

our boys? We say to our old fellow-students, and to all who are Christians, led us spread our sails to the wind of our convictions, and with all the force we possess, and in the name of Him who is light and purity strive to put down evil and raise the standard of right. Yet it will be with difficulty we shall stem the tide of immorality that is threatening our homes and country.

The Rev. J. K. Baillie, of Philadelphia, visits Canada every summer during his holidays. He spends the greater part of his time at his father's home at Aylmer, on the shore of the beautiful Lake Des Chenes, a few miles west of Ottawa. Whilst here, in the past summer, he supplied Knox Church, Ottawa, for three Sabbaths, very acceptably. Those who heard him speak of him as a very effective preacher. After his return to Philadelphia he had a severe illness, but has recovered completely.

The Rev. W. L. Clay, B.A., formerly of Moose Jaw, is now settled over the charge of St. Andrew's Church, Victoria, B.C. This congregation is one of the largest and most influential in the West. Thus a very extensive field of usefulness has been opened up to him and we have all confidence in him. I heard many very encouraging accounts of him in the West, and had the pleasure of meeting a gentleman from his old congregation, who spoke of him in glowing terms, making particular mention of his farewell sermon to them at Moose-Jaw. Lord and Lady Aberdeen attended St. Andrew's Church while in Victoria.

Our readers would notice in our first issue an account of the ordination of Mr. D. Guthrie, B.A., also a reference of a somewhat prophetic nature. Well, it was a good hit, as the prediction has been fulfilled to an iota. On the 4th of December he took to himself an helpmeet, Miss Jennie Stirton, daughter of the late Joseph Stirton, of Guelph, Ont. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. M. Glassford, who was assisted by the bridegroom's fellow-graduate, the Rev. Wylie C. Clark, of Brampton. Mr. Wm. Patterson, B.A., a member of our graduating class of '95, was groomsman on the occasion. No doubt, Mr. Clark and Mr. Patterson would look forward to the time when they will be passing through a similar experience. We heartily congratulate Mr. Guthrie, and thank him for fulfilling our prophecy.

The Rev. A. MacGregor, B.A., spent some time in Scotland after his graduation, and on his return to Canada, labored for a year at Chelsea and Cantley, where he was very successful. Last September he received a call to Portage du Fort, which resulted in his being placed there; and from what we hear, the work has begun auspiciously. Mr. MacGregor has a quiet effective way of doing good, well worth imitating. His name does not appear often in print, but nevertheless, good follows his labors.

The boys of the "Journal" staff received a very pleasant surprise one evening lately, when one of our number announced the object of our meeting, namely, to enjoy a treat provided by a former Editor-in-chief of our "Journal," the Rev. H. C. Sutherland, B.A. He no doubt remembers his labors on the "Journal" staff, and his depression of spirit when he sat listening to the reading of the manuscripts, and especially "Our Graduates Sermon." But apples are a wonderful help on such an occasion. We thank our sympathetic friend for his good cheer, and we hope that his good example may influence others to go and do likewise.

The Rev. T. Muir, of Scotstown, is now settled at Chicoutimi, where he is enjoying his work very much, and is laboring with much acceptance among the people. His home is situated on the banks of the Saguenay river, a lovely spot in summer.
