RICHEST STRIKE EVER KNOWN

Ore at Cripple Creek Said to Run as High as $50,000 Per Ton.

Denver, Jan. 31.—A special from Cripple Creek says of the recent strike in Idaho ground: "Your correspondent saw chunks of sylvanite that were three inches thick, and solid metal, and chunks of oxidized ore of the same width that he whittled with his pocket-knife. No assays have been made on the rock; it is not necessary, but pieces of the metallic ore body has doubled in size both ways since yesterday morning. Some of the pieces of ore are 80 per cent gold. I never saw such mineral and I do not believe that its like was ever mined in this or any other camp in the world. We have had assays taken on the rock, but a ton of it could be picked out that would run anywhere from $50,000 to $200,000 per ton."

Armed guards are watching the property. The strike was made in the new ore body at a depth of 820 feet below the surface. The chute has been cut at the seventh level 200 feet above, and also at the fifth. At the latter place an assay was obtained in the breast of the drift in two feet of ore that went better than $1,000 per ton. There is at least blocking out in the ore level between the ninth and seventh levels, $50,000 worth of ore.

BRITAIN'S NATURAL ALLY

Balfour's Views on Anglo-Saxon Unity.

Fears of a Rising in Macedonia Against Turkish Rule.

The Khalifa Has Evaded Gen. Kitchener's Forces—Movement in England to Establish a School of Spiritualism—More Peerage Claimants.

London, Jan. 31.—Right Hon. Arthur Balfour delivered his annual address last evening to his constituents at Manchester. After speaking of the "intrinsic difficulty which continental nations find in understanding Great Britain's aims," he said: "But here is surely one great country, which, by community of language, by religion, blood, origin, and even institutions, is well fitted to understand. Need I say that the country to which I refer is the United States? Some foreign critics, cynical by profession and training, hold that the friendship now happily existing between the English-speaking people of both sides of the Atlantic is but the growth of the moment, and depends upon a transitory community of interests. They affect to believe that when this disappears friendship will also disappear. They hold that if British trade should feel injured by some incipient tariff, immediately the sentiments so generally felt at this moment in Great Britain towards America would vanish like the leaves in autumn."

THE CYNICS ARE WRONG. "According to my observation," said Mr. Balfour, "the world of cynics is always wrong. I believe the cynics are wrong in this case, if our good relations really depended upon those fortuitous circumstances, while the latter might be the foundation of an alliance, they could not be the foundation of what is infinitely more important of that species of friendship which, in season and out of season, through good report or ill, is not to be shaken by mere circumstances. It was in this hall, in 1896 that I first spoke of the international relations between the United States and England—in those dark days of the Venezuelan controversy, when public feeling in America had been aroused by the wholly unfounded suspicion that we had some design of annexing in South America, and when by natural reaction, we felt that our brethren on the other side of the water had neither judged nor treated us with knowledge and fairness."

ANGLO-SAXON UNITY. "I then expressed my firm faith that the time would come when all speaking the English language and sharing the Anglo-Saxon civilization would be united with a sympathy which no mere political divergence could permanently disturb. I felt then, though I spoke my honest convictions, that I must impress my hearers as something of a dreamer and an idealist, or as a prophet, only hoping for what he himself can hardly expect to see realized. But the three years that have elapsed since have wrought a surely marvelous change in the relations between the two countries—a change which I believe is not destined to be reversed; a change which has brought back these two great communities to their normal relations."

disturbed as these normal relations were by more than a century of unhappy discord; a change which, once made, is a change that ought to be permanent, for it is founded, as I hope, upon mutual sympathy, mutual comprehension and the mutual belief that each great and free community desires to see the privileges it enjoys extended far and wide to all continents and among all nations. And if I am right, and that common sympathy be immortal, then the two great nations, there cannot be a greater guarantee for future peace, freedom and liberty, not only for our country or community alone, but for the whole human race."

AGAINST TURKISH RULE. London, Jan. 31.—Grave fears are entertained of a rising in the spring in Macedonia against Turkish rule. The powers are making vigorous efforts to suppress the movement, but the outcome of years of oppression and accumulated impatience under the sultan's administration. The plan presupposes aid from Bulgaria and Greece. Russia dreads the possible results of such a rising, as her energies are absorbed by expansion in the far east, and by her disarmament proposals. She has accordingly warned the Macedonians to expect no aid from her. Austria gives similar warning. Meantime the sultan is strengthening his forces in Macedonia.

MEDIUMS MUST GO TO COLLEGE. London, Jan. 31.—A movement is on foot here to put the practice of spiritualism very much upon the same footing as the practice of medicine. It is proposed to establish a collegiate institution for the formal instruction of "mediums," and to provide for the authorized licensing of mediums capable of conducting orthodox seances.

The new scheme owes its origin to a Mrs. Stannard. Her object, she says, is to protect the public from experimenting with fraudulent and incompetent spiritualists. She thinks these fakirs, by advertising themselves as professionals, have caused spiritualistic experiments of the genuine type to be derided. She desires to organize a society which will issue a classified list of the duly qualified working mediums.

DULY QUALIFIED MEDIUMS. Blank forms will be circulated, to be signed by all mediums in the country, and only such as gave satisfactory evidence of their power will be recommended to the public as duly authorized to put people in communication with their friends in the nether world.

The college, which will prepare persons for the practice of mediumship, is to have a decidedly novel curriculum—seances, gyrations and classic dances being expected to occupy a large part of the attention of the students.

