

You will be proud of the bread you'll make with PURITY FLOUR

AFTER seeing a batch of big, golden-crust, snowy-white loaves, that you have baked from PURITY FLOUR, you will, indeed, be proud of your cooking-ability—and proud of your wisdom in deciding to pay the little extra it costs to procure such high-class flour. You will admit, too, that we are justified in the pride we take in milling this superb flour.

PURITY FLOUR

"More bread and better bread"

PURITY FLOUR is milled exclusively from the best Western hard wheat—the world's finest. Moreover, PURITY FLOUR consists entirely of the high-grade portions of the wheat. The low-grade portions are separated and excluded during the PURITY process of milling. Such high-class flour, of course, expands more in the baking. It makes "more bread and better bread."

It makes lighter, flakier pastry, too, if you just take the precaution to add more shortening. On account of its unusual strength PURITY FLOUR, for best results, requires more shortening than ordinary flour.

Progressive dealers, everywhere, sell PURITY FLOUR and take pride in recommending it.

La MARQUISE de FONTENOY

Collection of China Worth More Than $1,000,000—Some Comment on The Recent Attempt to Restore Monarchy in Portugal

(Copyright, 1911, by the Brentwood Company.)

Lord Lascelles, who is now in the United States, staying at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York, is the eldest son and heir of the Earl of Harewood, and he has been recently connected with the diplomatic service as an attaché, and also spent some time in Ottawa as A. D. C. to Lord Minto, he formerly held a commission in the Grenadier Guards to which his father has no memory of his ancestors had belonged. He severed his connection with the regiment, following unpleasantness in relation to the duties assigned in the course of which he was compelled under pressure to admit that he had been subjected to maltreatment and abuse, owing to his disinclination to go out with the brigade drag. In one word, Lord Lascelles did not like Harewood, and his fellow-officers, and accordingly left the army.

The family of Lascelles is one of the oldest in Yorkshire, where it has held prominent rank and enjoyed great prestige ever since the reign of King Edward the seventh century ago. The earldom, however, is of relatively modern origin, having been created a little more than 100 years ago in favor of Edward Lascelles, who was the intimate friend of Maria Theresa's son, Emperor Joseph II. The latter presented to Lord Lascelles, who was then a young man, a large estate in Yorkshire, which, along with some Tokay vines, which the earl planted in 1783 at Harewood House, his place in Yorkshire, which, along with his kind in the United Kingdom, still yield a quantity of delicious grapes every year. The first Lord Harewood inherited a vast fortune from his father and uncle, amassed by them in the West Indies, especially in Jamaica and Barbadoes.

His Home

Harewood House is one of the grandest country seats in Great Britain. It was built in the reign of George III, from designs by Adam & Carr, on the site of an ancient manor house known as Gawthorpe, and is famous for its superb painted ceilings. The unique collection of Sevres, old Dresden, and Derby porcelain, valued by experts at considerably more than $1,000,000, and which was the glory of the place, has been sold by the present earl to get rid of the heavy incumbrance on his property. Harewood House stands in a great park of several thousand acres. The present Lord Harewood enjoys complete fame on the pillars of the English Footy Club and as one of the greatest authorities on all matters connected with the turf.

One of the earl's half-brothers, the Hon. Eric Lascelles, died as a traveling showman some days ago in a great railway station. His behavior had been such as to compel his relatives to decline to aid any further in his needless itinerant showman, and looked down upon by everybody. The inquest showed that he had been found dead in his giggy cart.

Another half-brother, the Hon. Francis John Lascelles, now happily married, killed his Chinese cook in a fit of temporary insanity, while out ranching in British Columbia, was tried for murder, and committed to the gaol, where he was subsequently discharged as cured.

A more distinguished member of the family is Sir Francis Lascelles, who is now British Ambassador at Berlin. Sir Frank married the daughter of old Sir Joseph Cliffe, Irish physician to Napoleon III, and the Duc de Morny. Sir Frank's daughter is now married to Sir Cecil Spring Rice, long attached to the embassy at Washington, and now British minister at Stockholm.

