Mr Monro was sent for, and gave orders that no further collections should be made and that the money ~~was to be returned~~ already collected should be returned. Each immigrant, therefore, landed with his $25.00. Had the money all been collected and returned ~~sufficiently~~ in the manner which Mr Monro thought ~~of~~ intended it is probable ~~he would have~~ that none of it would have ever come back to Honolulu, as it was many of the Japanese with this amount in their possession spurned the offers of assistance which were made to them by the boarding house keepers and sought ~~to be~~ the fortunes of their own countrymen. The fortune which had favoured the Canadian soil. Mr Hamyama had a difficult task, he was able by allowing a small commission to the boarding house keepers, ~~to~~ out of the money which the Japanese had been allowed to retain, but his challenge was accepted and he ~~resolved~~ on the 26th of August ~~to the September~~ on hand to look after the interests of his clients
