> consequence the whole Colony will flourish. The high price of provisions has thinned the population in the mines. Is his Excellency aware of the fact that if the miners were to leave there would be no people to be ruled. We have no farmers n the country. The squatters are broken down miners, men without experience or capital; they irrigate their patches and produce barley and hay to feed the pack mules. I do not expect his Excellency to become a farmer, but surely he should encourage agriculture. With a very small capital employed in fields within 30 niles of the mines he could this year proluce wheat enough to feed all the miners, and if it were sold at the price of wheat in San Francisco it would leave a large surplus as interest on the expenditure. It was a mere accident that the colony escaped this year. A few grasping specu lators proceeded to buy all the wheat grown in the country. With this crop in their possession they could command any price in the mines or starve the miners, if a severe winter had come upon us. Mr. Harper, who happens to have, in Cariboo. the best market for his beef, saw the danger ; he went into the wheat market and succeeded in getting about half the crop. To preserve his beef market he would sacrifice his flour and save British Columbia.

Is it not a sad sight to see such a colony as this in such a state ? Its very ife so visibly dependent on an accident that may occur at any time. Would it not be advisable to make Harper Deputy Governor of Cariboo? If any man of common sense had an interest in the general welfare of the place it would prosper. It is true that extravagance in road making and an expensive, useless crowd of officials tend to make the people of this colony wish for a new form of Government. A great many persons suppose that union with Canada would be a desirable change, a great gain to the people of British Columbia. Canada is a great country; her statesmen have exhibited great ability, but a great portion of her territory is yet without a population. Is it reasonable to suppose that Canadian THE FARMERS in the interior are engaged statesmen would direct any of the labour or capital required at home to the valleys of this remote land ? A farmer without sufficient capital is sure to neglect that part of the farm furthest from his house. THE Enterprise returned on Saturday even. Nations are managed in the same manner.