Two Princes

As many people are aware there are two Prince Hermans Hatzfeldts, who both filled the office of secretary of the German embassy at Washington in recent years. One of them, Prince Hermann Hatzfeldt Widenburg, (who bore the title of count when over here) and who is now German minister plenipotentiary in Egypt, is half an American. His father was the late Count Paul Hatzfeldt, who died as a German minister, waiting on the German crown prince, daughter of the former German ambassador at Madrid, Baron Gilland-Stumm, and of an American wife, Pauline, daughter of the banker, Louis Hoffman, of New York.

The other Prince Hermann Hatzfeldt is the eldest son of the Duke of Trautenberg, grand cup bearer to the Prussian crown, the duchess having been grand mistress of the household to the late Emperor Frederick. This Prince Hermann, (whose younger brother Count Alexander is married to the daughter of the Japanese ambassador, Viscount Aoki, is councillor and first secretary of the German embassy at Vienna, where he has just been engaged to the daughter of his chief, Eduard von Tschirsky. Von Tschirsky was formerly secretary of state for foreign affairs at Berlin but, making a failure of the job, was sent to Vienna as ambassador, where his failure was somewhat awkward owing to the fact that his wife is an Austrian of bourgeois birth who has been unable to secure presentation at the court of the land of her birth only as a foreign ambassador, her own mother's sisters being baronesses.

The Revalists in Portugal

So much ridicule has been poked at the recent Royalist attempt to re-establish the monarchy in Portugal that it is only fair to mention that to his special advisers in London, such as, for instance, the Marquis de Soveral, to explain that the Revalists are not to do with the affair and that they had strongly disapproved of the enterprise as ill-timed, and organized, and as calculated in every way to damage their cause. The money for the affair certainly did not come from the Revalists, nor from any of his kindred. Neither was it furnished by the widowed Mrs. James Henry Smith, the mother-in-law of Don Miguel of Braganza, Duke of Viseu.

In fact, one of the principal causes of the failure of the venture, was the absence of money and the only personage of any note identified with the affair was the fair looking Marquis de Soveral, who is a young man, Prince Francis Joseph of Braganza, Nov. 6, if there was a man who was calculated to damage cause by associating himself with it it is in this particular prince. In July, 1892 he was arrested in London in the neighborhood of St. James' Park, charged with a particularly unseemly offense, and after appearing in the prison court, he was committed to the Old Bailey. His kinsman, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, next heir to the Austro-Hungarian throne, was in London at the time for the purpose of attending the coronation of King Edward and was only declined to his own return to have severed the prince's connection with the Austrian army, in which he then held a commission as lieutenant of the 7th Hussar regiment.

In one word the prince was turned out of the Austrian army, and has become a refugee, as far as the great world of Vienna is concerned. He has become a traitor at the Old Bailey, the prince is up and coming, as far as the international infamy and consequent unreliability of the prince is concerned, he is a member of the international swindler known to the European police as "the bogus Vanderbilts," owing to his having passed himself off as a member of the Vanderbilts family. At first the prince was accused of being a confederate, but subsequently it was demonstrated that he was more of a dupe, and he escaped, without any other blame than that of having been associated with blacklegs and swindlers.

That a prince with such a record as this should undertake to lead a Royalist movement in Portugal was bound to damage it from the outset. For, unpopularity in Portugal under the republican regime, when promised so much and has accomplished so little, subjecting the people to greater despotism and to more onerous taxation than under any of the former kings at Lisbon, the nation would be infinitely worse off under the rule of a monarch so thoroughly discredited and so completely foolish as Prince Francis Joseph of Braganza.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

ONE of my letter friends has been kind enough to send me a description of some of the remedies he has found successful for insomnia.

Knowing that there are always many sad people to whom, what should be hours of sweet unconsciousness, are hours of tortured tossing, I take pleasure in passing on his suggestions.

If they help but one person to a few hours more sleep, I am sure that every one who has ever suffered the agony of insomnia will think this space well utilized.

