MISS FLORENCE CORBETT.

A Clever Young Woman Who is an Expert on Dietetics.

Miss Florence Corbett, consulting dietitian, is one of the most important officials of the charities department of Brooklyn, and her work is all of a scientific nature.

"Look into this! See about this! How are meals cooked at the almshouse? How are the kitchens and dining rooms at the Metropolitan hospital arranged with relation to dietetics? Taking into account the money spent at that institution, could better results be obtained for the same expenditure? Is the service all it might be here, and might not the food be made more appetizing there?"

These are samples of the questions the commissioner brings up almost daily before his consulting dietitian.

Miss Florence Corbett was one of the students in the Kansas State Agricultural college a few years ago.

MISS FLORENCE CORBETT.

working on foods, general science, biology, physiology, diet, domestic science. Even then she had a clear ambition of what she wanted to do. Completing her course there, she took a postgraduate course, not neglecting to get a good practical knowledge of how to cook thoroughly and well. Then she came east and took two terms, or about two-thirds of a year, at the Pratt Institute in domestic science. Equipped for her novel profession as well as the technical schools could make her, she got a post in the Elizabeth hospital, half as scientist, half as practical executive, seeing to everything from the moment the raw material came out of the storeroom until it was finally served to patients, nurses and staff.

But in Elizabeth there was too small a field. Her work was too varied in the Elizabeth hospital, with too little of a chance to bring her scientific acquirements and practical theories into play. The ground was, however, broken. She had made a start, and a substantial one, and when some months later she got into communication with Dr. Duryea of the Kings County hospital and outlined to him her ambitions and the possibilities of the profession she was pioneering Dr. Duryea decided that this was just the sort of official he needed.

At the Kings County hospital Miss Corbett was dietitian, and she still remains on the city pay roll as such, though now in the charities department central office her duties are very different. Her advancement is exceptionally interesting, for her studies and investigations as an expert in all matters that concern food, its preparation and its service may quite possibly bring about great changes in the conduct of all the institutions under the city's charge.

This is the first time the dietary of charitable institutions in any American city has been subjected to scientific study.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Well-Bred Woman.
"Always and ever the young woman in public places shows her breeding to the observing stranger, first by her walk, sedate, yet with buoyancy that does not attract undue attention, then by her talk, which is in well modulated tones, designed for the ear of the person whom she is addressing and not pitched in such a key and delivered in such a style as to impress one that she is talking for the benefit of the strangers around her—a foolish vanity which some are known to indulge in—also, good breeding is shown in her general manner, which, if it betrays native vivacity in unguarded moments, does not give way to vehement gestures or a dramatic display of facial expression better suited to the stage, and, lastly, count dress among these things, since it declares the choice of the individual very particularly, says a writer in Modern Woman. Happy she whose purse is measured to her taste! Perhaps she is happier whose taste is fitted to the purse, but may the taste be not for what is gaudy or extravagant merely, but for things adequate, elegant and appropriate—things such as enhance a woman's beauty and hang upon her body more as suggestions of the soul's enrichment than as an advertisement of the skill of the highest priced milliners and modistes.

Wife and Partner.
Marriage is a partnership in a special sense, in which the man is generally the breadwinner, but it by no means follows that the woman is merely an ornament or a doll arrayed in pretty dresses or house gowns. In the ideal home the wife bears her share of the burdens that must come, it would seem, to us all. She keeps the house more or less elaborate, according to the circumstances. If she has one servant or more her burdens take other forms than if she did her own work. If she has children there is the responsibility of caring for them. The mother's influence upon her children for good or evil is very great. If there are guests at the home the matter of entertainment devolves largely upon the wife. Her duties are multifarious, and when she has done all she is expected to be a companion for her husband and to be interested in the things in which he is interested. All this is just as much contribution to the household happiness and comfort as the money the husband brings home every week. In business matters the wife should be treated like a business partner; she should have an allowance and should not have a false sentiment about asking for it.—Woman's Home Companion.

Make Baby Comfortable.
Don't make baby's dress too tight, says a writer in Good Housekeeping. Many a baby frets and cries simply because the little arms are restricted, or the neckband is too tight. By making baby's first clothes large you will save yourself much extra work and many fretful days. My baby wore her first dresses until she wore them out, some being in use when she was two and a half years old. No change was necessary save in length of skirt. Recently I saw a big, overgrown baby of six months whose yoke met only at one button. I asked the mother if I might loosen the clothes. I did so and found that the sleeves, made for a small baby, now cut into the fat arms. The baby at once stopped fretting.

