Mr. Scovil has been seen in Sockville. We will be would make his appearance here. Nobody that we know has ever seen him in Chatham. He is the inspector of weights and measures.

Count De Bury has returned from a trip to the Continent. The count is prominently connected with school matters in the town of Portland, and many think he aspires some day to a representative position. We should like to write "Count De Bury, M. P. P."

Mr. Wm. Esty, living in Durham settlement, York County, has not had a particle of food, solid or liquid, enter his stomach for the last twenty-eight days. He had previous to that time vomited all the nourishment taken. For six or seven months the patient has had an entire closure of the lower third of the "meat tube" leading from the mouth to the stomach and he must die from starvation.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD

The American papers are full of the "Presidents condition." The attending physicians of the President cling courageously to the remaining spark of life.

Dr. Bliss is yet full of hope. The President has become very much emaciated. His rest is broken and fitful; his stomach irritable, and he has perpetual nausea. His only food is liquid. He has wasted to a skeleton an anæsthetic despatch says, and the bullet wound is a ghastly one. One physician thinks he will not live past Monday. The following despatches came day before yesterday:

6.30 p. m. (official).—The President has continued liquid food by the mouth at regular intervals during the day, and had no recurrence of his gastric disorder. The parotid swelling remains unchanged. In other respects his symptoms show some improvement, on his condition yesterday afternoon. Pulse 104; temperature, 99.2; respiration 19.

BLAISE TO LOWELL.

Secretary Blaine has sent the following to Minister Lowell:—"In the last twelve hours since one this morning the President swallowed 18 1-2 ounces of liquid food. He has had no nausea, and his pulse and temperature are not essentially changed. In the judgment of his physicians he has lost nothing since the last despatch. If there is any change it is for the better."

THE PATIENT GAINING.

Dr. Bliss states that the quantity of beef juice given the President has been largely increased, and peptonized milk has been added to the list. His stomach seems to assimilate the food well, and without discomfort. His pulse is a little less frequent in its character, stronger and better. Dr. Bliss thinks there are evidences that the septic condition of the blood is passing off. He says:—"The President seems to me to be gaining."

NEW FEATURES FROM AUSTRALIA.

(From the San Francisco Daily Examiner) COLE'S CIRCUS.—The pavilion at the corner of Seventh and Market streets was filled to the limit of its seating capacity last night to witness the initial performance of this mammoth show.

The menagerie has been considerably enlarged since it left here on its tour around the world, by the addition of some of the wonderful birds and animals of the antipodes, and includes a white buffalo from India, the Maori war dances, Arabian athletes, kangaroos, ostriches, and other Australian curiosities. The grand entrance with its camels, elephants, ladies, knights in armor, and electric light shining on the spangles and the brilliant accoutrements, was a sight which brought forth applause from the audience. The wonderful performance which George Conking puts his trained elephants through, was well done. The act consisting of running a bicycle on a wire suspended across the dome of the circus, caused a thrill to run through the spectators, and was performed by John Maitz, George Dumb, and Adelaide d'Alalio. The baton-leaping by the corps of athletes showed to what perfection human muscles can be brought by training, several of the members doing

A TOUR THROUGH IRELAND.

A TWELFTH OF JULY CELEBRATION—THE NATURE OF THE SPOKEES—A LAND LEAGUE MEETING IN LEITRIM—THE EARL OF ENNISKILLEN'S ESTATE.

(From Cor. Montreal "Witness.") Mrs. McDougall writes from Dunfane, describing at much length

