The Black Brook School House and Editor of the Advance: SIR-If it is worth noticing please allow me to say that all the bluster over certain gentlemen not being allowed to hold a political meeting in the School House at Black Brook is like, everything else connected with the "Ticket"-only sham. If there were no other reasons, the use, or rather the abuse of permitting school houses to be occupied for the din school houses to be occupied for the din and dirt of political meetings is question-able, if not exceedingly improper, moral-ly, to say nothing of the damage to the buildings and furniture that must result. From the use of the school to that of the church for political purposes there is but a step, which the "Ticket" led by Mr. Adams, were bold enough to take. On cover up their impropriety they now attribute all sorts of motives to us here, and give the usual malign currency to them through the columns of that "Union Advocate" of Christian graces—that gall and liver of Mr. Adams, through which