Cheese Fondue.
Savarin's famous recipe for cheese fondue is worth preserving and should be pasted on the fly leaf of the cook-book most often in use. "Take first as many eggs as there are guests and then about one-third as much by weight of the best Gruyere cheese and half of that of butter. Break and beat up the eggs well in a saucepan, then add the butter and the cheese, grated or cut into small pieces. Place the saucepan on the fire and stir with a wooden spoon until it is of a soft consistency; put in salt according to the age of the cheese and a strong dose of pepper, that being a special attribute of this ancient dish, and finally let it be brought to the table on a hot dish."

The Ready Made Hat.
A girl having good taste and whose observation of the smartest hat models leads her to fix in her mind certain modes of trimming may with very little expense add lace, ribbon or a spray of flowers to the ready made hats sold at so moderate a price at the department shops. This is the cheapest way to secure a pretty hat. Those who wear them as they are sold usually appear most commonplace in their dress, while those who invest them with a fashionable air are never suspected of their amateur cleverness, so professional does the hat look on their heads.—Buffalo News.

The Neck.
Nearly every woman believes that a black velvet band brightens the beauty of her neck when in low corsage. Especially if it be long and slender does she insist upon putting black velvet or a narrow necklace about it, and thus she makes it look even longer and more slender. The effect is to make the neck appear longer and the face thinner. It is the stout woman with a too plump neck who may thus decorate herself.

Shirt Buttonholes.
When shirts give out at the buttonholes, take a piece of linen tape as wide as the neckband and put a piece inside and outside about an inch each side of the buttonhole. Overcast it neatly at top and sew down flat. Then cut and make a new buttonhole over the old one. It will last the shirt out. When laundered, you would hardly know it had been mended.

Home Corned Beef.
Home corned beef is better than that corned in the market. Make the brine of two quarts of water, two cups of salt and two teaspoons of saltpeter. Put it in a covered jar. Turn the beef when it has been in the brine for two days and allow it to stay in for two or three days longer. The rump is the best piece for corning.

Discolored Piano Keys.
Discolored piano keys can with care be restored to their proper color. Dilute one ounce of nitric acid in ten ounces of soft water. Apply this liquid to the ivory with a brush, taking care that none of it touches the wood on which the ivory is veneered. Wash off the acid with a piece of flannel dipped in clean water.

An Enamelled Floor.
An excellent way for treating the floor of a girl's bedroom is to enamel it in some pretty art color and have a rug on it. Such a floor is easily kept clean, always looks dainty and, if given a thin coat of enamel every year, can be kept in good condition.

The brush and tray service for the removal of crumbs from the tablecloth is out of date. Use a folded napkin and a plate or one of the silver scrapers that come for the purpose.

Let the home be cheerful, a place where the husband or son, when returned from his daily toil, may find a haven of rest, an oasis in the desert.

The stout girl must gain control over her waist and abdominal muscles. She must sit and stand correctly.

A little lemon juice in the shampoo water will lighten the hair.

TOLD IN A DREAM.

The Message That a Dying Girl Conveyed to Her Brother.

Here is an interesting, if somewhat "creepy," story which reaches us from a correspondent upon whose good faith we can rely: A certain young lady, whom we will call Mary A., was recovering from illness. The doctor had declared her to be out of danger, and her friends and relatives were rejoicing in the fact. Nevertheless, Miss A., receiving a visit one day from a sister, gravely assured her that she was going to die. The sister, who was a nurse, and treated it as an invalid's fancy. Miss A., however, with the utmost calmness, repeated her statement. She was certain that she would die that night and begged her sister to fetch her parents and other relatives to say good-bye. Thinking to humor her, the sister complied. One person was absent from this strange family gathering—a brother, who was at sea and was expected home in a week or two. "But it does not matter," Miss A. quietly observed. "I saw him last night in a dream and said good-bye to him in his cabin." Before the sun rose again Miss A.'s prediction had come true; she was dead. That, however, is not the strangest part of this weird story. When in due time the sailor brother reached port he was met by his other sister who began to tell him the sad news. "Ah," he interrupted, "you need not tell me! Mary is dead. I know it, for she came to me one night in my dreams and told me she was going to die and wanted to say good-bye." On comparing dates it was found that the dreams were dreamed on the selfsame night—London News.
