MoVŁIGH'S SOVEREIGN REMEDY.

Prease read the following testimonials of prominent and respectable citizens of Montreal who have used my remedy, and who are living witnesses of its value and efficacy. Any me doubting the genuineness of the remedy in the treatment of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Dysps psia, Diphtheria and Lumbago can satisfy them selves still further by referring to the parties whose names appear below testifying to the good effect of the remedy in their case. Never since the practice of medicine first became a science were there discovered a greater boon for suffering humanity than McVeigh's Sovereign Remedy, which is now about being introduced to the citizens of Montreal.

The undersigned having made a special study of all Nerveus, Muscular and Blood Discusses, hence the result shows satisfactory cures in all cases.

the skin and scalp.

What the World Has been Wanting for Centuries

The greatest discovery of our day, so far as a large portion of humanity is concerned, is l'Ak Be Likk, an article prepared from petroleum, and which effects a complete and radical cure in cases of buildness, or where the hair, owing to diseases of the scalp, has become thin and tends to fall out. It is also a speedy restorative, and while its use secures a luxuriant growth of hair, it also brings back the natural color and gives the most complete satisfaction in the using The falling out of the hair, the accumulations of dandruff, and the prematury change of color, are all evidences of a diseased condition of the scalp and the gl. nds which nourish the hair. To arrest these causes the article used must possess medical as well as chemical virtues, and the change must begin under the scalp to be of permanent and lasting benefit. Such an article is CARBOLINE, and, like many other wonderful discoveries, it is found to consist of elements almost in their natural state. Petroleum oil is the article which is made to work such extraordinary results, but it is after it has been chemically treated and completely de-dorized that it is in proper condition for the toilet. It was in far-off Ruxria that the effect of petroleum upon the hair was first observed, a government officer having noticed that a partially haid-headed servant of his, when trimming the lamps, had a habit of wiping his oil-besuseared hand, in his scanty locks, amp the result was in a few months a much finer head of black, glossy hair than he ever had before. The oil was tried on horses and cattle that had lost their hair from the cattle plague, and the results were as rapid as they were marvelous. The manes and even the tails of horses, which had failen out, were completely restored in a few weeks. These experiments, succeeded in decodriling petroleum, which renders it succeptible of being handled as daintly as ne famous eand ecologue. The experiments made with the decodorized liquid on What the World Has seen Wanting for Centuries

CHAS. LANGLEY & CO., San Francisco

DEAR SIS—I take great pleasure in informing you of the most gratifying results of the use of CARBOLINE in my own case. For three years the top of my head has been completely bald and smooth, and I had quite given up any hope of restoring the hair. Four weeks ago I noticed the advertisement of CARBOLINE, and on the recommendation of a friend. I concluded to try a hothle without any great nones of good results; a bottle without any great nopes of good results; however, I have now used it less than a month, and, to my most agreeable astonishment, my head is completely covered with a fine, short, heatthy growth of hair, which has every appearance of continued growth; and I confidently believe it will restore it as completely as ever it was in my youth.

PARNELL'S CAREER.

An English Portrait of the Irish Agitator —His Parliamentary Experience and Position.

(From the London Echo.)

"If Parnell does not draw rein," remarked friend to me the other day, "the country will soon have to put him under lock and key." It is not my intention to justify the observation, or to discuss the anti-rent agitation in Ireland in any shape, but it seems to me that when a politician comes to be regarded by a great many people as a rather dangerous man-and there are a great many people of my friend's way of thinking—it is recently been preaching up and down Ireland, well the country should know something he has within the past few weeks, reduced his about him. Gladstone we know, and Beatown rents some twenty per cent. It is a constield we know; but here is a new factor in politics, as the jargon of the day goes, about whom nobody, except his own personal cal, let me say Mr. Charles Stuart Parnellalthough an Irish agitator, and the hope of a very "young Ireland" party, is, curiously enough, not an Irishman at all, or one only to a limited extent. He is American by his mother's side, his mother being the daughter of an admiral in the United States Union. So much for the lineage of my hero.

father was a quiet, unobtrusive man of no he made his bow to the Speaker of the House for the county of Meath in his pocket. A of exasperation." He had not long finished as as improvement to Fenianism, and while it was then understood by young Ireland to be a patriotic thing to believe in. That session, after the manner of most new members, Mr. Parnell was mute. Mr. Parnell heard vote after vote of the estimates passed, and clause after clause of his bitls discussed in committee, and said not a word. The idea of obstruction was then as far from his mind as from, say, Admiral Edmondston's. The following session he begun to find his feet and to interest himself in small de-tails of estimates, and it seems to have been about this time, on his seeing the success which attended persistent criticism, that he thought of obstruction. It was only by degrees, however, that the policy of obstruction was developed, and the House itself is, perhaps, in some degree, responsible for it. Everybody knows that the House, or rather the ministerial portion of it, is somewhat impatient of criticism, especially of persistent criticism, of the estimates. Dillwyn, Whitwell and a few others have a sort of prescriptive right to make the same remarks and ask the same questions year after year; but no sooner does any new member betray a disposition to pry into the secrets of the public under the impression that members are merely careless, and not malicious, raises his voice; the talkers raise theirs, till at length, if the trial of strength is continued long enough, the House is a perfect Babel of sound

This was Mr. Parnell's experience. FIRST PARLIAMENTARY EXPERIENCES.

