

DANN--SMITH NUPTIALS

This afternoon at three o'clock, St. John's Church was filled to its utmost capacity with guests and spectators to witness one of the most fashionable events of the season, the marriage of Margaret Eleanor, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Smith, to Lieut. William Ronald Harris Dann.

The quaint, old St. John's Church was enhanced by the beautiful decorations of the Chancel Chapter Society, of which Miss Smith was president. A large arch of evergreens and scarlet geraniums was formed at the entrance of the church. The seats for the guests were marked off by white silk cords, while the altar had clusters of white flowers and green in profusion. Palms and scarlet carnations were massed at either side and foot of the red screen, making the church a scene of great beauty.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Precentor Dann, father of the groom, and Rev. J. W. Hill, rector of the church.

Mr. Vivian Reeve, organist of the church, presided at the organ, playing appropriate music during the assembling of the guests.

During the signing of the register, "Now Thank We All Our God" was sung very beautifully by the full surpliced choir.

At three o'clock, to the soft strains of Stynes' Wedding March, the bride entered on the arm of her father, always a very beautiful girl, she looked surpassingly lovely in her robe of soft ivory satin with over-drapery of transparent Indian embroidery arranged in Grecian effect and falling softly from bodice to the foot of the gown, the sleeves and yoke being of soft tulle. Orange blossoms were entwined from forehead to the back of the head, over which was draped a veil of Brussels net. She carried a handful of bride-roses, while her only ornament was a beautiful necklace with aquamarine pendant, the gift of the groom.

The bridesmaids, Miss Mary Puddicombe and Miss Hilda Smith, sister of the bride, were gowned alike in cream shadow-stripe duchess cloth, made in the directoire style, with panels of lace down the front and touches of gold. Hats of cream and white silk beaver, Miss Puddicombe's having two long plumes, while Miss Smith's, a simpler effect of knotted ribbon, completed a striking costume. Their flowers were sheaves of scarlet carnations.

The groom's gifts to the bridesmaids were gold bracelets very beautifully chased and bearing gold bangles with initials engraved.

The groom, who wore the uniform of the Bedfordshire regiment, was supported by Lieut. W. Reid, also in full military uniform.

The ushers, who were all in full uniform, were Capt. A. Becher, Lieut. J. Carling, Lieut. G. Ingram and Lieut. A. Mortimore.

After the service in the church, a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, St. James street. Congratulations and good wishes were showered on the bride and groom, who received in the front drawing-room standing under a canopy of scarlet flowers and green. The bride's table was artistically decorated with crimson and white roses, the Bedfordshire regimental colors.

Amongst the very handsome costumes worn was that of the bride's mother, a gown of soft, pale-green satin with panels of white tulle, and bodice and hanging in simple and soft folds, and hat of pan-velvet with pale-green plumes. Mrs. Dann, mother of the groom, wore a green voile over pale mauve silk, hat of violet velvet and violet plumes. Mrs. Wallace Duncan, Stratford, sister of the groom, looked strikingly beautiful in her wedding gown of white ivory satin and large black satin directoire hat, and carried red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Dann intend taking a short automobile tour, returning to London for a fortnight before leaving for England and Ireland, where a greater part of their honeymoon will be spent.

In travelling the bride wore a modish tailor suit of dark blue broadcloth, a blue-plumed hat and dark fox fur. The guests from out-of-town were: Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and daughter, Godrich; Miss R. Michie, Toronto; Mr. Gerald Rackum, Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Duncan, Stratford; Mr. Dann, Toronto, and R. Smith, Sask., and numerous guests from England, Ireland and Scotland.

Wilson---Kickham

A quiet wedding was celebrated at St. Mary's Church this morning, when Miss Nellie Kickham, a popular young lady of London, was united in marriage to Mr. William Wilson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father McKee, who celebrated high mass.

The bride wore a most becoming costume of white organdie, over white satin, with hat to match, and carried Bridal roses. She was attended by Miss Cecilia Schmitt, who wore a costume of tan silk, with hat to match. Mr. James Kickham, of St. Louis, Mo., brother of the bride, was groomsmen. Mr. and Mrs. Irvine, Davenport, Iowa, and others.

After the ceremony the wedding breakfast was held at the home of Mr. Wilson, 404 Simcoe street.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome piano; to the bridesmaid a locket set with pearls, and to the groomsmen a stickpin set with pearls.

The young couple left for a honeymoon trip to points west, and will be at home at their residence, 404 Simcoe street, after Nov. 15.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fowler, Pontiac, Mich.; Mr. A. Stewart, New York; Miss Harris, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Bassett, New York; Mrs. Sebastian Schmitt, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Irvine, Davenport, Iowa, and others.

Londoners Discuss the Election

The whole theme of conversation about the streets this morning was the election returns.

Among the Liberals, of course, there was unbounded rejoicing, especially as every report increases the majority of last night conservatively placed at 40.

When the final results are in it will be shown that the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been sustained by a majority but little less than the magnificent sweep of four years ago.

The Conservatives explain the defeat in one simple word, "Foster," and a considerable portion of them now express regret that North Toronto did not do to him what the other constituents did to his illustrious followers and friends, Messrs. Fowler, Bennett, Pope and Lefurgey.

The Laymen's Missionary Movement

Everything is in readiness for the opening tomorrow of the convention that is being held in connection with the Laymen's Missionary Movement. Local pastors and laymen in general are taking the keenest interest in the matter, and it is expected that the churches in which the meetings will be held will be crowded to capacity throughout the three days that the While here he was employed in the Empire Brass Works. Deceased is survived by a widow, who was formerly Miss Edith Wood, of this city, and two young children. The funeral was held this afternoon, the interment being made in the Mount Hope Cemetery, Brantford.

Snow in West.
The banana belt has evidently shifted, for in a letter to a friend in this city, a former London boy, Mr. Ed. Cook, states that Calgary is in the grip of a small blizzard and that it is snowing heavily. Nearly every day last week snow fell, making it appear that winter had arrived. Last year Westerners had the "laugh" on the people of this section, for at the time that they were holding regattas on the river and were playing tennis, hockey was the feature of London sports.

Police Court Grindings.
In the police court this morning Edward McFadden, charged by George Rendall with assault, was found guilty by Magistrate Love, and fined $1 and $5 costs. John O. Farrell and Andrew Wicker, two youths, who acted in a disorderly manner on the sidewalks last night by jostling pedestrians, were fined $1 each and given a severe lecture. The case of Fred L. Smale, a resident of West London, who tied his cows to city trees and damaged the trees, was settled, as Mr. Smale has arranged the affair with Mr. Pearce.

Engineer on Warpath.
Engineer Graydon this morning laid an information against Mr. Edward Martin, a builder, charging him with breaking the building bylaws by maintaining in a dangerous condition a building after having been notified that it was dangerous. The city engineer also laid an information against H. G. Abbott, charging him with commencing a building on Dundas street without obtaining a permit. Both cases will be heard before Magistrate Love on Nov. 2.