"During a time of trouble and restless sleeplessness," he writes, "I discovered the efficiency of some little remedies. I noticed that approaching sleep was at that time most often disturbed by common noises which had hardly entered my consciousness when the mind was in its normal state. When sleep came long after midnight, it was short, because, soon disturbed by the noise of the awakening city, which, combined with the daylight, made it impossible to find the much needed rest.

"The discovery of these causes suggested to me the following remedies: Put cotton in my ears—as much of it as possible—and blindfold myself. Thus I reduced the disturbing causes to a minimum and the effect was most beneficial and helped the mind a good deal in overcoming the initial restlessness.

"The blindfold should be a good heat conductor (linen or cotton) to prevent accumulation of heat underneath. It should cover the eyes from the eyebrows to the cheek bones, leaving the forehead free.

"I find these little helps also mental if I need a short rest during the day in order to make my most restful and refreshing sleep at night, and in my case, with the best results.

"Of course, I do not allow myself to form a habit of the use of these helps in order to make my sleep entirely dependent upon them."

May I add to these a mention of the remedies which I have heard of elsewhere or personally found effective?

So if you may have mentioned some of them before, but such is my sympathy for any one suffering with insomnia, that I cannot resist an opportunity to give all possible remedies the widest publicity.

Least until you have tried to get to sleep know how preternaturally alive and active the brain becomes with each moment of wakefulness. While the mind is in this state you might as well hunt deer in front of the city hall as stalk wild game.

If you possibly can, get up and read something that will take the mind off itself and pacify it. Read something fairly absorbing but not too exciting, and especially not a pleasant, often, interesting novel or story.

Drawing the blood away from the head in some way is a great cure for sleeplessness. Put cold clothes on your head and something hot to your feet. Bathe your face and forehead in alcohol. Eat something, thus drawing the blood from the head to the stomach. Do a few vigorous exercises that will send the blood tingling all over the system.

Unrecognized indigestion often causes sleeplessness. Try drinking a cup of hot water.

And now one "don't." If you are anything like me, don't try counting sheep or repeating poetry. Of course, I can only speak for myself, but my own experience has been that nothing stirs my mind to such angry activity as these "hothead" devices.

Here's fervently hoping that you won't care for this talk at all because you have no need of it.

MEN ARE HELPLESS AS CHILDREN

When Taken Suddenly Ill—Here is a Common-Sense Safeguard

Big, strong men are as helpless infants when they are suddenly ill.

The sturdiest chap in town usually loses his self-control and is utterly unable to regard his condition with the common sense that characterizes his every-day actions.

For example: He comes home tired, eats a heavy dinner and sits down to read and smoke away a quiet evening.

Suddenly he notices a weight on his stomach; then sharp pains around his heart, and a feeling of oppression.

Thoughts of "heart disease" flash over him, and in his mind he has the word "stroke."

His trouble is not indigestion, brought on by overeating and tired stomach, but a case of Recal Dyspepsia Tablets.

A couple of Recal Dyspepsia Tablets might have given him relief—might have saved him hours of suffering.

Carry a package of Recal Dyspepsia Tablets in your vest pocket or keep them in your room. Take one after each heavy meal, and ward off indigestion.

Recal Dyspepsia Tablets relieve stomach troubles by acting nature to supply those elements, the absence of which in the gastric juices, causes indigestion and dyspepsia. They tend to aid the stomach to digest all kinds of food and to quickly convert it into rich red blood.

I know what Recal Dyspepsia Tablets are and what they will do. I guarantee them to relieve indigestion and dyspepsia. If they fail, I will refund your money.

No Alum—No Lime Phosphates

ADVICE BY ST. JOHN HEALTH OFFICER TO PEOPLE FOR WINTER

In his monthly report, Dr. G. G. Melvin, health officer, gives the following advice:

With the cold weather so close ahead of us, something about clothing might not be inappropriate. Do not smother the body with heavy and thick garments, especially underwear. Remember that there is only a little real difference in the "warmth" or cold-excluding qualities between the various fabrics of cotton and wool. The latter is warmer because of its ability to hold more air between its fibres than cotton.

