

a part of the inheritance of mankind. The world is dangerously near the place where a decision must be come to as to which of these two laws is ultimately to prevail.

decision must be finally made

With scientific research holding ever greater potentialities for good or ill, the nations are inevitably advancing either toward a world brotherhood, or toward total annihilation. Let us keep in mind obedience to the law of Peace, Work and Health, and then, Science, in the words of Pasteur, will have done her best "by obeying the law of Humanity to extend the frontiers of life". We, on our part, will in this way, have done the best we can to raise the only fitting and enduring monument - "To Those Who Served".