Now, few men have the temerity to brave $1.50 A YI AR; CLUBS OF FIVE, $1.00 the House of Commons. Ninety-nine members out of a hundred, finding that they cannot get a hearing, are content to accept the inevitable. Not so Mr. Parnell. Under a slim and almost effeminaie exterior he has an iron will. He refused to be put down. The more the House would not listen, the more be would talk, even although he could not be heard more than a couple of benches off, and his persistence gradually attracted the support of the sympathetic Biggar and one or two kindred spirits in the same direction, who looked upon him as an Irish martyr. By-and-by he began to retaliate by talking when he had nothing to say, and so during the session of 1877 and 1878, the merits of obstruction as an engine for extorting concessions from the Government gradually dawned upon him and his faithful adherents, whose appearance in the character of financial and administrative critics the House resented in pretty much the same way as his own. Perhaps had Mr. Parnell more kindly. But he has a harsh, monotonons voice, which at once destroys all sympathy between him and his hearers, and his manner is stiff, and so to speak, wooden. Since he has been in Parliament he has never, so far as I recollect, spoken upon any ques tion of general politics except flogging, and that he took up more, perhaps, for obstructive purposes than on conscientious grounds. The political creed which he asks the country to support is therefore a purely negative and destructive one. It has this advantage above all others which have ever been preached, that it falls within the comprehension of the meanest capacity.

> PERSONAL CHARACTERISTICS. I have spoken of Mr. Parneil's personal appearance. He is a standing wonder even to his friends. Calm, cool, bloodless, ne is a man whem nothing can move. O'Connor Power grows savage under the exasperating treatment of the House, and O'Donnell hisses his words through his teeth will ill dis-guised resentment. But Parnell remains in-variably imperturbable. A contest between overrides all others—the hatred of the Celt him and the House is a comedy in itself. feet, and overpowering cries of "Vide! Patrick cannot resign themselves to their 'vide!" Then comes a lull, in which Mr. role of vanquished It is allowable some Parnell edges in the words, "Mr. Speaker, times to blame them, but never to overlook sir." Here there is a renewed chorus of their native grandeur, their heroic disintervoices, on the subsiding of which, estedness, the power of ideal they have always. Mr. Parnell utters the words, "I rise," which brought to the service of religion and fatherare followed by another outhurst. In this land. To begin with Mr. Mr. Parnell is at present the most popular Parnell—as I am for the moment biographi- man in Ireland. He is almost worshipped man in Ireland. He is almost worshipped by the masses, who naturally take kindly to the new doctrine that un-less the landlords concede in all cases a reduction of twenty-five per cent in rents it is legitimate to pay no rent at all. By the members of the home rule party he has never been cordially liked. He was never on any Navy, and his father comes of an old English that bare speaking terms with Mr. Butt, and family, originally, I believe, from one of the the relations existing between him and Mr. Midland counties. The poet Parnell was one Shaw, the present leader of the Home Rule of his ancestors. I do not know at what party, are very similar. BISMARCH'S STATMENT.

The Two Protocols Signed at Vienna-Anticipating War-Kaizer Withelin Protests.

London, October 23. - The Cologne Gazette journal known to be directly inspired by the Prussian Foreign Office, states that Prince Bismarck has made a most important communication to the Federal Council, whom he caused to be summoned to Berlin a few days ago. He laid before the Council copies of two protocols which had been drawn up at Vienna in presence of the Emperor Francis Joseph, providing for an offensive and defensive alliance between the two Empires. The Austrian Emperor signed the protocol with the reservation that it was not to be binding upon nim until it had received the signature of the German Knizer. Prince Bismarck, in laying these papers bepurse than the mechanical majority proceeds to sit on him after its own fashion. A hum of conversation arises as soon as the new man, being under the impression that many the impression that many the impression that many the propriety of taking the representatives of taking the propriety of taking the representatives of taking the propriety of taking the representatives of taking the propriety of ta posed alliance might, and probably would be, resented by a great power in the north of Europe, and this resentment might be BO VIOLENT AS TO LEAD TO WAR. "But the Council," added the Chancellor, " should weigh all the conditions of the situation, and act for the best interests of the Fatherland. As for myself," he said, in concrusion, "I am so convinced that the proposed alliance is vitally necessary for our safety, that I am resolved to make its acceptance by our Emperor a condition of my remaining in office. If he refuses to sign the protocols, I shall at once resign my office, and retire to end my days at Varsin."

The Council gave their approval to the protocols, and immediately afterwards Count Stallierg, Minister of State, proceeded to Baden, where the Emperor William is now solourning, to ask his sanction. Under the pressure thus brought to bear upom him, the Emperor signed the protocols, protesting to take in the present condition of Europe. These papers contain the terms of the contract of alliance between Austria-Hungary and Germany, which is the ultimate outcome of the conference between Prince Bismarck and Count Andrassy some time since. They possessed in some degree the oratorical are said to have nothing more in view than faculty the House would have treated him to preserve the peace of Europe, but at the same time, it is asserted here by those who claim to know something of matters involved, that their provisions are such as to lend almost with certainty to persious complications with the Russians. It is asserted that the terms of the alliance were chiefly dictated by Prince Bismarck, and are strongly impressed with the leading features of his traditional policy. Whether England is openly invited to become an active party to this new holy alliance has not been revealed.

—Sarah Bernhardt tells The Parisian that she will come to the United States next -eason or the one siter it. She will play in Fron h, and stick to Shakespeare, because she deems the classic French dramas incomprehensible to americans who, though they understand not a world of French, can follow easily the action of a Shakespearean piece.
