PECULIARITIES OF "THE RED EARL

Lord Spencer the Literal Leade and Gladstonian.

Lord Spencer is popularly known by the name of the "Red Earl," owing to the peculiar hue formerly enjoyed by his long, bushy and now almost entirely white beard. He is tall, thin, and, although not handsome, quite as distinguished looking as his stately wife, and appears very "grand seigneur" when receiving his guests at Spencer House, with the Ribbon of the Garter across his breast, and around his neck the jewel of the Order of St. Patrick, which he is entitled to wear as past grand master of that order, and as a former Viceroy of Ireland. The earl, indeed, has been twice Lord Lieutenant of the Emerald ance surgeon, and, as the bearers Isle, and while during one of his terms of office as such he was identified with the coercion policy of the Liberal Government-being Viceroy, indeed, at the time of the murder of Lord Frederick Cavendish-yet he subsequently, like his political chief, the late William E.
