Already Talks of the Next War

German Urges Things to Do in Preparation

THIS ONE "YEAR TOO SOON"

An Article in Recent Issue of German Paper Quoted and Replied to By Frenchman—Why Allies Must Fight to Victorious Finish

(Letter in New York Tribune.) Sir—The most highly significant evidence of the German mind, and, by the same token, never intended for publicity outside Germany, is to be found in a recent article in the "Berliner Lokal Anzeiger" over the signature of Walter Rathenau, the individual who, for a number of years before the war, had complete charge of official organization among war need industrial establishments in the German Empire, and who has been deputized to continue his particular work in the supreme effort the Teutonic nation is about to put forth.

This article, which is before my eyes I write, says in full, copied verbatim: "We began the war a year too soon. When we have secured a German peace we must begin at once a re-organization upon a broader and firmer basis than ever before. Establishments that produce raw materials essential to the army must not only continue their work, but enter into it upon lines of increased energy, forming thus the kernel of economic Germany in preparing in the economic sense for the next war. We must carefully calculate in advance, in view of the lessons learned in this war, what our country lacks in raw material or essentials of raw materials, and secure immense reserves to remain unused until day in the future. We must organize genuine industrial mobilization, and we had a military mobilization. Every technician or semi-technician, enrolled or not in the list of mobilized, must be empowered through official credentials to take charge and direction of a given establishment upon the second day following a new declaration of war. Every establishment manufacturing for commercial purposes must also be required to furnish a detailed list of workmen who can be dispensed with, these alone to be mobilized in the military sense.

"It must also be determined in advance just what quantities and sort of essential such establishments can furnish the army in a given time. Each establishment also should be required to furnish a detailed list of workmen who can be dispensed with, these alone to be mobilized in the military sense.

"We must finally establish some definite commercial understanding with nations outside Europe that will offer them advantages to be duly specified in detail whereby these nations, as neutrals, find it to their direct advantage commercially to trade or sell munitions during war to either ourselves or our enemies. We can afford to offer such conditions ourselves. And, finally, when the next war comes, it must not be a year too soon.

Here in a nutshell, or "kernel," to quote Frank Mr. Rathenau, what Allied Europe has long understood, and what has not been truly understood in the United States, is by a relation of fact. It is the reason why the war would be continued for ten years if necessary by France, England and their allies. It is the reason why nothing short of the "knockout" will serve. It is the reason why any talk or effort for peace would be ill-received, even if backed by the best of motives and official sanction from the greatest of neutrals, or the smallest, or all the neutrals collectively.

The war cloud that hung over Europe for thirty years prior to August 1914, must be finally made impossible of repetition. The intolerable conditions prevailing must be finally made impossible of repetition. The horrors and miseries, the suffering and privation, the whole gamut of evil that no single individual can understand through reading the writing of another, that must be seen, felt, experienced through the senses to be grasped even in outer circles, must never again be a worldly portion.

This will only be possible through making war against war until a humane peace is the reward. It would be as impossible under a German peace as would a railway journey to Mars. Germany realizes all I have here written.

EVEN CROSS, SICK CHILDREN LOVE SYRUP OF FIGS

If Feverish, Bilious, Constipated, Give Fruit Laxative at Once.

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste. While bilious, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, indigestion, diarrhoea, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeiters sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Children of all ages and for grown-ups formula Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Hunger Keeping The Germans in Depths of Gloom

People Silent and Weary—Impossible to Obtain Nutritious Food—Everywhere Feeling of Mutual Distrust

It is impossible to obtain nutritious food of any kind in Berlin, according to a correspondence from Germany appearing in a recent issue of the "Flag," a daily published at Budapest, Hungary. The correspondent is Professor P. Agoston, a Hungarian sociologist with an established reputation. Part of Professor Agoston's article, which contains some illuminating information on Germany's present state of mind, follows: "I noticed with surprise that the present German meals will not satisfy one's hunger. Two hours after my meal I felt as hungry as a wolf, which compelled me to look for an other restaurant where to eat again. But all the obtainable food is not sufficiently nutritious. Only once I succeeded in finding in a restaurant a French sausage, the size of my little finger, for which I paid one mark, thirty.

"The food dictator has provided an additional ration for the workers, but the latter had to wait for it. In front of the popular kitchens during the inner hour there stand long lines of hungry and tired workmen, who used to utilize in the past that hour for rest. And it is therefore not surprising that in the evening after the working hours the street cars are packed with sleeping people.

People Silent and Weary
A similar weariness and silence is to be observed throughout the entire country. All are silent and avoid conversation. There is everywhere a feeling of mutual distrust. It is true one will not hear anywhere ever a single word of dissatisfaction, but one will also fail to hear any expression of enthusiasm. Do they not want peace? I will be asked at home. I find it difficult to answer this question. All the papers print the appeal of the Independent Union advocating a "German peace." "What is a 'German peace'?" With this question I turned to a certain German politician. "Is not annexation meant by this term?" "I don't know," was the answer, "and it seems to me that nobody knows, nobody, not even the government leaders. Every one of them wants to show himself a real patriot and considers that this term best expresses a patriotic state of mind. The situation today is such that in this respect there is no difference between the views of the chancellor and the Social-Democrats. The Pan-Germans as well as the Socialists aim at annexation. They differ only in regard to the objects of annexation.

"Here the speaker halted, looked me straight in the face and asked rapidly: 'But is our military situation really such as to allow us to dream of annexation in view of the fact that we lost our colonies?' It seems to me that we are in a situation fighting already a defensive war. We are defending ourselves although those who follow the military situation in Europe at present do not see it as yet. We talk of a victory and annexation because the war in our anti-bellum position.

LONDON HOUSE DANIEL Head of King St.

years preceding the war German industries employed on the average about 15,000,000 workers, only one-fourth of whom were women. Today we have 10,000,000 workers, 75 per cent. of whom are women. These women will be about 6,000,000 or 7,000,000 men, returned from the front, who will seek employment. How are they to make a living if we do not gain victory, if we do not develop the policy guaranteeing them their daily bread? This is no theoretical question; it is a question of life. The Socialists need victory so that the German industries shall be able to market their products. "But will not the German Socialists work for the universal good after the war?" They will declare so and will participate in the congresses of the international. But all that will be merely phrasology. The International will be impossible so long as there is no freedom of commerce. . . . Until this goal is attained there can be no division in the ranks of the Germans."
