

country make a kingdom; it is inclosed by mountains; it is divided by rivers; it is washed by seas; the inhabitants thereof are fellow-countrymen; they speak the same language; they make war and peace together—a king is the ruler thereof.

Many kingdoms and countries full of people, and islands, and large continents and different climates make up this whole world—God governeth it. The people swarm on the face of it like ants upon a hillock; some are black with the hot sun; some cover themselves with furs against the sharp cold; some drink of the fruit of the vine, some of the pleasant milk of the coconut, and others quench their thirst with the running stream.

All are God's family; He knoweth every one of them, as a shepherd
