D. S. Patterson, O. L. Lewis, W. A. Hadley, W. R. Landon, C. C. Greening, Dr. J. H. Duncan, Dr. T. C. Holmes, A.
E. Pilkey, Miss Stephenson, Mrs.
Kingsmill.Under the auspices of the loyal and energetic ladies of the Red Cross Society there was presented in the Grand Opera House last evening one of the most successful patriotic concerts yet held in this district. There was a large and enthusiastic audience present and an exceedingly delightful and brilliant program was presented.The stage setting and decorations were most fascinating, and the work of the skilled hands of Ivor E. Brock, of the firm of Thomas Stone & Son.
The ushers were the young ladies of the Red Cross Society, becomingly attired in the costumes of their sisters in active service, and most gracefully and satisfactorily did they perform their arduous and unique duties.Major J. B. Rankin was the chairman, and in a brief and appropriate address outlined and eulogized the work of the Red Cross Society from its inception. Its mission was lofty, ennobling and Christian. In eloquent words Major Rankin paid tribute to the unflinching loyalty of these ladies on the battlefield, and the equally earnest self-sacrificing efforts of their loyal sisters at home.The program in its entirety was indeed a delightful one, and met with a most cordial reception at the hands of a large and enthusiastic audience.It was presented under the musical direction of Prof. E. J. Forsythe, to whose energy and skill the successful presentation was but another tributute. The orchestra was conducted by Dr. L. C. DeWolfe and rendered excellent music, while Miss Nellie Rhody, the accomplished pianist, was the accompanist.The City Band, under the direction of Conductor Harry C. Philp, and the Excelsior Band, under the direction of Conductor Gus Seymour, presented the initial number in either part of the enjoyable and varied program, and obtained a most hearty reception.
Their excellent renditions were much enjoyed.

SOME FINE FEATURES.

The choruses, under the direction of Professor Forsythe, were all excellent numbers and included an admirable rendition of the Maple Leaf with splendid solo by Harry Horstead.Miss Lizzy Smith, the accomplished soprano of St. Joseph's Church, gave a delightful rendition of the solo, "Who carries the gun?" which met with an enthusiastic reception.Miss Alice Humphrey, in her magnificent rendering of the sacred solo, "For all Eternity," won many well-deserved praises. Miss Humphrey possesses a splendid voice of remarkable range.The capital melody by the male quartet, H. Horstead, G. O'Hara, M.
Sheldon and J. W. Wilson, was exceedingly well rendered and heartily honored.Miss Edna Ide, the accomplished soprano, is always an especial favorite with Maple City lovers of music. Miss Ide is always at her best—and a very brilliant and delightful her voice and her magnificent solo was most heartily appreciated.Miss Maude Oliver gave a brilliant and exquisite rendition of the admirable and rich soprano solo, "The Swallows," which showed to splendid advantage the range and quality of her voice. Henry McCaw rendered a delightful violin obligato to the accompaniment, while the piano accompaniment was played by Wm. H. Brackin. Miss Oliver was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses.The Naval Brigade in Fun and Fight—the conception of Ivor E. Brock —admirably carried out by Gunners Frank Dennis, Harry Wemp, Tom Baxter, Charlie Holmes and Bugler Wal-ter Peck—was an admirable number which evoked hearty recognition.A most pleasing feature of the program was the magnificent rendition of the splendid patriotic song "Children of the Empire," by the Maple City's popular young baritone, William H. Brackin. This splendid song was composed by Miss J. M. Hill, a relative of Mrs. Robert O'Hara, of this city, residing in the Emerald Isle, and the music was composed by Miss Ethel Benningfield, a musical writer of great prominence in Ireland. Mrs.
O'Hara received an initial copy from the composer of the stirring song, which sets forth the idea of the Empire as it now exists throughout the British Dominions, and was last evening rendered by special request for the first time in Canada. Major Rankin, in announcing the number, took occasion to pay tribute to the honor earned by the Land of the Shamrock in the present South African war, and said:
"The song is by an Irish composer," he said, "the music is from an Irish mind, and the song has come to us from Ireland, and," he added amid laughter and applause, "the young gentlemen who will sing it tonight is also from the core." Mr. Brackin gave a magnificent rendition of the inspiring song, and in response to an enthusiastic encore sang, "There's a Dad," by Althea. His piano accompaniment was exquisitely played by Miss Clara Blight.Miss Gertrude Mae Swan, the accomplished elocutionist, gave an admirable patriotic rendition and was heartily received. The young lady possesses a splendid voice with rich intonation and easy gesture. Miss Swan was the recipient of a handsome bouquet of roses.It is no disparagement of the rest of a magnificent program to say that the exquisite rendition of the dark melody, "Mamma's Little Girl," by the ladies' quartette, Mrs. John Cooper, Miss Clara Blight, Miss Lilian Simpson and Miss Ada Ross, was the gem of the entire evening and met with an enthusiastic reception, to which the ladies responded by the admirable relection "Beautiful gestures of these delightful numbers were most keenly appreciated by all lovers of the musical art.Prof. E. J. Forsythe gave a magnificent rendering of the patriotic selection, "The Gallants of England," and was heartily recalled. Prof. Forsythe is a decided acquisition to the ranks of Maple City vocalists and his splendid selections were repeatedly honored.J. W. Wilson gave an excellent rendition of the baritone solo "Soldier in the Park," with delicate choruses, and in response to a hearty encore rendered the "Man Behind the Gun."Miss Jessie Taylor, the talented soprano soloist, gave an admirable rendition of the solo, "Another little patch of Red," which was warmly received.Henry McCaw, the Maple City's accomplished violinist, gave an exquisite rendition. Mr. McCaw is a master of his instrument and always a favorite with his audience.Owing to the absence of Miss Maude McCaw, who was to render the number, Mrs. John Cooper gave an excellent rendition of the "Absent Minuteman," which was most heartily and deservedly applauded.
The accompaniment was played by Wm. H. Brackin.The selections by the large polyphone under the direction of Prof.
Wm. Martin, were much appreciated and repeatedly honored. The splendid instrument was heard to special advantage last evening.A special feature was the presentation of the Wilford Peck of the prize-for the sale of the largest number of tickets for the concert.

