

No journal of its class has attracted so much attention during the past twelve months as the TUES. FIELD AND FARM, published weekly at 30 and 41 Park Row, New York. It has discussed breeding theories in such a way as to make a marked impression upon the thoughtful public mind and to draw out the views of many able students of the problem of reproduction. It has shed a great deal of light on an important question, and its opinions have been widely quoted. Its reports of running and trotting meetings have been models of clearness and accuracy, and its Field and Kennel departments has been better than ever. The first bench show, the first gun trial and the first dog trial in America were given in the suggestion and under the direction of the TUES. FIELD AND FARM, and so there is a logical reason for the paper being recognized as an authority upon dogs and guns as well as horses. The athletic and aquatic champions have signed in its office articles of agreement for their important contests, and the paper is extensively read by men and women of those vigorous sports. Much space is given to the two great intellectual games, chess and backgammon, and to these it speaks with authority. The dramatic department bears the stamp of scholarship and originality. The amount of fresh and original matter published by the TUES. FIELD AND FARM is astonishing, and it is gratifying to learn that the circulation of the paper is rapidly increasing. In ability, circulation and influence it is second only to its great rival, the London Field.