WHERE IS THE KHALIFA? Cairo, Jan. 31.—Col. Kitchener, brother of Gen. Lord Kitchener, governor-general of the Sudan, is returning to Omdurman after an unsuccessful pursuit of the Khalifa, who fled to the southward on the fall of Omdurman, his capital.

DEATH DUTIES.

A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Vienna says it is stated that a dispute has arisen between the English Government and the executors of the estate of the late Empress of Austria, whose private fortune is deposited in the Bank of England. The English Government, it is said, has prohibited the withdrawal of the money for payment of the heirs until the death duties are paid. The executors contend that the estate being that of a foreign sovereign, is exempt from British taxation.

MORE PEERAGE CLAIMANTS.

London, Jan. 31.—London is threatened with an epidemic of peerage claimants. Two besides Viscount Hinton have appeared. One is a solicitor who, in preparing his own case for the courts says that his father, a peer who recently died, previously disintegrated the estate and made over the whole property to him.

Another claimant is James Stafford, an elderly builder, of North London, who claims the earldom of Stafford, with 10,000 acres and three fine castles. He says he is the direct male descendant of Henry de Stafford, created baron in 1181. The barony was unlawfully obtained from Charles I. by William Howard, of whom the present holder claims to be a descendant. Stafford says this is impossible, as the male line was extinct in 1762 and the female line in 1807. He has a room full of documents proving that he is the rightful heir.

"JACK THE RIPPER" DEAD.

London, Jan. 31.—An Anglican clergyman in the north of England has written to the Daily Mail stating that he is fully aware of the identity of the person responsible for the "Jack the Ripper" murders in London ten years ago. He says: "I received information in professional confidence, with directions to publish the facts after ten years, and then with such alterations as might defeat identification. The murderer was a man of good position, and otherwise unblemished character, who suffered from epileptic mania, and is long since deceased, having died shortly after committing the last murder. He was at one time engaged in rescue work among the depraved women of the east end—eventually his victims—and was once a surgeon."

CAIRO TO THE CAPE.

The London Morning Post says it is authorized by Mr. Cecil Rhodes to state that he has had no communication with the government on the question of a crown guarantee for the construction of the first section of the Bulawayo-Tanganyika Railway since he preferred his request for such a guarantee from the authorities. Mr. Rhodes further declared that he has in no way departed from his original idea of connecting Cairo and Cape Town by rail.

QUEEN OF THE GYPSIES

Mrs. Brooks, of London, Is Trying to Establish Her Claim, And to Property Worth About $5,000,000.

London, Jan. 31.—Mrs. Brooks, a resident of the west side of London, is trying to establish her claim to the title and dignity of the Queen of the Gypsies of all the earth. Her claim also extends to a demand for the possession of property worth, roughly speaking, five million dollars. Mrs. Brooks is not a gypsy herself, but she claims to be the lineal descendant of Lydia Chilcott, the first queen of the gypsies, and Eliza Smith, one of the early kings. From this couple she traces her lineage through the highways and byways of many families, and proves to her own satisfaction that she is the only remaining descendant of the ancient royal family of gypsies, and therefore is entitled to the vast estates which have been in chancery or somewhere else since some time during the last century.

THE ONLY OBSTACLE.

The only obstacle between Mrs. Brooks and her desires is a lack of identification. The gypsies of England have been looking a great many years for the "lost child," as they call her, and if Mrs. Brooks can establish her claim to this title she may one day be rich.

Even if Mrs. Brooks gets what she wants, however, her path may not continue to be strewn with roses, for a substantial movement is on foot among the citizens of Essex county to drive the gypsies from their territory. The nomadic dwellers in tents have gone to Essex in great numbers of late, and the Essex people are now determined to keep agitating until the gypsies are forced to leave.

JANGLE OVER ROTHSCHILD'S WILL.

London, Jan. 31.—A curious dispute has arisen over one of the provisions in the will of the late Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild. He left $25,000 as a bequest to a certain Herbert Wilson, and the peculiarity arises over the fact that there are two Herbert Wilsons, both of whom feel that they have a claim upon the baron's generosity.

Herbert Wilson No. 1 bases his claim upon the following clause in the will: "To my dear friend, Herbert Wilson, of No. 166 Cromwell road and the Travelers' Club, the sum of £5,000."

Queerly enough, there is no such number as "166" Cromwell road, although the baron's executors consider the fact of Herbert Wilson being a member of the Travelers' Club, sufficiently identifies that legatee.

Herbert Wilson No. 2 is in business as a hotel negotiator at Bloomsbury Mansions. He saved the late baron from a dangerous fall in 1893, and feels that the bequest was intended for him. He is collecting evidence to show the

TOLSTOI MAY BE DRIVEN TO AMERICA.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 31.—The dispute between the czar and the holy synod regarding Count Leo Tolstois seems likely to grow into an open rupture. M. Pobedonostzoff, the procurer-general of the synod, insists on summoning Count Tolstois before the synod for trial, which will involve his being deprived of his civil rights. The synod is enraged on account of Tolstois's open support of the Doukhobors, whose religious tenets, it is claimed, will undermine the very foundations of the Greek church.

On the other hand, the czar, who is really a great admirer of Tolstois, has been trying to convince the aged philosopher of the error of his ways. He is disposed to hearken to the counsel of the numerous friends of Tolstois, yet fears the power of the synod.

Intimate friends of Count Tolstois assert that the peace-loving count will leave Russia of his own accord, and that the sending of his son to Canada in charge of the first deportation of Doukhobors is but a way-paver for his own emigration to Canada.
