IMMIGRATION

Particular attention is being paid to the development of increased immigration from Great Britain, and not only has the Government initiated a policy of assisted passages of immigrants from Great Britain in co-operation with the Overseas Settlement Committee, but it has instituted a scheme of assisted settlement of approved British farmers on Canadian Government farms. Under this scheme it is intended that 3,000 farmers shall be brought out from Great Britain in the next three years. The Canadian Government undertakes to provide farms and buildings at reasonable cost on long term payments, and the British Government agrees to provide up to 300 pounds ^{for each farmer} for live stock and equipment.

A vigorous policy has also been outlined and is being carried into effect by the Government with a view to securing immigrants from countries whose citizens are particularly adapted to conditions of life in this country, e.g. Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland. In addition to taking such active steps to increase the proper type of immigration, the present Government has reorganized the Soldier Settlement Board into the Land Settlement Branch of the Department of Colonization with a
