

Removal of Stains!

The removal of stains from Dresses, Cloaks, Gowns and other garments of wear is a special feature of our Dry Cleansing process. The stained article should be sent to us as early as possible, along with the information as to the nature of the stain. On no account should attempts be made to remove stains at home, as in a large majority of cases serious injury results and frequently the garment is ruined.

Our St. John's Agents, Messrs. Nicholle, Inkpen & Chafe, Ltd., Water Street, will give you full particulars regarding our process of cleaning and dyeing.

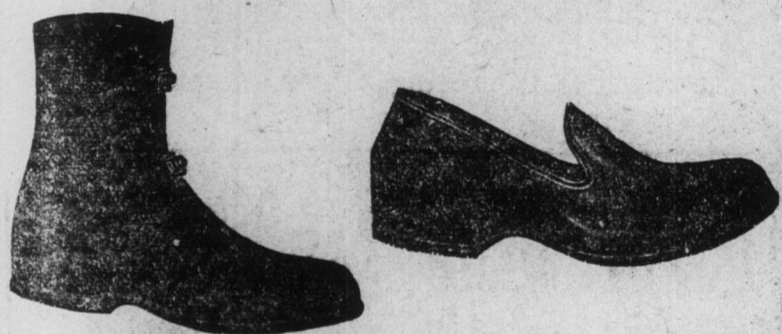

All orders executed with dispatch.

"Eventually."

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Eventually — Why not now?" is an advertising slogan to popularize what a thousands of dollars have spent. If those who read it would apply it to themselves, the money would have been well spent in the interests of humanity, whether the advertised product benefited or not.

There are many things which we hope to accomplish—eventually. In some instances the delay is due to a lack of money, or of time. Again, and perhaps more frequently, lack of determination or effort.

We plan to do these things eventually—why not now? It may be that you have a sneaking suspicion that you should visit the dentist. You know that nature has sounded its danger signal; you are one of those enlightened people who know that it is a good thing to visit the dentist once or twice a year, on general principle. You know you should go now. You know you will go—eventually. Why not now?

It may be, if you are a man, that you have a half developed idea, that if you should work it out and put it up to the chief, would help a lot. Or you are satisfied that you are not getting the most out of yourself and plan, for the future, some definite step, perhaps a course of study that will fit you for that occupation or profession for which you have natural talent. All this you promise yourself you will do eventually. Why not now?

It may be that you have a vice. Tobacco may be sapping your brain power, you feel that it would be better to swear off, you even promise yourself you will—eventually. Or you may be living beyond your income. You know it would be better to start saving. You realize the need, you have moments of foreboding. You promise yourself that you will cut down expenses. Eventually — but, why not now?

"Eventually" is the salvo we apply to our qualms of conscience. We feel vaguely uneasy over this or that. We argue with ourselves. "Eventually" is the word that comes to our aid. It means little or nothing, but it sounds large and imposing. We have a miraculous faith that the future will find us as strong in flesh as we are in spirit.

It is the old Spanish "mamana," which we all have in us, in greater or lesser degree. The captain of industry, forcing himself to greater and greater tasks, knows that he is reaching his limit, that to save himself he must take a long vacation. He promises himself he will — eventually. When eventually comes, with him, it is a longer, quieter vacation than he planned.

Eventually is too often the furthest outpost of to-morrow—and to-morrow is the day that never comes.

Fashions and Fads.

Even girde bows are being made of net.

Beaded handbags are always in good style.

Cotton broche crepe dresses have self-ruffles.

Scotch plaid will trim the new morning suits.

Straw hats for spring are being edged with fur.

Point-d'esprit makes some of the prettiest fichus.

Skunk is one of the most effective furs for evening.

Crass cloth and organza collars are particularly new.

The tub silk waists never go altogether out of style.

Cut steel is greatly in vogue for slipper and dress buckles.

The shapes of the new jabots and fichus are endlessly varied.

A lovely pale gray is one of the newest tints among gloves.

Parasols have borders of Dresden patterning, edged with black.

Silk buttons and trimmings will be seen on the new spring fashions.

Flowered cotton crepe is used even for young girls' nightgowns.

Now the fascinating flesh tint is seen even in marbour trimmings.

The loveliest new imported lace are outlined with gold and silver.

Some of the most extreme evening stockings are jet embroidered.

Some of the new dress silens are like the silk crepes with broche figures.