By far the most important thing in retaining the warmth of the body, or excluding the cold, which is the same thing, is the imprisoned air, which when it gets warmer by the heat of the body, is the true protector against cold.

One can then easily understand why two comparatively thin and light weight garments are more apt to be warmer than a thick one of greater weight than the two combined. You must also remember that, although the weather, outside, may be low zero, most of us spend three-fourths or more of our time, inside our homes or offices in a temperature very decidedly above that of our average summer.

What fully, then, to live in this atmosphere, enclosed in thick woollen wear, and yet to be generally more than July in our house in winter. The logical and sanitary thing then, as far as under clothing is concerned is to dress only a little more carefully for indoor winter life, in order to protect ourselves against drafts which are far more pronounced in this season, and when going out, to defend ourselves against the cold by adding outside garments. Especially should this be done while driving as the body is then inactive, and muscular activity is one of the main producers of animal heat. Because of this those whose work is largely out of doors in winter and which calls for continuous physical exertion, make a mistake when they would wear thick dress next to the skin. Here, again, garments of lighter texture, double if necessary, will give better results than a single weighty one, both as regards comfort and healthfulness. It should also, not be forgotten that clean clothing is every means to get well, but there was no cure for me until I began taking your No. 10 Lang Pills. It was not long after returning home that I experienced health and vigor. I am in good health, and feel like a new man. I praise it every day. I have never felt so good since I was a child. I would like to let you know for an unwilling 'let' the world know what this medicine did for me, and I would like to praise it to the hilt."

Mrs. John S. Barber.

The above prescription is not a "Cure All" or so-called secret medicine. Dr. Morriess' Pills are for 44 years, and it cured thousands after other doctors failed.

SAYS GOVERNMENT SHOULD OPERATE ALASKA GOLD MINES

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 6—United States Senator Miles Poindexter, on returning to his home after a trip to Alaska, on which he was accompanied by Gifford Pinchot, formerly forester of the United States, says that, after seeing the real situation in the far northern territory, he is still of the opinion that the federal government should open and operate enough gold mines there to control the price and the competition.

Weak Lungs Restored by Morriess' "No. 10."

ST. JOHN, N. B., Nov. 17, 1910.

"I had Pneumo-Pneumonia and was taken to the City Hospital to have my lungs tapped. After this was done I seemed to get worse, and never expected to walk again. In fact, I was given up and wanted to be taken home from the hospital. I was in a terribly sandy condition and felt that I was going right into consumption, and for six months was just a shadow. I tried every means to get well, but there was no cure for me until I began taking your No. 10 Lang Pills. It was not long after returning home that I experienced health and vigor. I am in good health, and feel like a new man. I praise it every day. I have never felt so good since I was a child. DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

CURE ALL KIDNEY DISEASES

THE BELL OF THE BRITISH FRIGATE Lantini, which sank off the British Coast in 1790, with a cargo of coin and specie valued at $200,000,000 is the "bad news" bell at a shipping insurance office in London. Whenever news is received that a ship is overdue, or when definite news comes of the loss of a ship, the bell is rung by the "call-er." At its tolling all transactions are suspended, and the news is heralded as such.

"Bad news" is the bell in the human body. The impediment of a diseased kidney is absolutely unknown among civilized races.

Take from a man every gift but sincerity; let him be blind and deaf and lame; let him stammer in his speech, lack education and good manners; handicap him in his pleasure; so you leave him stupidity and he will command respect and attention.

It is always looking for the real thing, will gladly overlook all his infirmities. In every relation of his shrewdly in the secret of power. The salesman who does not himself sincerely believe in the merits of his goods will generally be a failure. The business man who sets about to fool other people must end, as he has, in fact, begun, by making a fool of himself. The clergyman who preaches anything that his soul does not approve need look no further to explain empty words. There is no virtue that more men believe in and fewer men practice.