AN ORANGE PROCESSION. There were 75 big drums and as many flags, and nine tents of the people collected to see the demonstration. After marching they had orations and she says the scope of the speeches was entirely on the subject of civil and religious liberty fought for by their fathers at the Boyne, the danger of Catholic ascendancy, the wickedness of the Land League, who were misleading the public for the purpose of enriching themselves. The land question was not brought up as far as I heard. The praise of the Orange Association as a worthy institution for the upholding of that Protestant ascendancy, that civil and religious liberty for which their fathers bled was expressed in the strongest terms. One blatant speaker went off into "No popery, brass money, wooden shoes," and other ancient statements, but was finally politely hinted to his seat. Some on the platform and the crowd that closed around the platform were highly pleased with the speeches and in accord with them, if speaking faces, shining eyes, and vociferous applause mean anything. The large majority beat the big drum, blew the shrieking fife; danced, chatted with their girls, amused themselves with high glee, totally oblivious of the eloquence that was being wasted on the air, already overcharged with sound. I could not help contrasting this vast assemblage with the last great gathering at which I was present,

A LAND LEAGUE MEETING IN COUNTY LEITRIM.

The crowd here was well dressed, as usual, the girls both well and fashionably dressed. They had a well-fed look, were happy, gay, light-hearted. The good-humored inhabitants of a whole county sided gathered for the annual holiday, with no great purpose but to thoroughly enjoy themselves. What did they care for speeches? It was fun, they were after. The crowd in Leitrim, not so fat or well dressed as a general rule, had the appearance of dead earnestness; they hung with eager eyes and parted lips on the speakers, who, without any allusion to religious differences, told the story of their hard lives, their wants and their sufferings as a class in the community. Many of the leading gentry of the neighborhood, or members of their families, were on the Orange platform, with orange favors in their buttonholes. It was a very gay scene, brilliant with colors and bright with enjoyment. Getting home in the evening, there was very little drunkenness, and no perceptible row, which spoke well for the thousands of Antrim people out for a frolic, considering that Ballymena has, I am told, 85 whisky shops to tempt its inhabitants or to supply their droath, whichever it is. No doubt that some

"Reeled home, muddled and late, That had not taken their glory straight!"

but on the whole the crowd was orderly and peacefully, up to fun in a marked manner, and wonderfully quiet considering their numbers. There were some nice arches over the principal streets. In spite of the great demonstration, and a great demonstration it was, there is considerable discontent in the North on the land question, whether reasonable or unreasonable, who can tell? The discontent in the North may be unreasonable, in some cases I dare say it is, but it is there. I do not suppose that the opinions of the tenant farmers on what they consider their rights or their wrongs is to be classed as gossip any more than the opinions of land owners. Each expression of opinion is entitled to some weight in determining the reason for the present agitation. "There is always some fire to produce a great deal of smoke." When I was in Enniskillen I was more than surprised to hear of any discontent on

THE EARL OF ENNISKILLEN'S ESTATE; for if ever lordship and leadership would meet in the same person it surely is in the head of that family. I was a little incredulous at first, but it seemed to me, I was caused to believe, that a serious difference of opinion existed between the tenants and the office. This was a matter as public as the slates on the house or the paving stones on the street, as public as print could make it. There were charges and refutations which were after all not very convincing in the local papers to be seen and read by all men. If I singled out one statement to illustrate matters on this estate it was not by any means the one I received, but it was on the whole the most moderate one I made to me. I passed over some in silence, which were very strongly urged. Seeing that the hereditary and traditional attachment to the house was still strong, for no one said one word against the Earl or his family to me—they concentrated their anger on the agent—I was of opinion that a brief statement of what was complained of might do good. I would have written down these things at all events, but not with the same hopefulness were it not for the unextinguishable regard which I have existed between the Earl and his people. I thought matters had become pretty serious on this estate when one of the tenants said to me, "if it were not for the grace of God I would have revenged my wrongs with my own hands." It has given me great pleasure to know that all the grievances which worked up tenants to a declaration of that kind are the baseless fabric of which visions are made; that the old gentleman whose age, politics and religion are worthy of a suzerain has been laboring under a mistake in common with many others. If all which the tenants told to me was false, it must also be false that Lord Cole had looked into complaints and redressed grievances. It is worthy of note that Mr. Libburn, the courteous and impartial editor of the Belfast Weekly News, publishes two remarkable fair and gentlemanly editorial articles on the subject, along with the Earl's letter, but does not publish the notes on the Enniskillen estate which called all this writing forth. To some of his readers he may appear to be
