By an unfortunate oversight in the publication of the Minister of Educa tion's classification of the essays in to-day's Junior, the eleventh was omitted. It is as follows :-

bears the interest on the loan and

The upshot of the whole matter seems to be that Dr. Thornton's position is quite untenable and absolutely absurd. A citizen may be possessed of prolific genius, but this does not qualify him to wantonly upset the mental calm of the community with revelations which prove to be boomerangs. When the worthy doctor stigmatises the safe and same course taken by this journal in connection with the Aberdeen bridge, we may, perhaps, point out that his failure as a linancier would tend to show that his mental processes are not always infallable. It is always wise to look before leaping.

time past, the story still was a corner on the gossip of the place. DULMAGE HAS REFORMED.

Dulmage has reformed. He does business in his store every day, and says he has not lost anything through the notoriety he gained. H's feelings were badly hurt, but he considered that part of the process of clearing up the case, for which he gives the newspapers

He has resolved not to take any further part in the drama unless forced to do so. He will shake hands and call "quits" with any man in the village, even if he has to stretch his generosity to do it.

INJURIES ARE SEVERE.

INJURIES ARE SEVERE.

Since the last time the question was asked him as to how bed his injuries were, he has discovered his back was badly lacerated, and that his left leg was badly cut by the whip slashes.

It is the mental and not the physical side of which worries Dulmage, however. The stories still told by some people not kindly disposed to him that he abused his wife are the thorn in his side.

In some manner, the white-capped grocer has learned that the assault which was made on him was planned first for Friday, and later, when Dulmage by mere accident had escaped, for Saturday night.

ELUDES WHITE-CAPPERS.

ELUDES WHITE-CAPPERS.

He also eluded the men that night unconsciously through the offer of a forewarned friend to take him for a tated man over the affair at present tated man over the affair at present. In the aftermath, several fierce quarrels have developed. Lawyer Gahan and Reeve Fox are at daggers drawn, and when the former comen & Wheatley, as he has several times, he carries a dueling pistol in his pocket that might have been used in the time of Charles O'Malley.

GAHAN IS THREATENED.

Lawyer Gahan has stated to Thomas Dulmage that he was threatened by a man of the village that if he didn't keep away he would be strung up to a telegraph post.

Gahan makes no secret of this, but it does not keep him away from the village. Then, Constable Tremblay is in hot water. He is said to have had at personal quarrel with Dulmage, and when accused of standing by and allowing the assault to go on by a villager, a fued between said villager and stable started immediately. ALTERCATIONS CROP UP.

Many altercations such as those mentioned appear to have sprung up, and what the end will be is a complex guessing contest.

The warrants for the arrest of the seven men arrived in the village in the hands of High Constable Coogan, of Chatham, who was accompanied by Constable Rankin.

All of the men, with the exception of Tremblay and McDonald, were placed under arrest. Their word was taken that they would appear in time to start for Chatham.

McDonald's appearance in the morning was guaranteed by several of his friends.

Tremblay was at Sandwich with a prisoner, and was arrested on his way back at Blenheim.

PRISONERS HILARIOUS When the time arrived for the departur of the five to the station, a bus drew up and the five took their places. A large number of the villagers had gathered, and the departure of the prisoners took on the nature of a gene al joyfeast.

None took the arrests seriously—not even local wit asked that the "Dead March" from "Saul" be struck up for the occasion.

And away went the seven men, as hilarious as any school boys. The mood seem ed to be one of comlete innocence or of recklessness of a knowledge of safety

DRESSED IN THEIR BEST All of the men were dressed in their bes clothes and no stranger could have deducted that they were seven prisoners going to be tried on one of the most startling assault charges the country has ever known.

PROTEST INNOCENCE. All of the men who were arrested declare their innocence strongly, stating they nei-ther participated in nor were on the scene of the assault.

The assault, which is alleged to have been

"eavesdropping."

His reward was that he was seized, beaten by two of the men, Edwards and Hyatt, it is said, and then dragged up and down the road.

HAS MEN ARRESTED.

HAS MEN ARRESTED.

Randall, badly cut up and very weak, went at sight to the office of the high constable, who, yesterday, came out and made the arrests. The men were subsequently bailed out, to a pear after having been committed for trial.

Randall is said to have had a reputation as a sort of hanger-on in the community, and it is said the punmelling he received had been prearranged.

He was to "et it good and proper the next time he butted in."

Charles Potts, whose mame has been mentioned in connection with the Dulmage affair, desires to state that he had no part whatever in it, and can prove it.

Gored By a Bull.

Cornwall, July 29.—John McNaughton of Finch nearly lost his life by being gored by a vicious bull. He was putting up the bars of the pasture gate when the animal charged him, and had not help been at hand Mr. McNaughton would probably have been killed. As it was two ribs were broken, one piercing the lung. He is still in a serious condition.

Jumped and Was Hurt.

Toronto, July 29.—A runaway southbound Bloor and McCaul car, No. 599, pitched into Belt Line No. 918 on the Spadina crescent, opposite Russell street, last night, about 10 o'clock. Noone was scriously hurt as a direct result of the collision, for all the passengers on the Belt Line car were warned in time, and jumped while the car was standing at Russell street. But Miss Rebecca LeDrew, 353 Preston avenue, jumped from the runaway car and alighted on her head, receiving a severe scalp wound, from which blood flowed freely. Dr. Perry was called and attended to her wound. She was first taken into 556 Spadine avenue and later removed to the Western Hospital, and at midnight was doing well.

Will Hold Another Trial.

London, July 29.—The British Government does not intend to despatch a warship to Uruguayan waters or to take other threatening action until the appeal against the sentence pronounced against the Canadian fishing vessel, Agnes G. Donohue, for alleged poaching has been decided. The Government here regards the sentence of three years' imprisonment (not fifteen) passed on Capt. Ryan of the fishing vessel as monstrous, but the Uruguayan court has agreed to hold another trial, and the authorities here are content to await the result before proceeding. take other threatening action until the await the result before proceeding.

Shot by Drunken Man.
Cornwall, July 23—A telegram from Bigstone Gap, Va., informs Cornwall friends that Alex. Hall, son of William Hall, formerly of Cornwall, has been shot and badly wounded by a drunken miner. It was at first feared that the wound was mortal, but a later telegram says that he is improving.

Hon. Edward Blake Home.
Quebec, July 29.—Hon. Edward Blake,

Mrs. Roselle Acquitted.