The Way We Sell

When we opened our first store we had certain convictions. Those convictions, by practical tests soon became fixed principles. You shall be informed of them, from time to time, for we shall regularly talk to you in the papers—talk to you and tell you the truth about the clothing we make and sell. That is one of the principles—telling the truth and no misrepresentation.

But what we want to say to-day is that we sell for cash—cash and cash only.

You all know what a saving in expense and loss that is to you—for the losses and expenses in the credit stores are borne, not by the merchant, but by those who pay.

We expect success out of this principle, strictly adhered to, in Chatham, as in Stratford and Guelph. At each of those stores we gained trade at both ends—from the man who used to pay fancy credit prices and from the man who bought shoddy.

We got them both and have kept them all these years by good clothes, one price, telling the truth and modest prices.

Our new store in the Victoria Block will open Thursday morning, March 29th.

BUDGET SPEECH.

stead of taking the Government's view of it, so that the two parties might stand hand in hand, had fallen back on the old proposition that no concession should be made until the mother country unless the mother country gave us one dollar for dollar and cent for cent in return.What the Liberals had done was to send to England that, as you have admitted, was a very high tribute, and have promised us at great cost, we will give you the preference and take our chances of getting a return.He claimed, had we honor and fame, and had gained dollars and cents as well by that preferential tariff.

INCREASING THE DEBT

As for the capital expenditure he (Fielding) estimated that it would be $9,875,000 for the year. And he was of the opinion that during this current year would be able to pay all the outlay and capital charges, railway subsidies, etc., as well as for the service which Canada was rendering to the Empire in South Africa, and yet not add one dollar to the public debt, and as far as he could see the next fiscal year would be an equally prosperous one, although he did not prophesy distinctly as to that.Dealing with the Yukon the Finance Minister quoted figures to show that since 1896 the receipts therefrom had been July 1, 1899, $2,372,646, and the expenditure, $2,372,340, thus leaving a small revenue.He stated that while from 1893 to 1896 there had been a yearly deficit of $1,898,253, from 1896 to 1899, there had been an average surplus of $11-$2,015,493, or a betterment of $11-$735,200, not taking into account the surplus of $7,500,000. Within a short time it would be necessary to borrow $100-000,000 to retire a portion of our debt.
But even adding the two million dollars by the year 1903 we would be able to float our new loans at such a lower rate of interest that we would be paying a less rate of interest on the public debt than we are to-day. He submitted that the per capita expenditure was not, as some claimed, very high.
It amounted to only $7.88 last year.
While in 1896, an exceptional year, he admitted, it was $8.50, and in 1888 $7.84. The rate for last year was obtained, he said, by estimating the population at 5,312,500.Believing that that policy was the best for Canada, and for the Empire, he would submit a resolution to the House declaring that from and after the 1st of July next there shall be an increase in the preference of 25 per cent. now in force, so that for every $3 of 33 1/3 per cent. of the products of foreign countries, only $2 would be imposed on the products of Great Britain, coming under the preferential tariff.

A CONCESSION.

Mr. Fielding next announced that the Imperial Government consented to the admission of Canadian stock to the trustee list of investments as the re-Strathcona,paid a very high tribute, as well also as to Mr. Courtney, the Deputy Minister of Finance, whose assistance in obtaining this boon he acknowledged with pleasure. Legislation he said would shortly be introduced into the Imperial and Canadian Parliaments admitting our stocks to the "trustee" class of investment in England.The result of this would be an advance of about 2-1/2 points in Canadian stocks, so that our loans would be almost on a par as investments with British consols. The practical effect would also be that upon the loans Canada must place on the British market there would be a saving of $2,500,000 to the treasury of Canada, which would be sufficient to pay all we should have to spend for the sending of our Canadian soldiers to South Africa.The prime minister concluded with a patriotic peroration which evoked much enthusiasm on the government side.During his address Mr. Fielding announced that negotiations were pending between Canada and Trinidad in the West Indies for reciprocal free trade and they would likely be successful.Mr. Foster will criticize the budget
