EMPIRE TYPES.

Have Canadians and Anzacs Distinctive Faces?

Some who watched Saturday's march of the overseas troops fancied they detected the emergence of national types. Seeing large bodies of men from Australia, Canada and New Zealand in the mass is a different thing from coming an equal number scattered in various places. It was the long succession of faces which seemed to imprint on the observer's brain a recognizable composite photograph, as it were, of the Australian, Canadian and New Zealander, respectively.

Comparing impressions after the march, two men who cherished this fancy agreed on the Australian and Canadian types. The Australian, they told each other, was a fine fellow physically, and had a countenance which would look well on an old Roman coin, there being about him a suggestion of beaked nose and ancient imperialism. The Canadian, on the other hand, was more English in his traits, and but for a certain breadth of feature might make an excellent Cockney. As for the New Zealander, one of the two observers had carried away an impression of slighter and more agile make, with a richer coloring, both in face and eyes, than either the Australian or the Canadian. The second man denied that New Zealand had evolved a type, but as he happened to be a New Zealander himself it might be argued that his perception was obscured by familiarity.

Fairville, Sept. 30, 1902. Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

Dear Sirs—We wish to inform you that we consider your MINARD'S LINIMENT a very superior article, and we use it as a sure relief for sore throat and chest. When I tell you I would not be without it if the price was one dollar a bottle, I mean it.

Yours truly, CHAS. F. TILTON.

Prof. Keith, the eminent anthropologist, who has recently been giving us such interesting lessons from the human skull, was asked whether this empirical theory of types was soundly based. Though sympathetic, he was not reassuring, being inclined to think that if Englishmen and their overseas brethren were mingled in equal proportions, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to distinguish between them. Climatic conditions produced superficial differences. The New Zealander's color, for example, might be ascribed to the atmospheric surroundings of his life at home; to the same causes, indeed, which impart the tinge to the Englishman's cheek, and to which the English girl owes her complexion.

But science is so far from being dogmatic as to question that it regrets the opportunity afforded by the massed presence of so many members of the British family in England has been lost owing to the immediate necessities of war. Instructive data might have been obtained if authority had not been compelled to fix its attention on more urgent matters. Even now there remains a chance of securing details of the kind to which science can pay attention before the great battalions are broken up forever.—London Times.

Do Figures Lie?

An Irishman working for a Dutchman asked for an increase of pay. The Dutchman replied: "If you are worth it I will be pleased to give it to you. Now let us see what you do in a year. Pat. We have 365 days in a year; you sleep eight hours every day, which makes 122 days you sleep, taken from 365 days, leaves 243. Now you have eight hours' recreation every day, which makes 122 days, taken from 243 days, leaves 121 days. We have 52 Sundays in a year, which you have off, leaving you 69 days. You have 14 days' vacation; take this off and you have 55 days left. You don't work Saturday afternoons; this makes 26 days in a year. Take this off and you have 29 days left. Now, Pat, you allow 1-2 hours for meals, which total in a year 28 days. Take this off and you have one day left. I always give you St. Patrick's Day off, so I ask you, Pat, if you are entitled to a raise?"

Pat then answered, "Well, what the devil have I been doing, then?"

WILLING TO OBLIGE.

A woman who was troubled with chronic headache, and who frequently cried out in her sleep, advertised for room and board with a family who would not object to receiving in the night. Among the answers she received was one which asked:— "How often would you require us to scream?"

PEARLS ARE SCARCE.

Big Prices Asked for Russian Crown Jewels.

Chicago—Peter the Great's mother's pearl necklace recently went begging when put up for sale at an auction in London. This might seem at first to indicate that pearls are not so popular among fashionable people as dealers have insisted. But it doesn't. It indicates merely that present record prices have set a limit to the number of pearls a person can purchase at one time.

The necklace consisted of 128 pearls, the largest weighing 28 grains, and the entire necklace weighing 4,000 grains. The reserve price placed on it by the auctioneer was $1,250,000. Only $300,000 was bid, and the necklace was withdrawn from sale. It is said it will be broken up. The separate pearls doubtless will be sold quickly, for pearl dealers declare they can get their own price for any good pearl in London or Paris.

The cause of the demand for pearls is a world's shortage. The Oriental fisheries are exhausted of all except the smaller kinds, and European dealers are depending for their supply on family collections, many of them ancient and historic, which have been thrown on the market as a result of the war's wrecking of many private fortunes.

The old Czarina's pearl necklace is the first of the Russian crown jewels, known to be such, that have been offered for sale out of Russia. The cablegram concerning London auction said the necklace "was brought to England under unusual circumstances, having been wound around the body of the carrier." It did not mention who the "carrier" was—a bit of information that might have proved highly interesting. The Russian crown jewels have disappeared, and it has been generally believed they were stolen, broken up and smuggled out of Russia for sale in other lands. Some of them are supposed, in altered form, to have reached the United States.

PROHIBITION'S WORK.

Money Saloonkeepers Got Now Goes to Jewelers.

Chicago—Prohibition according to jewelers, was the chief cause of an unusually heavy Christmas trade in all lines of jewelry.