Now there is a new "furry" stitch in shadow embroidered flouncets.

White shadow lace and black net are used in neckwear for half mourning.

Marabou stoles and mufts seem to be as important as ever in milady's costume.

Black soutache, braided on black net, is one of the new ideas for half mourning.

Gray mocha gloves, fleece lined, have a white fur edge, which gives a novel look.

Big roses of satin and gold tissue are among the favoured girde flowers for evening.

Cherry-colored taffeta is used for girdeles and revers on white cotton voile frocks.

A pretty sort of neck riling is plain net with a single tuck and hem-stitched edge.

The lovely embroidered cotton crepes are being made up with taffeta bindings.

One great velvet blossom at the waist is generally used with the filmy evening gowns.

The probabilities are that we shall see a good deal of soft ottoman silk in the spring.

Fitz Too Good for Hopes.

Old Ring Master Outclasses Present-day Dubs.

Williamsport, Pa., Jan. 30.—Robert Fitzsimmons, former heavyweight champion of the world, displayed much of the old-time speed and ring generalship here last night in a six-round bout with "Knockout" Sweeney, of Cleveland. It was his first contest since he retired from the ring several years ago, and pugilistic experts who witnessed the battle declared he had "come back."

Fitzsimmons' blows were powerful, and while Sweeney remained in the fight for the limit, he was knocked down, and took the count repeatedly.

The publisher of the best Farmer's paper in the Maritime Provinces is writing to us stating:

"I would say that I do not know of a medicine that has stood the test of time like MINARD'S LINIMENT. It has been an untiring remedy in our household ever since I can remember, and has outlived dozens of would-be competitors and imitators."

Wolgast Beat Uholz.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Jan. 30.—Rudolph Uholz, former Boer, was knocked out last night by Ad Wolgast, the former lightweight champion, in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout, after a game but hopeless fight. Uholz took the count of nine four times in the first round and once in the second, and was reeling helplessly around the ring when, after one minute and 35 seconds of fighting in the second round, his seconds tossed a towel into the ring.

To make lemon cream, take one pint of lemon jelly, the white of one or two eggs, hot water. Prepare jelly in the usual way, pour into a large basin and let stand until just ready to set. Add white or whites of eggs and beat well. Pour into mould and allow it to remain until set.

Famous Streets.

THE CHAMP ELYSSES.

By GEORGE FITZEL.

Author of "At Good Old St. John's."

The Avenue de Champ Elysses is a favorite weapon with which to strike the visitor dumb with admiration. It is a street which has gotten beyond control and has grown into a park. It is possible to drift so far sideways, while walking along this celebrated thoroughfare, that one has to take a taxicab to get back into the central part of the street.

The Avenue de Champs begins in the west part of Paris at the Place d'Etoile, which is a convention of streets and avenues, twelve in number. For almost a mile the Champs proceeds eastward in an imposing and dignified manner, lined with palaces, ornamented with trees and beautified wherever possible with patches of gravel, for which the French have a passionate fondness. It forms the direct route to the Bois de Boulogne, the 2,300-acre park of Paris, in which the race courses are situated and the patient observer, who camps out on the Champs, will in time see all of Paris and a fair share of the rest of the world pass by.

At the end of this mile the avenue begins to swell like a corporation which has been attached to a hose. It soon becomes circular in shape and then attains a width of almost a quarter of a mile. Following the walks doggedly the traveler is finally shooed out into a huge paved square used at one time for the execution of superfluous royalty. Crossing this the pedestrian becomes involved in a tangle of gravel and flower beds, known as the Tuilleries, and finally finds himself caught between the two half-mile-long arms of the Louvre, with a four-storey stone wall in front.

At this point the stranger gives up the task of following the celebrated avenue and takes up the job of escaping from the Louvre. When he has done this he discovers that the beautiful street has sidestepped him a mile back and had slid peacefully through the center of town under an assumed name as the Rue de Rivoli. The Avenue de Champs is a three-storied street, with an underground railroad beneath and aeroplane cars overhead. It has more trees, taxicabs, and harem skirts than any other street in the world and is so interesting that hundreds of Parisians prefer to loaf their lives away under its shade on a tiny income than to go to work. The skyline of the Champs was laid out years ago by Baron Haussmann with a ruler, and its only skyscraper is the Arc de Triumphe, 150 feet high and equipped with an elevator which is used by Parisians as an adventure.
