, and night sweats grew less and less. He is now in good health and cordially recommends

"THE MERCHANT OF VENICE." A Fine Audience Greets Keene - I Worthy Performance-Mrs. (Gen.) Tom Thumb.

Shakespeare's immortal comedy, "The Merchant of Venice," delighted a large and fashionable audience at the Grand last night. Thomas W. Keene was the talisman. His annual visits are now looked forward to with pleasure by lovers of the "legitimate," and the handsome patronage always accorded him in London is a just reward of his praiseworthy efforts to cleave to high art, whatever may be said of his ability as its exponent. A Shakespearian play rightly interpreted is a refreshing draught to the jaded palate of the theater-goer who likes his intellect, as well as his risibles, stirred up a little. Such was the performance of last night. Mr. Keene's impersonation of Shylock was powerful, if not subtle. Different actors take different views of this character. Irving softens it and inspires a sympathy and furnishes a motive for the Jew which partially excuses the malignity of his conduct. Mr. Keene evidently conceives him to be the incarnation of avarice and hatred, and the actor certainly realizes his ideal, for he paints him villain with the deepest dye. He worked up the climax of the trial scene with excellent discretion and cumulative intensity, though his exit was rather too melodramatic. Mr. Keene's companyis, with a possible exception or two, a strong one. Miss Vader's Portis bardly suggested an improvement. Her rendition of the sublime speech on mercy was a lesson in elocution, and in the playful scenes she showed a rich adaptability for the humorous. Rer clear enunciation was an example which her lover, Bassanio-Mr. Edward Arden-would have done well to follow. Mr. Arden is a very clever actor, but failed to guage the acoustic properties of the was responsible for that, but Mr. Taylor decided success and did some admirable byplay. Mr. Abrendt made a noble figure as the merchant and spoke his lines with proper understanding. Miss Fitz Allen and Miss Maud Dudley, as Lerissa and Jesuica, were thoroughly satisfactory. A good word might be said for Mr. Mackay as young Gobbo. He recited with much however, to the tariff on coal oil. The unction that solileduy which, for a rare debate was continued by Mr. Fauvell and equals in Shakespeare. So long as Mr. Keene continues to give such enjoyment he will be welcome in London.

AFTER TYPHOID FEVER.

Harvey Neff Eas Kidney Disease, Which Doctors Could Not Cure - Dodd's Kidney Pills Restored Him to Portest Health, FORT COLBORNE, April 9. - In March, 1893, Harvey H. Nell, of this place, had a bad attack of typhoid fever. Good nursing and medical attendance brought him around, but the attack left him a victim of kidney disease. This the doctors failed to cure, but Dodd's Kidney Pills, the infallible remedy, did the same good work in his case as in all others, and Mr. Ned is well to-day. Dodd's was the first kidney remedy in pill form ever offered the public. Its wonderful success in curing all forms of kidney disease has led to the introduction of numerous cheap and worthless imitations. Purchasers, for their own safety, should insist on getting Dodd's Kidney Pills. Sold in large boxes; price 50 cents, or six boxes for $2 50. To be had of all