"There is, I think, no doubt about this," said a Chicago jeweler. "Prohibition has resulted in the saving of much money among all classes and the Christmas spirit loosened the strings of better filled purses. The money that used to go across the bars has been put into gifts for jewels for sweethearts and wives. What the saloon keepers lost, the jewelers gained.

"I have never seen anything like the eagerness to buy diamonds. This in spite of the fact that diamonds are selling at three times their price before the war. A good diamond is cheap at $1,000 a carat, but the demand for them is world wide and jewelers cannot buy them in sufficient quantities to supply the trade.

"Another outstanding feature of Christmas shopping has been the unprecedented demand for platinum settings. But despite platinum's wonderful popularity, more gold jewelry has been sold than in any former season in my memory. Filled golds are becoming obsolete; nobody wants them. Formerly the bulk of the gold jewelry sold was of the 10-carat grade. Now it is of the higher grades ranging from 14 to 22 cents. People insist on getting the finest goods. Many women buy wrist watches for $1,500 and $2,000, and think there are no desirable ones for less than $500.

"In the better stores the $100 watch is an article of common sale to-day. Only the best time-pieces are in demand—those of seventeen, nineteen, twenty-one and twenty-three jewels. A similar change has come in the fashions in clocks. The old-fashioned clocks with black cases adorned with little columns is disappearing. More expensive clocks, those with mahogany cases and chime clocks are the kinds that appeal to buyers. Sales of silverware have been large and many people buy a few pieces at a time with the idea of starting a collection. In a few years they will have as fine a collection as any that formerly could be found only in the homes of the rich."

NOTHING TO EQUAL BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. Alfred Naud, Natagan River, Que., writes:—"I do not think there is any other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones. I have used them for my baby and would use nothing else." What Mrs. Naud says thousands of other mothers say. They have found by trial that the Tablets always do just what is claimed for them. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach and thus banish indigestion, constipation, colic, colds, etc. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, One.

Reason and Instinct.

A certain north country miner was particularly proud of a clever little dog he possessed. At times he was apt to claim too much for his pet, and one morning a neighbor was endeavoring to point out the difference between instinct and reason when an amusing interruption occurred. A seedy looking tramp turned the corner, and the dog, without so much as a word from his master, sprang into the road and offered battle.

"There you are," laughed the miner as the dog snarled and snarled around the heels of the tramp. "He don't like the looks of the chap. That's instinct."

Suddenly the tramp turned and kicked the dog into an adjacent field.

"There you are," exclaimed the miner's friend grimly. "The chap don't like the looks of the dog. And that's reason."—London Tit-Bits.

"There never is any variety in this bill of fare," growled the pessimistic patron.

"You forget the typographical errors, sir," replied the facetious waiter.

Ideal Politics.

What I wish first to insist upon is the essential worth, notably, primary indeed, of the liberal pursuit of politics. It is simply the highest, the most dignified, the most important of all earthly objects of human study. Next to the relations of man with his maker there is nothing so deserving his best attention as his relation to his fellow men. The welfare of the community is always more important than the welfare of any individual or number of individuals, and the welfare of the community is the highest object of the study of politics.—Whitelaw Reid.

After All His Trouble.

Two men were hurrying along Park Row when the wind seemed to be blowing from all directions to the peril of umbrellas and anything not firmly anchored. One of them noticed the handle of a wrecked umbrella which had been thrown into the street along with many others, and stopping to pick it up, remarked to his companion that it was too good to pass. As he stooped a gust of wind captured his hat, and it went spinning along toward St. Paul's Chapel, he after it. He ran into a man, slipped, fell in the mud and arose in time to see his hat run over by a truck. At a nearby restaurant, where he was drying his clothes, he said: "I lost a five-dollar hat and spoiled a suit of clothes for the handle of a thirty-cent umbrella. That would not be so bad, but I see the handle is broken."—New York Tribune.

Spinning a Web.

A patient Englishman, who last summer watched a garden spider spin its nest from start to finish, has told what he saw in Knowledge. At half past 9 o'clock in the evening the spider, a half grown female began work by dropping from one branch of a pine tree to another below and there making fast a line, which eventually formed two of the perpendicular radiating lines of the web. From that time it continued to work without interruption until twenty-five minutes after 1 the next morning. The network and the radial lines were done by half past 12, and the spiral part of the web was consequently made in less than an hour. He says the finished web was one of the most perfect he has ever seen.

To Open a Pocketknife.

Opening pocketknives is often very hard on finger nails, and a stiff hinged penknife or jackknife is particularly useless to a boy if he can't open it readily. Tear off a piece of newspaper or writing paper about three inches square. Fold it across once and then slip the crease under the blade of the knife. Grasp the paper firmly between the thumb and forefinger. Then pull steadily as if you were opening the knife without the paper. If you do not jerk it the paper will not tear. In this way you can open many a rusty blade that has been useless for months.

Rice Omelet With Bacon.

This is a very hearty and delicious dish. Warm one cupful of boiled and seasoned rice with one tablespoonful of melted butter and milk enough to make like "drop batter."
