They have sold more dress goods-both Stuffs and Cambrics the past week-when nobody was thinking of dress goods-than ever when everybody was thinking of dress goods. Only one reason for that.

In Paris they have a custom which might seem a trifle odd to the average American store-keeper, but which could hardly fail to have a good effect on trade in general. Whenever a Paris shop-keeper advertises goods at "cost," a government official, defends with an impromptu dance at her home on the purpose, promptly swoops on him, and makes a careful inin order to satisfy himself that

If the latter is detected in fraud, an adequate punishment is promptly meted out to him. They don't deny a man's right to sell his own property at less than cost if he chooses, but he must not publish lying advertisements. Some of our Canadian store-keepers would doubtless find this rule a little severe; but what a wholesome effect it would have in cutting down the number of so called bargain sales !—Ex.

We would still have our "bargain sale" and shouldn't be a bit afraid of one government official. As it is we submit to the inspection of hundreds of ladies every day whose judgement in this line no one will question, and we have yet to hear of one case where they were not more than satisfied that we were carrying out what we advertised.

stores of C. H. Smith & Co. and G. S. Wall.]

AuG. 14.—The most brilliant social event of the season was the party given, last evening, by Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young, at their beautiful home. Dover Hill. On driving into the grounds we found it ablaze with light from electric burners. All along the road, and the low granite wall that separates the lawn from the highway, were crowds of eager spectators gazing at the beauty of the scene. The grounds surrounding the house slope toward the river's edge, and are dotted with tall elms and ancient pines, in which were hung Chinese lanterns of every color. The piazzas were gay with flags, bunting and lanterns. Flags of all nations were suspended along the path that led to the ball-room, which had the novelty of being out on the lawn. An immense platform, some 60 or 80 feet long, was built in the grove, electric lights were placed at each end, and here the dancers enjoyed themselves to the utmost. It certainly was a beautiful scene. The moon, rising slowly behind a tall old pine, never looked down on a more brilliant throng. The beauty and rich costumes of the ladies, the sweet strains of the waltz music, the gay laughter, and bright flags and lanterns made a picture that no artist could portray. I ces were served during the evening, and at 12 o'clock supper was announced. After supper the guests returned to the ball-room and danced until old Sol, looking out of the east, bade them wish their host and hostess bon nuit instead of bon soir. Mr. and Mrs. Young received their guests in their usual charming manner, Mrs. Young looking very finely in a handsome deress of white silk, striped with gold. The ladies all looked exceedingly well and richly attired.
