Everybody Contributes.

The shoemaker in his little store, 10 hy 10 has been taxed, as has also the peanut man and the banana man. The result is that there has been a tremendous increase in assessment from this source alone. On the other hand many of the largest business men in London, find that their taxes have been reduced through the substitution of the business for the personalty tax. Thus it has been proven that the new law works to make things easier for the big business man and harder for the small business man. Under the new law it does not matter whether you carry a $40,000 stock or a 40-cent stock. The law says the assessor must only take notice of the value of the premises occupied by the business man, and then he must be assessed for, say, hall the value of the premises, as a bustness tax, in addition to his realty
